HOUSE DEFEATS SALES TAX RISE; SENATE PLANS TO QUIT TODAY

Upper Chamber May Let Many House Bills Die —Leaders Deny Rift
Is Basis of Decision.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 19—The House defeated the bill to increase the state sales tax to 2½ cents from 2 cents on the dollar this afternoon. There were 73 yes votes and 15 no votes, with 79 yes votes needed for passage. Reconsideration of the bill, which has already passed in the Senate, is still possible in the present legislative session.

State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 19—The Missouri Senate plans to walk off the job today—12 days before the Legislature's May 31 adjournment deadline—leaving the House to wrestle alone with the major unfinished business of the 1955 session.

Leaders denied that the Senate-House rift, which reached the boiling point in a near-riot Tuesday night, had anything to do with the Senate's decision to quit and allow scores of House-approved bills to die on the Senate calendar or in committees.

But many House members took a different view. An announcement of the Senate's adjournment plans at a House session last night brought a chorus of boos from Legislators who are still angry over the Senate's demand that a House member apologize for an altercation with its sergeant-at-arms.

Senate majority leader Floyd R. Gibson (Dem.), said the House bills being abandoned have little chance of passage.

Brief technical sessions will be held next Tuesday and Thursday to receive messages from the House on legislation.

Senate to Be Called Back May 30

The entire Senate will be called back to work on Memorial day, May 30, at 4 p.m. It will work that night and the next day—the final day of the session—to clean up any major legislation still pending.

Representative Omer H. Avery, Democratic floor leader, told the House that it will have a full session today, but will not meet tomorrow because too many Legislators are absent. He said the House would have to return to work for a least several days next week to wind up its job.

More than 65 Senate-passed bills are on the calendar for final passage today. Among them are some of the major legislation still to be considered. House leaders hope to dispose of most of these measures, although some members are not disposed to act on routine Senate bills because of their resentment against that branch of the Legislature.

Retaliatory Blow

The House struck a retaliatory blow at the "House of Lords" last night. It voted to slash the Senate's $50,000 supplemental contingent fund. He said $28,411. At the same time it approved its own $131,195 contingent fund allotment.

The amendment cutting the Senate fund was offered by Representative Thomas A. Walsh (Dem.), St. Louis, who complained that a Senate committee had refused to act on a bill sponsored by the 18 St. Louis House members, to increase the city's police force by 95 men and assign them to beat duty.

Most House members were not too concerned with the fate of the St. Louis police bill, but approved the amendment as a retaliatory blow.

BULLET HOLES FOUND IN CAR OF BIRNEY HAYEY

Plane—He and Kenneth Mueller Are Still Missing.

The automobile of Birney T. (Chick) Haye Jr., one of the two missing former associates of Frank (Buster) Wortman, was found today with bullet holes in it, the St. Louis county sheriff's office said.

There were six holes in the machine.

The holes in Haye's square-rimmed late-model Cadillac sedan were discovered by Capt. Harry Newbold and P. K. Moeller in an examination of the machine, parked in the garage at the Haye home, 9669 Halls Ferry road, St. Louis county.

Also found in the garage was a sawed-off 12-gauge shotgun.

Haye left in his private plane from Parks Airport Tuesday night, 10 hours after another bullet-riddled automobile was discovered near an apartment he shared with a friend in East St. Louis, police there reported.

A widening search was under way in Illinois and Missouri for Haye and his friend, Kenneth Mueller, whose 1952 Cadillac, hit by nine bullets, was discovered at the apartment at 601A North Fortieth street, East St. Louis. Bloodstains were in the car and the apartment.

Haye left alone in his four-place plane, a 1947 Ryan Navion, after it had been prepared for flight several hours earlier by a friend, a World War II pilot, police were told.

The plane, purchased April 15 from a St. Louis firm, bore the number N-8737H. No flight plan was filed and authorities do not know where he went.

Mueller, whose bloodstained clothing was found in the Fortieth street apartment, has not been seen since his automobile was discovered. The two men had incurred the dislike of Wortman because of their intrusion into the setting field.

On Monday afternoon Haye telephoned to his wife and inquired if police had been there looking for him, she told authorities.

Mrs. Haye informed him they had not been, and he then advised his wife he would not be home for dinner. She said she had not seen or heard from him since.

Haye left his St. Louis county home Friday night, driving Mueller's 1952 Cadillac, Mrs. Haye said.

A woman witness told East St. Louis police that she saw Haye and Mueller in the car.

Champion Filibusterer Irked
By Title, Rejects Mock Medal

AUSTIN, Tex., May 19 (AP)—Senator Kilmer Corbin of Lubbock pooh-poohed his cracking of the national filibuster record yesterday but said he thought he had achieved his purpose.

That purpose, Corbin said at the end of his 28-hour, 15-minute speaking effort was to make Texans aware of what he considers a poor plan for financing water conservation.

"That champ business is silly, but that's one way you can call attention to what I consider one of the sorriest things I ever saw happen," Corbin told reporters after ending his filibuster.

The old filibuster record was 28 hours, 6 minutes, set by Senator Wayne Wagonseller of Bowie March 31.

Despite extreme weariness, Corbin planned to be on hand for today's session in case the target of his wrath came to a vote.

The measure—drafted by a joint conference committee after House and Senate passed conflicting bills—calls for a $100,000,000 bond program under

U.S. SEIZES MAIL WITH TICKETS FOR SWEEPSTAKES

CHICAGO, May 19 (AP)—Ten thousand envelopes mailed in the British West Indies to Chicago residents have been intercepted by Post Office inspectors because, they said, they contain tickets for the Jamaica sweepstakes.

Inspector Jerome Williamson said yesterday addresses have been notified to appear at the post office and open the envelopes in the presence of inspectors. Any tickets for the sweepstakes, he said, will be confiscated because they were mailed into the United States in violation of federal lottery laws. He said envelopes containing legitimate mail will be turned over to the addressee.

The inspector said the sweepstakes, to be held June 25 in Kingston, Jamaica, offers a $28,000 first prize.

BUSSES KEPT AWAY FROM EISENHOWER STOP IN DENVER

DENVER, May 19 (AP)—Colorado's public utilities commission moved yesterday to prevent President Eisenhower from being disturbed by busses when he visits Denver this summer.

The commission delayed until Oct. 11 a change in a bus line asked by the Denver Tramway Co. which would have routed vehicles past the home of the President's mother-in-law, Mrs. John Sheldon Doud.

The Chief Executive and Mrs. Eisenhower usually spend their nights at the house, at 750 Lafayette street, while in Denver. The street often is blocked off during his stays.

Neighbors protested the bus line "would increase not only the traffic hazards in the neighborhood but potential danger to the President of the United States."

MAN RETURNING TO BULGARIA, ON WAY SINCE 1939

TULSA, Okla., May 19 (AP)—Vasil Petroff Svilyanski, who came to the United States from Bulgaria in 1939 with a round-trip ticket, will leave Saturday on the long-delayed return journey—unless fate intervenes on the fifth time.

The outbreak of World War II first prevented his return. Then four additional times arrangements were made for the trip back to Communist-dominated Bulgaria. Each time weather or sickness forced cancellation of the plans.

Svilyanski, 72 years old, says he wants to spend his remaining years with his two sons and daughter in Bulgaria. His destination is Sofia.

COMMUTER BACKS FARE INCREASE FOR 2 RAILROADS

TRENTON, N.J., May 19 (INS)—A commuter spokesman has asked the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission to grant a fare increase to two railroads.

Lincoln Newman, president of the Atlantic City (N.J.) Commuters club, pleaded at a commission hearing yesterday that the Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania-Reading railroads were "entitled" to the requested increase.

He said the roads had provided new equipment, clean cars and diesel engines and a maximum $2.50 monthly boost was only just.

NEW POLIO CASES JUMP 30 PCT. IN WEEK, SHOTS HELD UP AGAIN

Spokesman Says Health Service Wants Another
Look at 'Confusing
Picture'—Supplies
Grow Scarcer.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)

A jump in new cases of polio was reported today by the United States Public Health Service. For the week ended May 14, new cases totaled 206—up 30 per cent from the previous week.

The number compares with 151 in the second week of May last year, and an average of 116 for the last five years.

The number of polio cases among inoculated persons remained unchanged at 77 confirmed cases, including five deaths, today.

In another development, the health service announced that 23 cases of polio have now been reported among individuals, not inoculated themselves, who came in close contact with children given vaccine made by Cutter Laboratories of California. In these instances, the inoculated children themselves have not contracted the disease.

Eleven of the 23 cases were adults and one was fatal.

The Health Service reported "a high degree of correlation" between the site of first paralysis and the site of inoculation in 59 polio cases among children who received Cutter shots. Cutter vaccine was withdrawn after the first cases were reported.

Vaccine Held Up Again.

These reports were all in the hands of the health service last night when it unexpectedly announced that for several days at least there would be no further clearance of anti-polio vaccine.

The result was to add uncertainty to the whole vaccination program.

With supplies in the hands of health officers and physicians growing scarce as a result of a recent government embargo pending a safety recheck, Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele said last night:

"There will be no further announcement with respect to the release of poliomyelitis vaccine for the next several days. This should not be inferred as reflecting in any way on the vaccine of the companies whose manufacturing and testing processes are under study."

Another Look-See.

Dr. Scheele did not elaborate. A public relations spokesman for the Public Health Service, which he heads, said the delay was ordered for "another look-see at this vaccine and very confusing picture."

Still approved for use in the mass inoculation program is the relatively small portion still unused from 7,850,000 cubic centimeters produced by two laboratories: Parke, Davis & Co. of Detroit and Eli Lilly & Co. of Indianapolis.

Scheele, stressing that he believes the vaccine to be safe effective, recommended that May 19 mass inoculations be halted temporarily. The following day he urged continuation of this shutdown pending a reappraisal of the methods of testing procedures of five manufacturers.

This reappraisal was completed and new clearance given for the Parke, Davis product last Friday. Re-clearance was granted the Lilly vaccine Sunday.

Then the team of federal inspectors moved on to Wyeth, Inc., Marietta, Pa. They have now gone to Pittman-Moore Co., Zionville, Ind. Next on the list is Sharp & Dohme, Inc., Philadelphia, which has not yet shipped any vaccine.

Precautionary Measure.

A health service spokesman said the fact that further clearances are being held up is not to be taken to mean that anything "has been found wrong" with the Wyeth product. He said it was another precautionary measure.

(The United Press quoted a public health service spokesman as saying the delay resulted because federal inspectors rechecking vaccine produced by Wyeth Laboratories were unable to complete the tour.

9 INDIANS LEAVE PEIPING, OPPOSE INDOCTRINATION

BOMBAY, India, May 19 (AP)—Almost a third of a labor delegation has cut short a visit to Communist China, charging attempts were made to "indoctrinate" them.

Abdul Kader Serang, general secretary of the National Seamen's Union, said last night that 9 of the 32 Indian visitors to Peiping came back as a protest against "a subtle move" to set up an Asian-African trade union conference dominated by the Communists.

R. J. Mehta, another of the returning nine, said the Chinese proposed that such a conference discuss hydrogen bombs and peace.

Serang said extreme leftists in the delegation stayed in China to complete the tour.

U.S. AIR POWER EXCEEDS RUSSIA'S, TALBOTT SAYS

But He Admits Reds Surprised Him — Air
Chief of Staff Says Defense Command
General 'Exaggerated.'

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)

Secretary of the Air Force Talbott said today this country's airpower is greater than that of Soviet Russia. But he said he is surprised at recent Russian advances.

After a two-hour closed-door session with Senators, both Talbott and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, told reporters they were surprised at current fear about Russian airpower.

Twining said an Air Force general "did not tell the truth" when he said in a speech in Detroit last night that "the Russian air force is currently at least as good as ours, possibly better."

The statement was made by Brig. Gen. Woodbury M. Burgess, deputy chief of staff for intelligence of the Continental Air Defense Command, in a speech to a Detroit American Legion post. Burgess also said we have been underestimating the Russians.

Twining said Burgess was speaking to a group of ground observers and "he exaggerated." Asked whether Burgess would be disciplined, Twining said: "I certainly will talk to him."

Twining, speaking of Burgess, also said at one point that "he was a brigadier general," emphasizing the "was." But then he added "I was only joking."

Asked if the Russians could deliver atomic or other bombs, Talbott replied:

"We don't know what they have inside them."

A current surge of concern in Congress over the relative positions of American and Russian air power was touched off when the Air Force released last week a report on new types of planes seen flying over Russia.

Senator Symington (Dem.), Missouri, proposed a Senate inquiry, telling the Senate that Russia was gaining superiority. Symington is a former Air Force Secretary.

In response to questions, Talbott told reporters he was responsible for the release of the Pentagon statement last Friday that the Communists had paraded powerful new jet bombers and fighters over Moscow recently.

"I thought the American people had a right to know," he said.

DULLES SLIPS UP A FEW TIMES IN REPORT TO NATION

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 19—Observers studying the small type today discovered that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles slipped up a few times during his report to President Eisenhower and the nation Tuesday night.

One slip came when he said that Russia's acceptance of a treaty for Austria "marks the first time that the Red armies will have turned their face in the other direction and gone back since 1945."

Dulles forgot that in 1945 the Russians occupied Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia—and withdrew from both countries. He also forgot that in 1946 the Russians withdrew from Iran and from the Danish island of Bornholm in the Baltic sea.

Later in his talk, Dulles suggested that a withdrawal from Austria would give Czechoslovakia as well as Hungary "an open door to freedom."

Here Dulles overlooked the fact that Czechoslovakia has had a common frontier with West Germany and that over this border many hundreds of refugees have fled to freedom since 1945.

HOUSING PROJECT TENANTS TOLD TO SIGN LOYALTY OATH

NEW YORK, May 19 (UP)—The New York City Housing Authority yesterday said it had sent letters to 30,000 tenants in federally aided housing projects asking them to sign loyalty oaths or be evicted.

The letters include a list of the more than 200 organizations on the United States attorney general's subversive list.

The tenants do not sign the loyalty oaths by June 1. The Housing Authority said it would begin action to evict them under terms of federal law governing lease of federally aided housing projects.

In 1953, 16,000 similar notices were sent out and most of them were signed. A Brooklyn woman protested and took the case to court on the ground that signing the oaths violated the constitutional safeguard against self-incrimination. The Housing Authority said the case still is before the Supreme Court.

For many years it has been the custom for a visiting head of state to start his Washington visit by spending a night or two at the White House, then shifting to the embassy of his own country.

In World War II, the Government acquired Blair House, an historic old dwelling just across Pennsylvania avenue from the White House. This led to the custom of foreign guests of a President spending their first night in the White House, then moving the next day to Blair House which became an official Government guest house.

The State Department changed this yesterday. It announced there would be no more first nights in the White House.

The President and his wife still will entertain at state dinners for foreign state heads, but the distinguished guests will sleep in Blair House. The State Department said this would spare foreign visitors the inconvenience of moving.

But a more important reason for the switch was the increased traffic in visitors from overseas who rated the first night treatment. When the custom was established many years ago of having foreign dignitaries stay in the White House, they were few and far between, maybe one every two or three years.

Since the Eisenhower have been in the White House, there have been at least 11 foreign parties on the chief of state or comparable level which rated at least one night at the White House, including Winston Churchill, the King and Queen of Greece and the Emperor of Ethiopia.

CONTRADICTS EISENHOWER'S ASSERTION OF SUPERIORITY

Defense Command General Says Russian Planes Are 'Good as Ours, Possibly Better' and They Have More.

DETROIT, May 19 (AP)—A high-ranking Air Force intelligence officer says the Russians have fighters and bombers equal in performance to the best planes the United States now has and the Russians have more of these planes.

Brig. Gen. Woodbury M. Burgess, deputy chief of staff for intelligence of the Continental Air Defense Command, said in a speech last night, "The Russian air force is currently at least as good as ours, possibly better."

President Eisenhower's news conference in Washington yesterday, rejected any idea that the United States may have lost control of the air to Russia.

Mr. Eisenhower conceded that the United States may not have as many B-52 intercontinental jet bombers "as we should like at this moment." He added, "I don't know the exact number but to say that we have lost in a twinkling all of our greatest technical excellence as well as the numbers in our total aircraft is just not true."

Guided Missile Race.

Speaking to an American Legion post at Selridge field, Burgess said he also feared the Russians are ahead of us in the effort to perfect the guided missile.

Burgess departed from a prepared speech in giving this information. He said the Defense Department had authorized its release only yesterday.

"One of our troubles," he said, "is that we have been underestimating the Russians."

Burgess said the Russians have two new bombers equal in size and performance to the Air Force's new eight-jet B-52, but that the Russian aircraft only have four engines.

A medium bomber comparable to our six-jet B-47 and yet having only two engines is being flown by the Russians, he said.

Burgess said the Russians have more supersonic fighters, similar to our F-100, than we have.

Burgess reported that Russia's new aircraft were shown in strength near Moscow during April as they practiced for the annual May day show of military strength. The air show was called off because of bad weather, but reports of the aircraft have been forwarded to Washington from observers in Russia, Burgess said.

Two Versions of Bomber.

The big intercontinental bombers similar to our B-52s were seen in two versions, he said. One was powered by four jet engines, and the other by four turbo-prop engines.

The turbo-prop model, in which a jet engine turns propellers, has a gross weight of more than 350,000 pounds and is powered by eight J-57 engines, each having 10,000 pounds thrust. These engines are the most powerful jet engines produced in the United States today.

At a press conference, Burgess said that apparently Russia has developed engines only slightly larger than the J-57, but which develop twice the power.

"You can draw your own conclusions on the advance stages of their engine development," Burgess said.

SECOND ATOMIC SUBMARINE TO BE LAUNCHED IN JULY

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—Launching ceremonies "about mid-July" are being arranged for the Seawolf, the nation's second atomic submarine now under construction at Groton, Conn.

The Navy, still giving no definite date for the ceremonies, said yesterday the sponsor for the new vessel will be the wife of Representative W. Sterling Cole (Rep.), New York, a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

The first atomic submarine, the Nautilus, is now on a shakedown cruise in the Atlantic.

Springs to Be Expanded.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., May 19 (AP)—Exectorm Fullenwider Springs is no longer satisfied with his name. He will appear Tuesday before Superior Court Clerk William E. Church with a plea to change it. The name he has selected? Exectorm Fullenwider Springs Caldwell.

EX-INSPECTOR OF ARMY CLOTHES ADMITS LYING IN GRAFT INQUIRY

Tells Senators His Denial About Getting Freezer From Company Representative Was Untrue.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—A former Army clothing inspector confessed publicly today that he had lied under oath in a Senate investigations subcommittee inquiry into alleged graft in large-scale buying for the armed forces.

Joseph G. Porreca of Clinton, N.J., told the subcommittee he lied when he denied at a recent closed-door hearing that he had received a home freezer from Marvin Rubin, one of the key figures in the inquiry.

Porreca said he got the freezer when he was chief inspector for the textile fabrications section of the New York Quartermaster procurement agency in 1952, and Rubin represented a company doing business with that agency.

Porreca testified he also got gifts of "some beautiful underwear" from Rubin, who has denied he knows anything about any lingerie gifts.

But Porreca swore repeatedly he never received any cash payments from Rubin. He professed to know little about a board of cash chairman John L. McClellan (Dem., Arkansas), told him the subcommittee learned was kept "in the cedar chest" at Porreca's home.

Rubin acknowledged earlier that he bought the freezer for Porreca. Like Porreca, Rubin denied it was a gift. But their versions of the transaction were in sharp contrast.

Porreca said he intended, and sought to pay for it. Rubin said he had tried to collect $215, the cost of the freezer, from Porreca but was "feeling" about it.

Testifying ahead of Porreca, Rubin stuck to denials that he ever "paid a payoff" to government workers. Another witness promptly contradicted part of what he said.

Schlesinger, a former auditor for the Army Quartermaster Corps in New York, swore that Rubin arranged to pay his expenses on a trip to Puerto Rico in 1953. Schlesinger said he was working for the quartermaster at the time and used an assumed name on the trip.

Schlesinger, now an income tax auditor in the New York office of the Federal Internal Revenue agency, said he never told his Army bosses about the trip.

Rubin had just denied from the witness stand at a public hearing before the subcommittee that he knew anything about payment of $150 expenses to Schlesinger on the trip. The subcommittee is investigating charges of graft in connection with the letting of contracts for the purchase of textiles and uniforms for the armed forces.

Rubin was called back to the stand as the committee sought to unravel stories told by yesterday's witnesses about Porreca's gift of a coat (apparently not a mink) to a woman Government contract officer, a home freezer and fine lingerie to persons not then identified by name and $50 bills to a $60-a-week Government inspector who denied they were bribes.

Schlesinger testified that he made his trip to Puerto Rico at Rubin's request, to visit the Puerto Rico plant of Bonita Originals. On it, he said, he found an accounting error in the plant's books which had been holding up Government payments to the company on a contract for the manufacture of woolen uniform caps.

Schlesinger testified, "I'm practically positive" that Rubin handed him $50 in the Bonita offices just before he left on the trip. The witness said he knows Rubin arranged with the company's business office to pay him another $100 he said he received after returning. He said the company also bought his airplane ticket and paid for most of his meals on a four-day stay in Puerto Rico. In any event, he said, Rubin "certainly" saw him collect the $50.

Rubin had just testified that he did arrange to buy the plant tickets for Schlesinger but insisted that "No, sir, I did not" know anything about the arrangements for paying the $150 to Schlesinger.

Rubin was called as the day's first witness, and Chairman John L. McClellan (Dem., Arkansas), asked whether "after reflection" he wanted to change any of the denials he had made yesterday of making payoffs.

"No, sir, I do not," Rubin said firmly.

Rubin denied also that he ever had told Melvin Carlin, a former auditor for Bonita, that he would use the proceeds of a $1000 check issued by the company "for the benefit" of Government employees.

Carlin said yesterday that Rubin had made the statement. Rubin insisted he has no recollection of the check at all.

"I have never paid a payoff," he testified yesterday.

Rubin had orders from McClellan yesterday to ponder overnight his sworn denial that he was an "influence peddler," and his testimony that the $50 bills were loans to Navy Inspector Julius Goldman.

Goldman said he took the money as advance payment on a job he said Rubin had offered him.

In Military Clothing Inquiry

to the name of Samuels and gave his name under oath as Goldman, asked and received permission to return to the witness stand some time in the day to "clarify" the situation about the money he said he got from Rubin.

Goldman testified he accepted $50 almost every Friday for three or four months in 1952, while inspecting raincoats manufactured for the Navy by the Ansonia (Conn.) Garment Co. for which Rubin was a business finder.

The Navy reported today that Goldman did not show up for work this morning at the Camden (N.J.) office of the inspector of Navy Materiel, where his most recent assignment was inspecting chains being bought by the Navy. A public information officer at Fourth Naval District Headquarters in Philadelphia, said Goldman "is under suspension effective today, pending an investigation of his activities."

Rubin himself told of having given a coat to the woman contract officer, Robert F. Kennedy, the subcommittee counsel, said the woman is Mrs. Molla Hort, who worked as contract administrator for military procurement at a time when Rubin was representing both the Ansonia company and Bonita Originals, Inc., of New York City in negotiations for clothing contracts with the Government.

Rubin insisted it was an innocent gift in all respects. "I bought a coat for Mrs. Hort as a Christmas gift," he testified. His explanation, "I did it with her husband's knowledge," brought laughter.

Mrs. Hort, who is to testify later, was not immediately reached for comment.

Mrs. Ruth Evelyn Picoult of Ellenville, N.Y., former bookkeeper for the Bonita Co., told of having drawn checks to pay for the gift of a home freezer to someone she did not know; $50 or $75 to pay for lingerie gifts by Rubin to others she didn't know; and $285 which McClellan said was to pay some Government worker's doctor bill.

Often Visited Office. (The United Press said Mrs. Picoult said Mrs. Hort often came to the office to see Rubin at the end of the day. Mrs. Picoult testified that she was once ordered to give Rubin $1750 in cash.)

Rubin calmly shook his head when Senator George Bender (Rep., Ohio), declared: "You're not a 5 per cent center—you're a 33 1/3 per cent center."

Goldman was questioned at length as to whether he considered the money from Rubin either a bribe or attempted bribe.

"That thought never crossed my mind," he said.

And what's more, he said, he feels sure his present Navy bosses "would not judge me harshly, knowing how strict I am as an inspector" and because, he added, the money never did influence his judgment.

Goldman testified that after he had rejected a batch of the Ansonia company's raincoats as defective, Rubin offered him a job as manager of the plant, and thrust into his coat pocket an envelope containing $50.

He said he kept right on getting similar amounts, meanwhile advising Rubin on how to operate the plant better.

Rubin had a different version. He said he loaned Goldman money, $50 at a time and amounting to about $200, and tried in vain to collect the debt.

Goldman said he did not know how much money he got, but did not dispute an estimate by Senator Karl E. Mundt (Rep., South Dakota), that if probably totaled around $800. He said he does not remember whether he declared it with other income in paying his income taxes. He swore that Rubin never did press him for repayment.

Goldman, who first answered to the name of Samuels and gave his name under oath as Goldman, asked and received permission to return to the witness stand some time in the day to "clarify" the situation about the money he said he got from Rubin.

Goldman testified he accepted $50 almost every Friday for three or four months in 1952, while inspecting raincoats manufactured for the Navy by the Ansonia (Conn.) Garment Co. for which Rubin was a business finder.

The Navy reported today that Goldman did not show up for work this morning at the Camden (N.J.) office of the inspector of Navy Materiel, where his most recent assignment was inspecting chains being bought by the Navy. A public information officer at Fourth Naval District Headquarters in Philadelphia, said Goldman "is under suspension effective today, pending an investigation of his activities."

Rubin himself told of having given a coat to the woman contract officer, Robert F. Kennedy, the subcommittee counsel, said the woman is Mrs. Molla Hort, who worked as contract administrator for military procurement at a time when Rubin was representing both the Ansonia company and Bonita Originals, Inc., of New York City in negotiations for clothing contracts with the Government.

Rubin insisted it was an innocent gift in all respects. "I bought a coat for Mrs. Hort as a Christmas gift," he testified. His explanation, "I did it with her husband's knowledge," brought laughter.

Mrs. Hort, who is to testify later, was not immediately reached for comment.

Mrs. Ruth Evelyn Picoult of Ellenville, N.Y., former bookkeeper for the Bonita Co., told of having drawn checks to pay for the gift of a home freezer to someone she did not know; $50 or $75 to pay for lingerie gifts by Rubin to others she didn't know; and $285 which McClellan said was to pay some Government worker's doctor bill.

Often Visited Office. (The United Press said Mrs. Picoult said Mrs. Hort often came to the office to see Rubin at the end of the day. Mrs. Picoult testified that she was once ordered to give Rubin $1750 in cash.)

Rubin calmly shook his head when Senator George Bender (Rep., Ohio), declared: "You're not a 5 per cent center—you're a 33 1/3 per cent center."

Goldman was questioned at length as to whether he considered the money from Rubin either a bribe or attempted bribe.

"That thought never crossed my mind," he said.

And what's more, he said, he feels sure his present Navy bosses "would not judge me harshly, knowing how strict I am as an inspector" and because, he added, the money never did influence his judgment.

Goldman testified that after he had rejected a batch of the Ansonia company's raincoats as defective, Rubin offered him a job as manager of the plant, and thrust into his coat pocket an envelope containing $50.

He said he kept right on getting similar amounts, meanwhile advising Rubin on how to operate the plant better.

ADENAUER CALLS HOME ENVOYS TO WEST BIG THREE

To Discuss Policy on Red Neutrality Offer, Chance for Unification at Big 4 Talks.

BONN, May 19 (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer last night called home his ambassadors to Washington, London and Paris for urgent consultation on big power political moves. The new Bonn envoy to France had arrived in Paris only this morning.

A senior Foreign Office official told the Associated Press: "The Chancellor feels that the time has arrived when the nation's leading diplomatic representatives must receive a report on the exact line of German policy concerning possible neutrality offers by the Russians and the possibility of an agreement on German unification at a Big Four conference."

Top-Secret Parley. Adenauer made the sudden call to his top ambassadors after summoning his foreign affairs and defense advisers to a top-secret conference at his Black Forest retreat on Saturday, presumably to discuss plans for West Germany's new 500,000-man armed force.

West Germany joined NATO last week as its fifteenth member with the pledge to contribute a 12-division army, a navy and an air force for western defense.

The ambassadors called home are Heinz Krekler, Washington; Hans von Herwarth, London; and Voltrath von Maltzan, Paris.

von Maltzan arrived in Paris today to take up his new post. Von Herwarth went to London on Monday to become the new ambassador to Britain. Krekler was here only six weeks ago for conferences with the Chancellor.

Most Urgent Session. The Foreign Office described the conferences as most urgent. An official said: "Things are moving so fast that the Chancellor felt he should consult immediately with his leading advisers."

Adenauer conferred yesterday with Deputy Foreign Minister Walter Hallstein and Herbert Blankenhorn, West Germany's permanent representative to the NATO Council in Paris.

The Foreign Office said Adenauer feels the recent Soviet moves may indicate that a new era in East-West relations is starting that could lead to unification of Germany.

Gov said "one of our army units" carried out the operation against an Egyptian position near Kissufim "in consequence of one of the Israeli army's vehicles having been blown up on May 17 by a land mine which had been planted by Egyptian sappers (engineers) on the road in the neighborhood of Kissufim."

Gov said the vehicle was destroyed and all of its occupants either killed or wounded.

A United Nations investigation into the violence began before noon. Both Israelis and Egyptians appeared to have asked Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief of the U.N. supervision team, to order an emergency meeting of the Israeli-Egyptian mixed armistice commission.

Lt. Col. Salah Gohar, chief of the Palestine affairs department in the Egyptian government, said, "The Egyptians inflicted heavy casualties on the Israelis which was confirmed by the presence of many pools of blood and abandoned blood-stained clothing. The Egyptians did not suffer any casualties."

Gov said the Israeli troops suffered no casualties in the operation carried out under cover of darkness. He said that when the Israeli unit approached the Egyptian position the Egyptian soldiers holding it fled as did Egyptian soldiers in neighboring installations. He said the Israelis blew up the stronghold and then returned to base.

ISRAELI TROOPS BLAST EGYPTIAN POST NEAR GAZA

Retaliate Against Land Mine Ambush That Killed 3 Wounded Two.

TEL AVIV, Israel, May 19 (UP)—Troops of the Israeli army struck across the border of the Gaza strip today and blew up an Egyptian military position in a publicly proclaimed "raid of retaliation."

Israeli military spokesman Maj. Dan Gov said Israeli troops back "in consequence of an Egyptian land mine ambush" that killed three Israeli officers and wounded two on Tuesday.

(Middle East observers in London said the chain of explosive events in the Holy Land made it clear that a policy of an eye-for-an-eye had gone into effect on the borders between Israel and the Arab countries.)

Tension was highest at Gaza, the finger of Egyptian-held territory that thrusts northward between lower Israel and the Mediterranean and which was the scene of bloody clashes earlier this spring.

Dispute Arises Over U.S. Secrecy At 'Atoms-for-Peace' Conference

Some Urge Freer Information Policy and Encouragement of Private Industry to Take Part—Split in AEC.

By RICHARD DUDMAN, A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 19—A behind-the-scenes struggle has developed over United States preparations for the "atoms-for-peace" conference to be held in August in Geneva, Switzerland.

The nub of the dispute is whether the Atomic Energy Commission should employ its characteristic caution and secrecy in directing this country's participation.

Some persons insist that the AEC must adopt a much freer information policy and go much further in encouraging private industry to take part in the United States' efforts to present the "very splendid exhibition" which President Eisenhower promised at his press conference yesterday.

Others, led by AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss, appear to rely heavily on secrecy and on a determination that the United States entry will not smack of a "trade show."

AEC Divided on Question. The difference of opinion divides the Atomic Energy Commission itself, the Post-Dispatch has been told.

Those who want a more liberal policy have received unopposed help from the Russians. Soviet papers prepared for the conference are said to be of unexpectedly high quality, rivaling the best this country has to offer. If this is true, the United States may have to make an extra effort to make a good showing.

An example of the secrecy that surrounds the preparations for the conference is the handling of information about the 333 scientific papers which the AEC has accepted and submitted to the United Nations. The U.N. conference committee will decide which ones may be read at Geneva, which may just be printed in the proceedings and which will be rejected.

The U.N. has published the titles. The AEC has the names of the authors and abstracts of their papers, but these are still a deep secret although no question of national security could conceivably be involved.

Some industrial firms have been offended, also, by the AEC determination to keep out any trade show atmosphere.

"The United States committee early in March invited expressions of interest from industry relative to a United States trade show in Geneva," the Atomic Industrial Forum reported.

"About 60 concerns reportedly responded favorably. Now the 60 are being informed that the official exhibit will be only of scientific and technical material which is primarily of interest to the scientific delegations, and that the U.N. as well as the United States committee are washing their hands of the trade show."

Those still interested in exhibiting their companies' wares at Geneva are being referred to the management of the Geneva exhibition hall, several miles from the Palais des Nations, where the conference will be held and where the national "scientific and technical" exhibits will be displayed.

Basic Dilemma Seen. Some observers here see these disagreements and difficulties as indications of a basic dilemma facing the United States as it prepares for the United Nations International Conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy.

President Eisenhower proposed the conference in April 1954 as part of his "atoms-for-peace" plan, to bring scientists from all nations together to help harness the atom for peaceful work.

Yet, most informed persons expect the conference to be the scene of dramatic competition between the nations to see which can get the most world-wide credit for turning atomic energy to peaceful uses.

Much 'New Material'. (Meanwhile, a New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch special dispatch reported from U. N. headquarters there is a considerable amount of new material that will be presented to the Geneva conference.)

(Walter G. Whitman, chairman of the research and development board of the United States Department of Defense and the U.N. official in charge of arrangements for the conference, told a press conference that he has received 901 abstracts of scientific papers for the Geneva sessions, and expects the total will reach about 950.)

(Whitman, said that his impression is that some of the material to be presented is new not only in the sense of not having been published anywhere before, but also new to his staff of 17 "scientific secretaries.")

These are a team of crack atomic scientists gathered from all over the world, including the Soviet Union, to help him arrange the conference.)

Denying western contentions that the Soviet Union wants to conquer all of Europe, Khrushchev pointed to last Sunday's signing of the Austrian state treaty, which provides for withdrawal of occupation troops from that country.

He described recent Soviet world disarmament proposals as "a large investment in the cause of peace" and declared: "We were and remain the most consistent and determined defenders of the cause of peace in Europe and the whole world."

REDS TO OBSERVE EQUAL RIGHTS IN TALKS WITH TITO

To Go to Belgrade With 'Open Souls and Pure Hearts,' Khrushchev Asserts.

MOSCOW, May 19 (AP)—Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev says he and other Soviet leaders will stick to a principle of equal rights and mutual non-interference in their forthcoming talks with Yugoslav President Josip (Tito) Broz.

Asserting that the Soviet delegation would go to Belgrade "with open souls and pure hearts," Khrushchev told a Kremlin conference yesterday: "All the necessary conditions exist to insure full normalization of relations between the U.S.S.R. and Yugoslavia."

"We adhere firmly to the point of view that normal relations between states should be based on the principle of equal rights and mutual non-interference in each others' affairs."

Only this foundation, he added, firm, friendly relations and mutually profitable trade and other economic dealings could be established.

The Soviet Government announced last weekend that Khrushchev, Premier Nikolai Bulganin and other top Kremlin officials would confer with Tito in Belgrade late this month.

The conference, to which Khrushchev spoke was concerned with labor productivity but the party secretary covered a wide range of topics.

STREET - LIGHT MODERNIZATION PLANNED UNDER BOND PROPOSAL

Area Program.

By ROY J. HARRIS
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

St. Louis street lights would be modernized in residential areas as well as on main traffic arteries if voters approve spending $6,000,000 for street-lighting improvements next Thursday.

Under Proposition 9 of the proposed $110,639,000 civic improvements bond issue, $4,000,000 would be spent for lighting improvements on existing main traffic arteries, and $2,000,000 on residential streets. To pass, the proposition must receive favorable votes from two-thirds of the persons voting on it.

Director of Public Utilities Conway B. Briscoe, whose department would execute the improvements, said about 100 miles of major streets could be provided with mercury vapor lights with the $4,000,000.

More Light Per Unit.
These lights, similar to those recently installed in Maplewood and on the Third Street Highway, would be on brackets extending over the pavement from the top of 30-foot poles. More than twice as much light per unit of electricity is obtained from mercury vapor lamps as from the incandescent lamps now used, engineers say.

With the $2,000,000 for residential lighting, Briscoe said, his department would be able to improve lighting at about half the city's 8,000 residential street intersections.

Plans call for two 30-foot concrete or steel standards at each street crossing, topped by 250-candlepower lamps. This program would be in addition to the present one, under which, with funds on hand, 100-candlepower lamps now used at residential intersections are being increased to 150 candlepower.

Standards to Be Replaced.
Existing 15 and 20-foot concrete standards which would be replaced on main arteries and at residential intersections under the bond program, would in turn be used to replace the short cast-iron posts still standing in some neighborhoods.

These standards, though now carrying electric lights, are left-overs from the gaslight days and are conceded to be wholly obsolete.

The subcommittee, headed by Walter E. Burtelaw, found that the present street-lighting system, "although it represented good practice at the time it was installed in 1928-32, is grossly inadequate for present-day traffic conditions and fails to meet acceptable standards."

Burtelaw's group agreed with "the universally recognized tenets" that adequate street lighting deters crime, saves lives, facilitates traffic, protects property, enhances property values and builds business.

The subcommittee noted the current program for brightening existing lights and said this activity should not duplicate or overlap that contemplated under the bond program.

Tree Program Recommendation.
It recommended also that the city try to "correlate the street-lighting and tree-management programs by trimming or removal of trees that seriously interfere with street-lighting effectiveness and by regulating the types and placements of trees."

"During its study, the committee observed that much of the

Chatting at Dimly-Lighted Intersection

dinginess in areas that have adequate concrete posts is caused by use of too small a lamp bulb or by the misuse of auxiliary shades and deflectors. "It was also noted that the almost complete absence of lighting in alleys provides limited opportunities for concealment for burglars, muggers, thieves and other criminal elements, exposing citizens to danger and making the job of the police department more difficult."

The committee recommended that use of makeshift shades and deflectors be "sharply curtailed and rigidly controlled," and that a program for installing suitable alley lights be investigated.

FORD WORKERS FAVOR STRIKE IF DEMANDS ARE NOT MET

Members of Local 325, CIO United Auto Workers, employed at the Lincoln-Mercury Division plant of Ford Motor Co. at Robertson, have voted 3593 to 74 to authorize a strike if the union's demands, including a guaranteed annual wage, are not met in negotiations at Detroit. Aaron R. Brown, president of the local, said today.

The local has a total membership of more than 3800 workers, Brown said. A special election to endorse the UAW national bargaining committee was held by the local Monday and Tuesday. The union contract with Ford expires June 1, Brown added.

Similar strike action has been voted, 3133 to 117, by Local 25 of the UAW, representing workers at Chevrolet and Fisher Body plants at Natural Bridge avenue and Union boulevard. The union's contract with General Motors Corp. expires June 7 and a guaranteed annual wage also is the foremost bargaining point with that company.

MIDWIFE FAILS TO APPEAR AT ILLEGAL OPERATION TRIAL

The $3500 bond of Mrs. Mary Vugrich, former St. Louis county midwife charged with abortion, was ordered forfeited today by Circuit Judge John A. Witt.

Mrs. Vugrich, who was the chief witness against Deputy Sheriff Hugh Bresnahan, indicted last month on a charge her, posted the bond in 1953 when she was arrested for the alleged illegal operation. She said later she paid Bresnahan $1500 to escape prosecution. Her bond was signed by Edward Marek, professional bondsman, who is under indictment on a perjury charge in the county.

The present charge against Mrs. Vugrich was contained in an information issued last month by Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz. The information was filed April 15 and trial was set for last Monday. Mrs. Vugrich is now reported living on a farm near Edwardsville.

POLICE NIP TEEN-AGE FIGHT ON EAST SIDE

75 Boys Gathered for Battle With 'Duke's Gang' Are Gradually Dispersed.

East Side authorities assigned additional officers to juvenile work today as a result of a threatened "battle royal" among teen-age boys in East St. Louis last night.

Approximately 75 boys gathered shortly before 8 o'clock in the 2500 block of Caseyville avenue, near Jones Park, ready to meet a challenge from "Duke's Gang" for a showdown fight. City and county officers were alerted and they moved among the boys, advising them to go home. The group did not disperse entirely until about midnight.

"Duke's Gang" did not show up, as far as the officers could tell, for policemen in the East St. Louis juvenile division had been busy all afternoon rounding up suspected leaders and asking them about their activities. Sixteen were arrested, and some were held for four hours.

Officers were told that part of the initiation into the gang is a requirement that the prospective member beat up another boy without provocation. Four such instances have been reported in the last week.

Police Commissioner Russell T. Beebe said school officials had warned that a big fight was scheduled, and that he received telephone calls on the subject from about 200 parents.

At Belleville, Chief Deputy Sheriff Clifford C. Flood said three to five deputies will look in on teen-age gathering places regularly "until this thing is broken up."

State's Attorney Richard T. Carter said he considered the situation "in hand at the moment." He warned that if fighting does break out he will not be lenient with the offenders.

Carter said a 17-year-old boy arrested Tuesday night, after he and two 15-year-old companions beat another youth, will be charged with assault. He said he would recommend that the younger boys be sent to a state training school.

DENIES TAX EVASION CHARGE

John A. Haywood of Edwardsville, district representative for the AFL Building and Common Laborers Union, yesterday pleaded not guilty at Springfield to an indictment charging evasion of $23,988 in taxes on income of $93,382 for the years 1949 through 1952.

Another count in the indictment against Haywood alleges he made false statements to federal agents in denying he received money or property from contractors.

8 IN VA GET SUGGESTION, SUPERIOR WORK AWARDS

Eight employees of the St. Louis Regional Office, Veterans Administration, 415 Pine street, received a total of $490 yesterday in suggestion or superior performance awards.

Suggestion awards were made to John M. Holm, 10412 San Carlos lane, St. Ann, $40; Daniel Zimmerman, 749 Heman avenue, University City, $25; Miss Helen D. Morris, 2512 Sublette avenue, $160, and Miss Mary L. Menges, 6051 Mardel avenue, $10.

Superior performance awards were given Philip M. Bloom, York Hotel, $150; Mrs. Mary J. Baker, 3645 Lafayette avenue, $35; Miss Essie G. Yates, 5864 Delmar boulevard, $35, and Miss Patricia A. Schaab, 6816 Etzel avenue, University City, $35.

PLAQUE GIVEN IN MEMORY OF COL. EDMUND J. McMAHON

A bronze plaque in memory of the late Col. Edmund J. McMahon, commander of the St. Louis 138th Infantry in World War I, was presented to the National Guard Armory, Spring avenue and Market street, at a ceremony last night.

Company H of the present 138th Regiment was selected to act as guard of honor and pass in review because Col. McMahon began his military career as a private in that company.

The plaque, bearing the likeness of Col. McMahon, was presented by former members of the 138th Regiment and the 138th Infantry Memorial Post 357 of the American Legion.

STEBEN FOUNDERS DAY

Today has been designated Steuben Founders day in a proclamation signed by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker. Baron Frederick Wilhelm August von Steuben, who came to this country at the invitation of Benjamin Franklin, served under George Washington in the Revolutionary War.

This born aristocrat with democratic ideals showed himself worthy of the trust imposed in him by bringing order out of confusion when Washington appointed him Inspector General of the Armies after the woeful campaign of 1776 in New York and New Jersey," the proclamation stated.

ALDERMEN PASS RECORD BUDGET OF $51,485,339

Board Also Approves Measure Fixing the Annual Tax Rate at $1.81 on Each $100.

The annual budget bill providing for a record expenditure of $51,485,339 for operating municipal departments in the 1955-56 fiscal year was passed unanimously by the Board of Aldermen today, following approval by the Ways and Means Committee of the Board.

Also passed was the bill fixing the annual tax rate at $1.81 on each $100 assessed property valuation, the same rate as in the last fiscal year ended April 11. In addition to expenses for municipal services, the budget bill included money for interest and sinking funds, for the water department, municipal airport and municipal bridge, or a total of $65,181,780.

The record budget bill was passed by a vote of 23 to 0 in the form in which it was submitted by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. It provides for expenditure of $1,562,000 more than last year's budget of $49,923,000 for city departments.

Heads of departments receiving substantial increases were questioned by the Ways and Means Committee, which continued its work today until shortly before the aldermen convened.

Alderman Edgar J. Feely, committee chairman, said the committee was satisfied there were no unjustified demands for funds. Department heads heard today were Mrs. E. G. Brungard, director of public welfare; Conway B. Briscoe, director of public utilities, and Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz.

The $1.81 tax rate includes $1 for city purposes, 35 cents for county purposes within the city, 10 cents for library, 2 cents for museum, 2 cents Zoo and 32 cents for interest and sinking fund.

With the addition of $1.21 on each $100 valuation for schools and a 7 cents state tax, St. Louisans actually will pay a total rate of $3.09 this year, a decrease of 1 cent from last year.

NORMANDY STUDENT AWARDED NEW AMHERST SCHOLARSHIP

David D. Taylor, a senior at Normandy High School, was awarded the $200 Luther Ely Smith Memorial Scholarship to Amherst College. It was announced today. Previously the college also had awarded him a $200 tuition scholarship.

Mr. Smith, prominent St. Louis attorney and civic leader, died in 1951. The scholarship fund was created by a group of his friends and specifically to assist St. Louis youths planning to attend Amherst College.

Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Taylor, 3808 Melba place, Arbor Terrace. Robert E. Nelson, Jr., recipient of the first Smith scholarship awarded last year, received a second $200 award. He graduated from Maplewood High School last June.

YOUTH WITH FOUR DRIVING VIOLATIONS IS FINED $50

Ralph Thole, 5707 Neosho street, a mechanic, was fined $50 today by Judge Morris Rosenthal on Thole's plea of guilty of speeding 42 miles an hour last April 5 on Riverview drive.

When Judge Rosenthal remarked that it was Thole's fourth "misdeed" in this year, the 19-year-old defendant voluntarily surrendered his driver's license.

Thole was arrested last Saturday after a 65-mile-an-hour chase that ended when his machine struck two trees and a parked automobile in the 6900 block of Quincy street. Only slightly injured, Thole told police he was trying to evade an arrest because of the pending speeding charge on which he was fined today.

MISSING MAN TURNS UP IN SWINDLE CASE

Left St. Louis Home 2 Years Ago — Said to Have Cheated 3 Women of $115,000.

Roland G. Willms, who was reported missing more than two years ago by his wife after he failed to return to his Lindell boulevard home from a business trip, turned up last month as defendant in a Denver (Colo.) matrimonial swindle, the Post-Dispatch was told today.

Efforts by attorneys for three other St. Louis-area women to have him held for authorities here were unsuccessful. They have refused to prefer criminal charges against him. The three women are reported to have been bilked of $115,000 by the 77-year-old smooth-talking Willms.

After pleading no contest in Denver district court on April 17 to a charge of grand larceny, Willms was placed on probation and returned to New Orleans, where he now is reported to be living with his latest wife.

In March 1935, Willms married Mrs. Mary Dorsey Cook, widow of Ellis W. Cook, who was president of the firm manufacturing Cook's Imperial champagne at the time of his death in 1928. The ceremony was performed at a Bowling Green (Mo.) Presbyterian church, and Willms moved into his bride's home at 5783 Lindell boulevard, an imposing residence facing Forest Park.

Willms, who became president of the ABC Sand & Gravel Corp., was reported missing to police by his wife in November 1952. He had gone to Covington, Ky., and then to Gary, Ind., and was reported to be carrying a large sum of money.

Mrs. Mary Dorsey Cook Willms told the Post-Dispatch yesterday that she is "through" with Willms and was no longer seeking him.

Willms was charged at Denver with stealing a $2500 diamond ring belonging to the first husband of an East Denver woman he married last August, following a whirlwind courtship. They lived together 10 days, and then he departed with the ring, it was stated.

He was granted probation because of ill health, and in consideration of his paying for a divorce obtained by the Denver wife, and for reimbursing the sheriff for the expense of transporting him from New Orleans to Denver.

Willms is a native of Effingham, Ill., and has a police record extending back to 1923, when he was sentenced to 30 days in jail in Illinois for larceny. In 1932 he was sentenced to one to 10 years in a California penitentiary on a charge of grand theft growing out of a matrimonial swindle, records show.

At Denver Willms was reported to have admitted to authorities that he had wives in Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee and Louisiana. He was accompanied to Denver by his New Orleans wife, who posted $2000 bond for him.

The missing persons report describes Willms as 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 230 pounds and having white hair, blue eyes and fair complexion.

2 BIG DISPERSAL FANS INSTALLED AT PARK OPERA

Municipal Opera's two huge dispersal fans, designed to air-condition the outdoor theater in Forest Park this summer, were installed today at either side of the lower reserved seat sections in readiness for the opening performance of Lehár's "The Merry Widow" June 2.

The fans, each set on a concrete base, are made of aluminum and consist of a 9½-foot propeller atop a 30-foot tower. With propellers turning at 1200 revolutions a minute, the machines are designed to bring more than a million cubic feet an hour of dehumidified air from the upper atmosphere to ground level.

Dr. Charles A. Thomas, president of Monsanto Chemical Co., decided after attending performances weekly last summer that something could be done to make the theater "an even more pleasant place on warm St. Louis nights," an opera spokesman said.

Dr. Thomas's daughter was in the singing chorus. Monsanto engineers suggested the fans, which are similar to those used at airports and on turnpikes to disperse fog. The fans will operate from 6 to 8 o'clock each evening of the season and during intermissions. They will be silent, of course, during performances.

PRINCESS HOTEL FURNISHINGS SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION

Furnishings of the Princess Hotel, which will be razed in the clearing of the Plaza area for redevelopment, were sold at public auction today.

The sale, at the hotel, 14 North Eighteenth street, attracted about 12 bidders, mostly second-hand furniture and scrap metal dealers. Brass railing in the lobby brought a bid of $8. Proceeds of a $1,500,000 bond issue voted in 1953 are being used to pay part of the city's share of the cost of the Plaza project. The redevelopment, however, will be done with private capital.

BULLET HOLES FOUND IN CAR OF

Louis police she saw shots fired from a green automobile at a Cadillac sedan resembling Mueller's in the 2100 block of State street early Tuesday morning. The two cars had been driving side by side when the green automobile suddenly pulled away. Someone in this machine fired back at the Cadillac, she related.

East St. Louis police, who plan to question the man who prepared Haye's plane for flight, did not learn how Haye got to Park's Airport Tuesday night.

Called Saturday, Monday.

Mrs. Haye said she had not seen her husband since Friday, although he called Saturday afternoon and again Monday. It was not unusual for him to leave home for several days at a time, she pointed out. She told authorities she thought he had left the St. Louis area "to avoid any further trouble."

A divorce suit was filed in circuit court at Clayton last Thursday against Haye by Mrs. Shirley Haye. Her petition, alleging general indignities, said they were married June 24, 1930, and separated May 11.

Mrs. Haye seeks custody of a child, Jobet Lynn Haye, 18 months old, in addition to alimony.

A man "with a gruff voice" telephoned Haye's home Monday night, asked for "Chick," and informed Mrs. Haye he was from out of town and "had something" for her husband, she said. The caller did not identify himself.

Mrs. Haye told Capt. Newbold and Mueller that her husband and Wortman had threatened each other after Haye was fired in January as manager of Wortman's Terrace Lounge in East St. Louis.

The firing, accompanied by Wortman's warning that Haye might be shot if he did not "stay on the other side of the river," was said to have been caused by a beating administered to a St. Louis policeman, attending a New Year's Eve party at the night club while off duty.

Took Mueller With Him.

In leaving the Terrace Lounge, at 127 Collinsville avenue, Haye took Mueller, doorman at the club, with him.

The two men then went into the baseball and horse-race betting field, using the apartment at 801A North Forsyth street as the base of operations. They were assisted by their downstairs neighbor, J. Fred Koenig, confessed black market whiskey dealer and former St. Louis politician.

In Haye's automobile at his St. Louis county home were found 25 baseball betting cards. Authorities today were checking names and telephone numbers found in notebooks in the bullet-riddled automobile and at Haye's home. Some of the individuals listed were engaged in handbook or policy operations, police discovered.

Police today questioned William Welch, described as a present or former operator of the Torch Club, notorious tavern three miles north of East St. Louis on U.S. Highway 66-67. Welch is an associate of Haye and Mueller.

"Big spenders."

Until about two weeks ago, before the East St. Louis apartment was taken over by the two men, Mueller had been living at Haye's home. Police have been curious as to the source of income of the two men, enabling them to have Cadillacs in addition to Haye's private plane. Both are known as "big spenders."

A gambling raid was led personally by Police Commissioner Russell T. Beebe of East St. Louis May 4 on quarters above the Terrace Lounge, the headquarters for Wortman's move to take over baseball and horse-race betting throughout the St. Louis area.

Three days after this setback to Wortman's plan, the automobile of Commissioner Beebe was bombed.

Reports current in the underworld are that Wortman and his hoodlums suspected Mueller and Haye of arranging the bombing to cast suspicion on Wortman.

HEARING ON RULE CHANGES FOR COUNTY CIVIL SERVICE

A public hearing on proposed changes in St. Louis County Civil Service Commission rules will be held, probably later this month, Jackson F. Adams, a commission member, said today. About 500 employees of the hospital, health, welfare and recreation departments are under civil service.

Proposals were agreed on last night at a joint meeting of the commission, heads of departments concerned and county council members.

They would permit department heads to pay employees in cash for overtime and holiday work unless early compensating time off could be made available; would eliminate one-week vacations after six months' employment, and would permit employees to be fired without prior notice to the personnel department in "extreme or emergency" cases.

A United States Army band from Washington will present a concert at 3 p.m. Representatives of the armed services will be on hand to answer questions.

HOUSE DEFEATS
STATE SALES TAX

Bills Sent to Governor.

Among bills passed in the Senate yesterday and sent to the Governor for approval was one which would permit appointment of probate court commissioners in St. Louis, St. Louis county and Jackson county.

Another would increase the salary of the state commissioner of insurance from $7500 to $10,000 a year.

House members argued back and forth for more than two hours today over the controversial bill to increase the state sales tax to 2½ cents from 2 cents on the dollar, debating at length and then voting down three crippling amendments.

One amendment was adopted. Proposed by Representative Christian F. Stipp (Rep.), Carrollton, it would earmark 50 per cent of revenue derived from the sales tax for public school purposes and another 25 per cent of it for old-age assistance. The balance would go into the general revenue fund for other uses.

Amendments defeated included one which would place levy of the tax at the wholesale, instead of the retail, level. Another would have exempted clothing costing less than $20 and food, including meals bought in restaurants, from the tax. A third would have eliminated requirement that merchants pay the levy on their gross sales and would have permitted payment only of the tax collected.

Temper Grow Short.

Temperatures at times grew short during the extended argument and several attempts were made by opponents of the bill to terminate discussion on the basis of Speaker Roy Hamlin's repeated assertions that the bill was not before the House and they were just wasting time. Proponents contend the bill is properly before the House, despite the fact the original copy is missing, because a certified copy of the Senate-approved measure was obtained.

POSTAL PAY RISE
MEASURE URGED

President that such a test has arisen although he has vetoed several dozen bills. Most of them had been of a minor nature.

Tuesday, the Senate approved and agreed to limit debate to three hours. It requires an affirmative vote by two-thirds of those present and voting to override a veto.

Johnson declined to predict to reporters the chances of overriding but Knowland said he was confident the veto would be sustained. He was joined in this by Senator Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, the assistant Republican leader.

Knowland said he believed Congress then would promptly enact a 7.5 per cent bill, which the President has indicated he would approve. Senator Frank Carlson of Kansas, ranking Republican on the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, has such a bill ready.

It was the second time since Eisenhower had vetoed a postal pay increase. Last year, he pocket vetoed a 5 per cent pay increase. The veto stuck.

Samuel E. Klein, president of the post office clerks, got out a statement calling the veto "a travesty of justice." He asked that Congress override it.

Senator Olin D. Johnston (Dem.), South Carolina, chairman of the Civil Service Committee which handled the bill, said, also in a statement, that "it is shameful that these employees should be denied for a second time — by presidential action — a pay raise to which they are justly deserving. One must conclude that President Eisenhower and his Cabinet of millionaires do not embrace the workingman with the same warmth of feeling as they do the Dixons and Yates."

Johnston's reference was to the power contract the Administration made last year which was generally known as the Dixon-Yates contract.

By the United Press.

The vetoed measure would cost the Treasury $179,000,000.

Sponsored by the Democrats, the measure represented a compromise between a 10 per cent pay boost originally voted by the Senate and an 8.2 per cent raise first favored by the House.

Both houses passed the compromise with more than enough votes to override a veto, if the voters do not change sides. The House passed it first, 328 to 66. The Senate followed suit, 66 to 11. Some members of Congress said privately that it was unlikely the same margin could be mustered to override Mr. Eisenhower's veto.

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield had served notice during House debate that he would recommend a veto.

in London," Talbott said.

He said that Director Allen Dulles of the Central Intelligence Agency informed him of a British press report of the new Russian aircraft and he decided to make the same facts known here.

Talbott said he was surprised at the dispute this caused about relative American and Soviet airpower.

However, Talbott said, the Russian advance "makes us sit back and take notice."

He said he is confident that United States production of the new B-52 jet bomber will get into high gear at once "with a force of some 200,000 working on them."

Senator Chavez (Dem.), New Mexico, chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee which held the closed-door inquiry, later made a statement with Talbott, Twining and other top Air Force leaders listening.

"The American people can rest assured that in both offensive and defensive air power we are just as good and much better than any other nation in the world," Chavez said.

Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, said the conference convinced him "we are stronger in the air than any nation in the world, including Russia." He added that plans "call for holding that lead."

ADMIRALTY BACKS
BRITISH CRUISER'S
RIGHT TO 2 CATS

PORTSMOUTH, England, May 19 (UP)—The British navy reversed itself and ruled today that seamen aboard the cruiser Cleopatra may keep a cat and kitten.

Thus ended an uproar among the sailors which began when an officer filed a line around the neck of Butch, the cruiser's mascot, and threw the cat overboard. An inquiry followed which led to an order for removal of all cats from the Cleopatra.

However, the Admiralty reconsidered and decreed that according to tradition sailors serving on Her Majesty's ships are entitled to keep cats as pets.

So, the Admiralty said, seamen aboard the Cleopatra may relax the guard they mounted over their cat and kitten.

The complement of two cats for a ship of the Cleopatra's size seems about right," an Admiralty spokesman said. "No further action is contemplated."

YOUTH CREDITED WITH SAVING BOY BURIED IN PILE OF SAND

Efforts of a 15-year-old Alton youth were believed to have saved Robert Luken, 9, from suffocation yesterday after the Luken boy was buried in a large pile of sand at the Mississippi Lime Co., on McAdams Memorial Highway, Alton, police reported.

The Luken youth was climbing the sand pile with a playmate when a slide occurred, covering him. Warren Wood, a student at West Junior High School, heard Luken's friend, Tom Hackworth, 12, cry for help. Wood and Hackworth uncovered the boy's head and shoulders and Wood applied artificial respiration.

Robert finally was revived with an inhalator and regained consciousness on the way to St. Joseph Hospital. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Luken, 432 Foulds avenue, Alton.

WILLS DAUGHTERS
'APPRECIATION OF BEAUTIFUL IN LIFE'

The will of James Rhey McCord, filed in probate court today, left to his three daughters "an appreciation of the beautiful in life, in whatever form it may be found."

McCord, a retired advertising salesman who was found dead in a bathtub last Saturday at his home, 4241 Maryland avenue, also bequeathed to his daughters "the love inherited from my mother for all of nature's gifts."

"The great open spaces, free from the contamination of human discontent and bickering; the trees, the flowers, the birds, the sunshine, the streams; and lastly, an affection that will endure forever."

An inventory has not yet been filed. The children are Mrs. M. B. Logie of Webster Groves, Mrs. Leland E. Cole Jr. of San Diego, Calif., and Sister Barbara, of Our Lady of Victory missionaries, Ida, Mich. The estate was left equally to the first two, with a note that Sister Barbara's order does not permit its members to own property.

TAKAMATSU, Japan, May 19 (AP)—The Japanese National Railways today offered a $27.28 reward for the recovery of the bodies of each of 10 persons still missing in last week's sinking of the ferry Shion Maru.

One hundred fifty-eight bodies have been found and about 775 persons were rescued.

The Shion Maru collided with another ferry in heavy fog May 11 and sank in five minutes, before most of the 350 school children aboard could reach life jackets.

CITES $9,000,000 RISE IN BOND HOLDINGS SINCE WAR

United States citizens today hold nearly nine billion dollars more in E and H Government savings bonds than at the end of World War II, Elmer C. Smith, area sales manager for the Missouri savings bond division, said last night.

Speaking on the "Meet Your Federal Agencies" series on Station KWK-TV, Smith said $9 billion dollars in bonds now are held compared with $50,000,000 in 1945. He praised the work of volunteers in promoting bond sales.

SENATE PASSES REVISED PAROLE, PROBATION BILL

Many Reforms Stricken From House Measure — Parts of Present Law Retained.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 19.—The Senate passed today a drastically revised bill to reorganize Missouri's parole and probation system, striking out many of the reforms proposed in the original House-approved version.

The Senate adopted a substitute measure which had been recommended by its committee on correctional institutions, and then passed the measure, 26 to 0. The substitute proposal eliminated a provision which would have given circuit judges the right to fix the punishment of persons convicted of crimes, and to permit juries to fix the punishment only when it assesses the death penalty.

The Senate restored the present system under which Missouri juries not only determine the guilt or innocence of the defendant, but fix the penalty.

Provisions Questioned. Senator J. F. Patterson (Dem.), Caruthersville, chairman of the committee which revised the bill, said lawyer-members of his committee questioned whether the House-approved change would be constitutional. The committee felt that it would be improper, in any event, to attempt to revise the criminal code in this bill, contending this would conflict with many statutes specifying the types of penalties which may be imposed for various crimes.

The Senate substitute proposal also eliminated provisions calling for the indeterminate sentencing of persons convicted of crimes.

It restored the present law giving the Governor the sole power to appoint the three members of the State Board of Probation and Parole. The House had proposed that board members be named by the Governor from a list of persons nominated by a special panel of judges and professional men, under a system similar to the nonpartisan court plan.

The major improvement retained in the measure calls for broader program of pre-sentence investigations. The bill provides that a convicted person may be released on bond while the investigation is being made, and the trial court may release the prisoner on probation.

Parole Provision. The bill also permits an inmate of any state penal institution to apply for a parole after serving one-third of his sentence or 12 months, whichever ever is the shorter period. It authorizes the parole board, however, to grant paroles before the minimum period is served, if in its judgment the inmate is ready for release.

The Senate also cut the proposed $10,000-a-year salaries of the parole board members. It provided that the chairman be paid $7,500 and the other members $6,500 a year. The board members now receive $5,000 annually.

The House measure was based on recommendations of the National Association of Probation and Parole, which made a study of the Missouri system at the request of the House. The bill was sponsored by Representative Chalm H. Zimballist (Dem.), of St. Louis county.

The House is in a position, because of the session is about to end, where it will have to accept the Senate measure if any change is made in the Missouri law. There is not sufficient time remaining for a Senate-House tug-of-war over the proposal.

Penal Reorganization. Another House approved bill, providing for extensive reorganization of Missouri's penal system and designed to give the state a modern, more efficient Department of Corrections, was passed in the Senate yesterday 30 to 0.

The Senate had adopted a series of amendments designed to bring the proposed new law into conformity with existing requirements.

The House today refused to concur in most of the Senate amendments and requested appointment of a joint Senate-House conference committee to iron out differences in opinion.

The amendments restored to the bill provisions of the existing law, which had been dropped from the bill, placing employees of the prison system under the state merit system, as required by the Constitution.

House Version. As originally approved in the House, the bill provided that directors of prison farms, industries and inmate education would have been included under the merit system as well as the other employees. The Senate Committee on Correctional Institutions, however, recommended amendment of the measure to exclude them from the merit system so that the director of correction would have full authority to hire or fire them.

The Senate adopted two of these recommended amendments, removing the directors of prison industries and inmate education from merit system coverage, but left the director of prison farms under the system.

Senator Edgar J. Keating (Dem.), Kansas City, opposed removing this position from the protection of the merit system, pointing out that he did so to protect the present director of prison farms, Paul Renz, who has held the position since 1953.

Release of Prisoners. Another provision of the present law included in the bill through amendment permits release of prisoners from the penitentiary for good behavior after they have served three-fourths of their terms without being subject to parole supervision. The penal revision bill, drafted by a special Senate-House committee, carries out major recommendations of the penal survey commission appointed by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly to study the prison system following the disastrous riots at the penitentiary here last fall.

It provides for the creation of an industrial board to develop and supervise prison industries with a view toward expansion of them to provide work for more inmates and produce as many items needed by other state agencies as possible.

Development of better educational and rehabilitation programs is stressed.

The bill would require also the appointment of a resident physician at the prison.

It would fix the annual salary of the director of corrections at $15,000 instead of $7,500 as at present and permit hiring of a non-resident of the state to fill the job. This was provided in the hope of obtaining a trained penologist to fill the position.

The office of the director of corrections would be maintained away from the penitentiaries of any of the penal institutions, under terms of the bill, and the director would serve in an administrative capacity, leaving the actual operation of the individual institutions to the wardens. The director's office now is at the penitentiary.

Meanwhile, House members at a night session refused to adopt a Senate-House conference committee report on a companion measure which provides for creation of a permanent joint legislative committee to conduct a continuing study of the needs of the penal system. The House asked for a further conference.

The measure was sent to conference committee originally because of a House amendment which would have prevented any member of the proposed committee from appearing before the board of probation and parole in behalf of any inmate of a penal institution. The conference committee report recommended that the House drop the amendment, but members, following a brief debate, voted 51 to 47 against adopting the report.

Finally passed by the House and sent to the Governor for approval was a bill to permit voluntary commitment to mental hospitals. It is similar to one passed at the last legislative session, but later declared unconstitutional by the Missouri Supreme Court. The present bill corrected those sections of the former law which had been criticized by the court.

NEED FOR ENGINEERS, SCIENTISTS STRESSED

William C. Foster Urges Training on the State or Local Basis.

America's failure to train sufficient numbers of scientists and engineers is a pressing national problem but can be solved chiefly on the state and local basis, William C. Foster, president of the Manufacturing Chemists' Association, said here today.

Foster, who served as head of the Marshall Plan and later as Deputy Secretary of Defense from 1951 to 1953, told the St. Louis Rotary Club at Hotel Statler that the nation's educational system must be improved as a matter of urgent necessity. "We do not have time to the rise, define or cogitate indefinitely," he warned, reminding his audience that Russia graduated nearly 50,000 engineers in 1954, compared with less than 20,000 by this country.

Foster said the United States and Russia are now engaged in a "quiet but horrible" struggle to determine which shall be first to develop an intercontinental ballistic missile. "Inasmuch as the winner might be in position to dictate terms, he said, this one development might decide the future."

"Some of the best scientists in the free world are working on our side," he said, "but the chilling fact is that in Russia there are scientists equally capable, and more of them are at work on these devices."

Foster said the nub of the problem was to get more potential scientists and engineers started in the right direction, education-wise, at the ninth and tenth-grade levels where boys and girls determine what they are going to do with their lives.

"They are not choosing science and mathematics courses in very large numbers," he said. "I do not believe this is entirely because they think these courses are too tough."

Foster said the nation's present annual school bill of less than ten billion dollars was not enough and predicted that expenditures would have to be doubled by 1965. He called for higher pay and prestige for science teachers. Industry, he said, is not receiving nearly the quantity of trained men it could absorb with profit.

Bids to Be Sought on Gas System For Barracks Housing Project

County Authority to Determine Whether It Can Get Lower Price Than That on Present Equipment.

The St. Louis County Housing Authority will ask for bids tomorrow on the installation of a butane gas storage and distribution system at its housing project at Jefferson Barracks, Eugene E. LaVigne, chairman of the Authority, announced today.

Specifications on the bids, which will be opened June 10 at the Jefferson Barracks office of the Authority, will include 183 storage tanks with a total capacity of 186,000 gallons and a system of service lines, pumps and other equipment to bring the gas to individual housing units, LaVigne said.

Taking of the bids is to determine whether the Authority can obtain a lower price than that quoted for an option it has to buy the present now installed gas system. This equipment is owned by the Texas Equipment Co., headed by Charles K. Walter, the present supplier of gas to the housing facility.

Present Setup Criticized. Determination to own its own storage and distribution facilities at the housing project was reached by the Authority after the present arrangement was severely criticized by the county grand jury last April 30. The grand jury said ownership of the equipment by Walter enabled him to outbid any other potential suppliers and to obtain a higher price than should be paid.

LaVigne said that as soon as the Authority becomes owner of the gas facilities, it will ask for bids on the gas supply. He said the purchase would be financed from a reserve fund of $130,000. The present option from Walter does not include three 6000-gallon tanks which the Authority does not consider necessary, he said.

Meanwhile, the County Council was informed yesterday that it has the right to appoint members of the Authority and to remove them for cause.

In an opinion by the County Counselor's office requested by the council, it was stated, however, that the present Housing Authority, members of which were appointed by County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews with the approval of the council, was a validly constituted body.

Written by Assistant County Counselor C. Wheeler Detjen.

the opinion further held that former County Counselor John J. McAtee had not violated the terms of the County Charter in acting as attorney for the Housing Authority while serving as county counselor.

McAtee had said all his services to the authority had been performed outside of his regular hours in the County Counselor's office. The opinion held the charter required the official to devote the "usual hours" to his office so far as necessary to perform his duties.

Criticized by Grand Jury. Criticism of McAtee's employment by the authority had been contained in a grand jury report of April 30 which also had urged the ouster of any members of the authority who had been neglectful of their duties. Accounting practices also came under fire.

County Counselor Herbert C. Funke was directed to prepare a resolution asking the Housing Authority to have a complete audit made of its operations since its establishment in 1952. The audit would be made by an outside certified public accountant. The resolution is to be presented at next week's meeting of the Council. A poll of the six members present yesterday indicated it would have a favorable reception.

The Council received a report by County Auditor Clarence H. Hackmann on the accounting practices of the Housing Authority. He reported a modern voucher accounting system had been installed about 10 months ago and is being checked monthly by the certified public accountants who installed it. Cash receipts have been placed under internal control and cash disbursements now require two signatures accompanied by approval vouchers and invoices, Hackmann said.

A recommendation by Matthews that bids recently received on the job of revaluing

St. Louis county real estate be analyzed by the special Council committee on reassessment was adopted. After the analysis, the committee will make recommendations on awarding a contract.

AFGHAN-PAKISTANI PEACE PLAN ON INSULTS AGREED ON

KABUL, Afghanistan, May 19 (AP)—Afghanistan will accept a proposal aimed at settling a dispute with Pakistan over alleged insults to diplomatic establishments in both countries, government officials announced today.

The proposals, however, do not affect the main issue clouding relations between the two neighboring Asian countries—Kabul's demand for the establishment of an independent state of Pushtoonistan for Pathan tribesmen in Pakistan's north-west frontier areas.

The peace suggestions have been drawn up for submission to the two governments by a Saudi Arabian Commission which is now in Karachi after visiting Kabul.

GEN. TAYLOR SAYS PEACE RESTS ON MILITARY POWER

TOKYO, May 19 (AP)—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, newly appointed Army chief of staff, today said peace in the present world "can be assured only by adequate military power."

and United States Far East commander said he hoped Americans at home realized the need for maintaining continuous military strength "for an indefinite period."

Taylor recorded his remarks for broadcast to United States Armed Forces in the Far East on Armed Forces Day, Saturday.

POPE SUFFERS WEAK SPELL AFTER LENGTHY AUDIENCE

VATICAN CITY, May 19 (AP)—Vatican sources reported today that Pope Plus XII suffered a 15-minute spell of weakness and dizziness following a general audience of more than an hour yesterday for 35,000 Italian farmers. The sources said the 70-year-old Pontiff had recovered and today showed no signs of weakness. The audience yesterday was the biggest the Pope has held since his grave collapse with a stomach disorder last December. The subsequent weakness was blamed on his unusual exertion.

APARTMENT PLANNED FACING FOREST PARK

Parkview Hotel to Be Razed for 16-Story Building on Kingshighway.

Plans for construction of a 16-story apartment building at the southeast corner of Kingshighway and West Pine boulevard were announced today. Now on the site is the four-story Parkview Hotel, demolition of which is scheduled to begin immediately.

The building, facing Forest Park, is to be called The Frontenac and have 213 apartments of two to eight rooms each, with two parking levels for automobiles.

The cost is estimated at $6,000,000. Construction is expected to be completed late next year.

It will be built by Joseph A. Campagna and John J. Campagna, brothers, and sold to the Knights of Columbus on completion. Luke E. Hart, St. Louis attorney and Supreme Knight of the organization, said this will be the first major investment in Missouri by the Knights of Columbus.

The Campagnas built the Montclair Apartments, one block south of the Frontenac site, which were finished in 1951, and their second project in this area, is a doctors' office building, now under construction at Euclid avenue and West Pine.

The Parkview, which has 107 rooms, was built about the time of the 1904 St. Louis World Fair and has been closed for approximately one year. The site, purchased by the Campagnas from the Hanrose Investment Co., was considered for some time as the place for a medical office building.

He was 70 years old.

UNIONS SAY RHEE KEEPS MEN FROM WORLD MEETING

VIENNA, May 19 (AP)—The International Confederation of Free Trade Unions says President Syngman Rhee's government has refused to let South Koreans attend the ICFU world congress opening here Friday.

The executive board of the non-Communist labor organization adopted a sharp protest last night against the Korean refusal of exit permits. The board also expressed indignation at South Korea's expulsion May 12 of a Norwegian representative sent by ICFU to advise Korean trade unions.

Top American labor leaders on hand for the congress—ICFTU's fourth—include President George Meany of the American Federation of Labor, vice president Thomas Kennedy of the United Mine Workers, president David Dubinsky of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians.

U.S. IS CALLED UNPREPARED FOR H-BOMB ATTACK

Senate Committee Urges President to Develop Civil Defense Program.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—The Senate Armed Services Committee today approved a report which declares the nation is unprepared for an H-bomb attack and recommends that the President "assume personal responsibility" in developing an adequate civil defense program.

The report was written by a civil defense subcommittee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee). It said that extensive hearings had developed that:

Millions of lives possibly could be lost due to the inability to evacuate the cities and care for the evacuees.

The country is becoming increasingly vulnerable to H-bomb attack due to Russian development of thermonuclear weapons and heavy jet bombers.

Evacuation of target areas is the only alternative in case of attack and there are no adequate evacuation plans for such areas.

There are no present plans for feeding evacuated populations.

The country is medically unprepared to meet an attack. Knowledge concerning radioactive fallout creates an added dimension to civil defense problems.

The "relatively insignificant" place occupied by the Federal Civil Defense Administration creates basic difficulties which, if unresolved, could make unlikely any successful operation of the agency.

Meanwhile President Eisenhower directed that all federal agencies co-operate fully in civil defense tests to be held throughout the United States June 15 and 16.

The exercises will send some top Government officials to "dispersal posts" which have been set up away from their regular offices for use in an emergency.

The President will take part in the tests, but the White House said there was no definite information yet as to whether Mr. Eisenhower will go to a dispersal post.

In a memorandum to the heads of all federal agencies yesterday, the President said: "Vigilance and preparedness under all circumstances all of the time is essential to the civil defense of our country. Every community and every citizen must be ready to act swiftly and with confident knowledge of what they are about. Not only will such vigilance and preparedness minimize the effects of any disaster, it can powerfully deter aggression itself."

"Therefore, I do hereby direct each department and agency of the executive branch of the Government, both at the national and field level, to co-operate fully with federal, state and local civil defense authorities."

The President also called for the temporary release from their jobs of all federal employees who are enrolled in local civil defense organizations, so they may perform assigned duties in the exercises.

GUATEMALA HEAD OPPOSED TO ARCHBISHOP'S DEMAND

GUATEMALA, May 19 (AP)—President Carlos Castillo Armas says he opposes the demands of the Roman Catholic archbishop of Guatemala that his Church be given a pre-eminent position in the country's new constitution.

The President told a news conference yesterday he does not favor granting the demands

Archbishop Mariano Rossell made last week in a letter to the Constituent Assembly now drafting a new constitution. The cleric called also for Catholic religious education in the public schools.

The President said religious education "belongs to the home and the Church." Although Catholicism is Guatemala's prevailing religion, the country has no established church and all churches have complete freedom of worship.

2 DEAD, 9 MISSING IN BOAT ACCIDENT IN PHILIPPINES

MANILA, May 19 (AP)—Nine persons are missing in shark-infested waters, two are dead and four injured out of 22 aboard a sailing boat rammed and sunk last night by an inter-island steamer.

The steamer brought the dead, injured and seven unharmed survivors to Manila. The accident occurred in pitch darkness in the Verde Island passage between Luzon and Mindoro islands.

HOUSE PUTS OFF FURTHER ACTION ON RESERVE BILL

Vinson Keeps Alive Measure After Deadlock on Anti-Segregation Issue.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—Startled over an anti-segregation issue, the House today sidetracked consideration of a bill carrying out President Eisenhower's plan to strengthen the military reserves.

After losing a last-minute effort to compromise on the segregation problem—in a frank move to save the bill—Representative Carl Vinson (Dem.), Georgia, won support for a swift maneuver to postpone further action on the measure.

The House voted, 161-to-124, to pass on to other business. This gives Vinson, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, authority to bring up the reserve measure at a later date and forestalled a growing move to send it back to committee, practically killing it for this session.

Vinson Proposal Loses. After two hours of debate, the House voted down, 167 to 143, a proposal by Vinson to eliminate two anti-segregation amendments it had temporarily written into the measure yesterday.

Then Vinson got the House to suspend further consideration of the bill at present. As a result, the measure remains on the House calendar as unfinished business. Actually, this means further action has been indefinitely postponed.

In the meantime, supporters obviously hope to be able to compromise the deadlock and for emotions to cool before calling the measure back for action.

The anti-segregation amendments, offered by Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem.), New York, and tentatively approved yesterday would:

Prohibit the segregation or exclusion of anyone from National Guard or reserve units on grounds of "race, creed, color or national origin." The standing vote was 126 to 87. Powell is one of three Negro House members.

Prohibit the assignment of anyone going into service, after the bill is passed, to any foreign country with criminal jurisdiction over American forces. The standing vote on this amendment, by Representative Frank T. Bow (Rep.), Ohio, was 175 to 56.

Halleck's Warning. Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana, deputy House Republican leader, had warned he believed that the reserve bill would be killed, if it retained the amendments.

The bill itself is backed by President Eisenhower and leaders of both parties. It would authorize expansion of the active military reserves to 2,900,000 men by 1960 to supplement active armed forces.

In a major test of training provisions, the House defeated 145 to 109, an amendment which would have permitted college students to discharge all their active military obligations by attending three-month summer encampments during each of their four school years.

Representative Graham Barden (Dem.), North Carolina, the sponsor, said this would insure youths a chance to complete their education. Opponents said it would discriminate in favor of college students, would be too costly to operate and would wreck the attempted buildup of reserves.

The House defeated also an amendment by Representative James Roosevelt (Dem.), California, to reduce from eight to four years the total active duty and reserve time required of those in service. The vote was 127 to 88.

Bow's office said the United States now has treaties granting local criminal authority, with all nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Yugoslavia and Japan.

Bow said his purpose is to "insure justice" to American forces serving overseas. The question of whether foreign nations should have direct legal jurisdiction over American forces has been hotly debated in past years in both Houses.

Defense of Rights. Bow said: "An American soldier drafted into service against his will and sent to a foreign nation without his consent should not be turned over to authorities of that foreign nation and deprived of his constitutional rights for infractions of laws of that nation. I do not believe any young man should be deprived of his rights as an American citizen while serving far from home in defense of these rights."

The Senate Agriculture Committee defeated by one vote yesterday an effort to force final congressional action this year on a move to restore farm price supports to a fixed, high level.

A reported dispute within the Administration over minimum wage proposals broke into the open yesterday when the Department of Labor refused to recommend that specific new groups of workers be included within the minimum wage law.

Senator Paul Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, chairman of a Senate Labor subcommittee, charged the Administration with "an attempt to weasel out" of what he called its previous recommendation that protection of the wage floor be extended to more than 2,000,000 retail and wholesale workers.

should not be extended to them in addition to the 24,000,000 already covered, and was proposing a boost in the minimum, now 75 cents an hour, to 90 cents.

Rothman said repeatedly he did not think the department has changed its view one bit on the matter.

Douglas recalled that on April 14, he asked Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, "They (the Administration) are recommending the expanded coverage, then?" Mitchell replied: "That is right."

Spokesmen for American cities urged a Senate Banking subcommittee authorize 200,000 public housing units in the next year—six times what President Eisenhower proposes.

SOUTH KOREA TO OUST MARRIED BUDDHIST MONKS

SEOUL, May 19 (AP)—The South Korean government said today it would remove all married Buddhist monks from their temples by the end of June.

The announcement, made under orders of President Syngman Rhee, did not say whether force would be used to drive married monks from more than 1000 temples.

Rhee's decision was a victory for some 500 unmarried monks and nuns who went on a hunger strike to dramatize their plea.

WELCOME URGED BY STEVENSON TO PARTY REBELS

He Makes Bid to Strayed
Democrats to Return
—Mitchell Still Adamant in Stand.

CHICAGO, May 19 (AP)—The Democrats, says Adlai Stevenson, will be a united party in 1956 and he believes "those who have strayed and returned in good faith should be welcomed back to the Democratic fold."

The 1952 Democratic presidential nominee told reporters yesterday that for the last two years he had done "all I could to assure a united Democratic party in 1956."

"I am sure," Stevenson added, "that is the wish and intention of all good Democrats and I firmly believe this is what we're going to have."

The former Illinois Governor, returning from a month-long business trip to Africa, was interviewed by reporters at Midway Airport.

Party Loyalty Issue.
Asked about recent statements of party leaders regarding loyalty to the party's nominee by convention delegates in their home states, he said:

"I believe that those who have strayed and returned in good faith should be welcomed back to the Democratic fold. I am against loyalty oaths but am very much in favor of loyalty and good faith in politics, and I believe a delegate who takes part in any Democratic decision-making process bears a serious obligation to abide by the majority decision unless his conscience forbids him to."

Stephen A. Mitchell, the party's former national chairman, recently said a floor fight would be made in the 1956 convention, if necessary, to prevent seating of any or all three southern Democratic leaders who were delegates to the 1952 convention which nominated Stevenson but supported Dwight Eisenhower for President.

Mitchell, advised of Stevenson's statement yesterday, said he still would predict the convention credentials committee will reject Gov. Allen Shivers of Texas, Gov. Robert F. Kennon of Louisiana, James F. Byrnes, former governor of South Carolina, and other 1952 "apostates."

"They are symbols of disloyalty," Mitchell said. "They are Judas goats who betrayed their own party after being elected to positions of leadership by that party. I'm not going to let them participate if I can help it."

Asked if he plans to become a presidential candidate in 1956, Stevenson told reporters all he knows about that "is what you fellows have been writing." He also said there are several capable men for the nomination. Among those, he named Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

Switchboard Without Cords.

LONDON (INS)—Britain's first cordless telephone switchboard has now been brought into use at the Thonet exchange at Margate, Kent county. Operators press buttons and keys instead of plugging in. The new switchboard means faster service.

FCC LETS STATION
TEST 'PHONEVISION'

Temporary Authority Given to WMAL-TV for Broadcasters Session.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—The Federal Communication Commission has authorized the Washington Star's television station, WMAL, to conduct experimental broadcasts of "Phonevision" system for pay-for-as-you-see TV.

The temporary authority will be good for the period May 25 to June 24. It is being set up at this time to permit Zenith to demonstrate its apparatus to delegates who will be attending the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters convention next week.

The system also will be demonstrated to members of Congress and the FCC on special receivers to be provided the company for this purpose.

The "Phonevision" broadcast will be limited to 8 a.m.-12:30 p.m., before WMAL-TV's regular program schedule. The broadcasts cannot be received on regular sets.

"Phonevision" is one of several subscription TV systems which have been placed before the FCC with requests for approval for regular commercial use. The commission said the authority given WMAL-TV should not create any public impression that the commission has or will approve any system of subscription television.

Samuel Liebmann Dies.
NEW YORK, May 19 (AP)—Samuel Liebmann, former president of Liebmann Breweries, Inc., died yesterday. He was 81 years old. Liebmann served the brewery, founded by his grandfather, in numerous capacities for 35 years. He retired in 1924 to devote himself to charitable work.

NO INDICTMENT OF MAYOCK ON U.S. TAX CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, May 19 (AP)—A United States grand jury yesterday declined to indict Welburn Mayock, former general counsel of the Democratic National Committee, in connection with a complaint alleging evasion of income taxes. The Government said the complaint would be dismissed.

Mayock, a Washington and Los Angeles attorney, signed a waiver of immunity and appeared voluntarily before the grand jury to deny that he evaded $25,716 in taxes of himself and his wife for 1948.

Mayock told reporters the Government was "persecuting" him and said the case stemmed from a payment of $65,000 before the 1952 presidential campaign by New York financier William S. Lasdon. Mayock said $30,000 of this went to the Democratic national campaign fund and he and two other men divided the rest as fees for some income tax work they did for Lasdon. He said he listed the $17,000 he received in this deal in his tax return.

Concrete Mixer Stolen. DALLAS, Tex., May 19 (AP)—A man called "not very bashful" by his victim stole a red concrete mixer yesterday from T. C. Clawson. Clawson said the thief came into his backyard, hitched the big mixer to a battered automobile and made a clattering escape.

UAW CHARGES FBI IS USED TO FRIGHTEN UNION

Republicans Trying to Prevent Expression of Political Views, Officer Says.

DETROIT, May 19 (UP)—The CIO United Auto Workers Union charged today that the Republican party was using the FBI in "an attempt to frighten the union and its members from freely expressing political views."

UAW Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey said he had been informed by the FBI that it was checking the union's campaign expenditures at the request of Michigan Republican Chairman John Felkens.

"This can be viewed only as using a federal police agency by the party in control in an attempt to frighten the union and its members from freely expressing political views," Mazey said.

Violations Denied. Mazey's blast followed a denial by the heads of the CIO and AFL political arms that their organizations had violated the law as Felkens had charged before a Senate committee.

Felkens told a Senate Elections subcommittee that labor union "political bosses" particularly those of the CIO have used union dues for political purposes in violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

Jack Kroll, director of the CIO Political Action Committee, said Felkens "was simply using the Senate as a sounding board for propaganda for a Republican-sponsored bill in the Michigan Legislature to hamstring labor's political rights."

"The CIO-PAC has always op-

STEWARDS OF QUEEN MARY WALK OFF LINER IN DISPUTE

SOUTHAMPTON, England, May 19 (AP)—Because of a stewards strike the 700 first and cabin class passengers in the liner Queen Mary dined on sandwiches and coffee last night. They normally would have had pate de foie gras, chilled melon, turkey and steak.

The dispute began when the liner berthed 12 hours late because of a gale in the English channel. Passengers for New York already had prepared to embark. But 200 stewards, angry at being deprived of a night ashore because of the quick turn-around, walked off the ship.

Then a compromise was reached. The men agreed to go aboard to make sandwiches for the passengers and then have time ashore until the sailing today. Many of the crew members have their homes in Southampton.

erated scrupulously within the law," he said. James McDevitt, director of the AFL Labor's League for Political Education, said AFL unions "have not at any time violated the restrictions imposed on us by the Taft-Hartley act. All moneys collected and spent by us in political campaigns have been derived from voluntary contributions by individual members."

Demands Apology. He said Felkens "knows this" and is "guilty of intellectual dishonesty." He said Felkens "should make a public apology."

Mazey also charged that Felkens was aware that his statements before the congressional committee were "untrue."

"Felkens has used all the Government agencies at his disposal to check into the campaign contributions made by working people," Mazey said. "In all probability, he knows that no dues money was used in support of any federal candidate."

"As an officer of the UAW, I have filed the necessary reports with the clerk of the United States House of Representatives and any interested person can get accurate information there."

CAN ILLINOIS AFFORD TO FEED A $34,000,000 WHITE ELEPHANT ON CHICAGO'S LAKE FRONT?

Overgrown exposition hall is not needed, will not support itself, will benefit only a few special-interest groups at the expense of the whole state!

HAVE YOU NOTICED the big publicity balloon supporting the proposed $34,000,000 exposition hall to be erected in Chicago's Burnham Park (23rd St. and the lake)? The project is painted in glowing terms, and never a dissenting voice has been heard, until recently.

Recently, serious-minded citizens in Chicago and all over Illinois—who are not in the Loop restaurant and hotel business—have begun to examine this project on its merits. A surprising picture develops: The shining glass walls, the splendid exterior, the vast sweep of this "dream structure" prove to be nothing more than the shell of a gigantic White Elephant!

A White Elephant that will be put to pasture smack in the middle of Chicago's green and lovely lake front! A White Elephant whose appetite for hay (public funds) has grown by leaps and bounds until it is enormous and unpredictable!

Unless this public parasite is exposed in its true light, it will be feeding in Chicago's front yard before you can say "dream boat!" So let's start at the beginning, when the Elephant was only a gleam in a profit-hungry eye:

In 1953, a bill came before the State Legislature for a new convention hall and exposition building, to be erected in Chicago with state funds. Then, as now, Chicago had more convention space than is ever put to use!

Public and privately-owned convention facilities in Chicago total 1,096,000 square feet of space—the largest and most adequate facilities anywhere in the country! Yet its halls and auditoriums are vacant a large part of the time!

In the same year of 1953, the cost of the proposed hall was given by its proponents as $8,600,000. We questioned this figure in a public message, on the basis of our knowledge of building costs, and predicted that the new structure might cost as high as $30,000,000.

We were right! Now, two years later, its backers are asking for $34,000,000! Can they explain how the figure grew four times its size in only two years? Mighty rich diet—even for an elephant!

Those who favor the convention hall have unrealistically estimated income too high, and expenses too low, for this "dream project." Just as a sample, it has already been stated publicly that the new structure is expected to bring rentals of 65¢ a square foot for exhibit space. This is about 2½ times the rentals charged in other cities—yet it is used as the basis for estimates of profit reaching as high as $2,600,000 a year! A dream figure founded on wishful thinking that bears no relation to what exhibitors can and will pay—as shown by the combined experience of the country's exhibition halls!

In our opinion, based on actual experience in the management of other buildings, the operations of this proposed convention hall will suffer substantial losses even before interest is paid on this fantastic debt. Ask yourself who will pay this loss? Could it be you?

Those who want this White Elephant of a convention hall—for whatever reasons—will tell you that the money comes from a tax on the betting at race tracks. What they don't tell you is that the State Legislature could appropriate this money for many other, better purposes.

The Legislature could use this money to support fairs and expositions throughout the state—not just in Cook County.

The Legislature could use this money to improve needed State services, such as public playgrounds, highways, schools, mental health institutions and to curb juvenile delinquency.

The Legislature could use this money to help solve the needs of cities, including Chicago, for better police and fire protection, education and public health. THE TRUTH IS THAT PUBLIC FUNDS FROM WHATEVER SOURCE OUGHT TO BE USED FOR PUBLIC PURPOSES LIKE THOSE MENTIONED—BUT PRIVATE CAPITAL SHOULD AND WILL BUILD THE CONVENTION FACILITIES CHICAGO REALLY NEEDS.

How do we know private capital will do what's needed, without expense to any taxpayer? Because, for example, we have just added 188,000 square feet to the International Amphitheatre—upping its total to more than 460,000 and making it the largest exposition hall under one roof in the United States.

"Aha!" the friends of the Elephant will break in here. "Selfish interest! Competition!" Well, actions speak louder than words. Consider these facts:

The International Livestock Show, and the 4-H Club Congress that goes with it, constitute one of Chicago's biggest sources of pride. In 1953 it brought more than half a million visitors to the city, but lost $106,000 for the Amphitheatre.

For 50 years the Union Stockyard and Transit Company (owners of the International Amphitheatre) has been proud to underwrite the deficits of the Livestock Show, and to play host to thousands of up-and-coming youngsters in 4-H and the Future Farmers of America.

Does that sound very selfish to you? Or would you rather do business with a hungry elephant?

DRIVE THE WHITE ELEPHANT AWAY FROM THE PUBLIC-FUNDS TROUGH!

You can stop this hungry hay-burner! Just tell the Legislature that you want public funds spent for public purposes—not for a White Elephant like the Chicago convention hall. Write or wire any of the following, asking them to oppose and vote against House Bills 733, 734 and 735:

LABOR'S LEAGUE BACKS PASSAGE OF 2 BOND ISSUES

AFL Political Education Body Says Labor Will Benefit by Reconstruction in City.

Labor's League for Political Education, the political arm of the American Federation of Labor, has unanimously endorsed the $110,639,000 bond issue for public works and the $16,395,000 bond issue for improvements in the public schools, Dale Ferris, president of the St. Louis organization, announced today.

Meanwhile, the AFL Central Trades and Labor Union has sent letters to 385 locals urging support of the program to modernize municipal facilities, pointing out that building projects proposed will provide 111,000,000 man hours of work.

Labor's League for Political Education believes that the proposals covered in the two bond issues are a must if St. Louis is to continue to progress and keep abreast of the civic needs of its citizens," Ferris stated.

"Labor must not lose sight of the fact that what is good for St. Louis is good for the working man, who will benefit greatly if these bond issues pass."

Already Backed by CIO.

The CIO Industrial Union Council and the AFL Building and Construction Trades Council previously have endorsed the bond issue for public works.

St. Louis property owners will save money in the years ahead if the civic improvements bond issue is passed next Thursday, Comptroller Milton Carpenter said last night.

The bond issue would keep true values of property—both residential and business—stabilized and thus slow down the migration to the suburbs which leaves a heavier tax burden on those who remain in the city, Carpenter declared in a public statement.

"I do not think the residents of St. Louis can be told too often how much of a bargain this bond issue really is," he said. "For the slightest of tax increases—a nickel per $100 valuation or $3 a year for the owner of a home assessed at $6000—St. Louisans can receive a major public improvement bond issue that will make their city a far better place in which to live and work and raise children."

"Slipping Down Hill."

"St. Louis today is a city slipping down hill. It lacks too many of the things the $110,639,000 bond issue can pay for. Other cities have moved ahead, made themselves modern, speeded up their traffic, improved their streets, hospitals, juvenile and cultural institutions, fixed up their neighborhoods, reshaped themselves to meet modern living and modern problems. St. Louis has not."

Additional organizations endorsing the program to modernize the city include the Greater St. Louis Hospital Council, St. Louis Convention Bureau and St. Louis Chapter, Missouri Association of Professional Engineers.

Latest endorsements of all 23 propositions in the bond issue came from the Fifteenth Ward Regular Democratic Organization, the Board of Trustees of the Central West End Neighborhood Improvement Association, Sales Executives Association of St. Louis, Block Unit No. 204 of the Urban League, Associated Drug & Chemical Industries of Missouri, Inc., Central Council of the Municipal Athletic Association, St. Louis Merchandise Warehousemen's Association and Illuminating Engineering Society of St. Louis.

A "Burst of Energy."

The bond issue election provides the first impressive burst of energy by St. Louis to break its shackles and cobwebs, former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis, said last night.

Addressing the 1955 graduating class of the Jewish Hospital Nursing School at Temple Israel, Kaufmann said passage of the bond issue would show that St. Louis, stagnant for the last 10 years, has regained its confidence.

"It will be prepared for the first time to properly show the rest of the nation what St. Louisans can do to build a great and thriving metropolis," he said.

"I predict that with passage of the bond issue, we will see St. Louis grow financially and physically to such an extent that it may well once again assume its position of fourth largest in the nation."

Point of Decision.

"Failure, however, crushes the hopes and aspirations held by the community for decades. We have reached the point of decision—and from this date forward, our future and that of our children, is in our own hands."

The city's Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority soon will apply for a Federal loan to finance planning for rehabilitation of the blighted Kosciuszko area, James Drought, the authority's technical supervisor, announced yesterday after a group of business men toured the area by bus.

A loan of approximately $500,000 will be sought, he indicated. The area bounded by Kosciuszko, Dorcas, Seventh and Convent streets is one of eight the city hopes to redevelop by tearing down old buildings and selling cleared ground to private interests for erection of new factories, stores or homes. The bond issue would provide $10,000,000 for this program.

Text of President's Message Vetoing Postal Pay Rise Bill

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP).—The text of President Eisenhower's message to the Senate vetoing the postal pay rise bill follows:

RETURN herewith, without my approval, S. 1 (to increase the rates of basic compensation of officers and employees in the field service of the Post Office Department.)

I take this action for three reasons:

First, the bill creates new discriminations or inequities which would affect many thousands of postal employees.

Second, the bill creates grave administrative problems such as the establishment of thousands of individual pay rates. It forces awkward and unfair administrative practices in a Government department whose operations affect every person, every enterprise, every community in the country.

Third, the bill imposes a heavier burden upon the taxpayer than is necessary to establish salary rates throughout the department which will compare favorably with rates for similar work elsewhere in Government and in private industry.

At the outset of this Administration, the Postmaster General began a comprehensive study of the entire postal system.

Efficient Service Aim.

The principal purpose was to discover effective ways and means by which the American people could be assured more speedy, certain, economical and efficient handling of their mail.

Obviously, this purpose can be achieved only if first, postal employees are dedicated and satisfied in career service because of fair compensation, good working conditions, adequate benefits in vacations, insurance, sick leave and old-age security; and second, the department's administrative structure, incorporating the best management practices, is so designed that merit and responsibility are recognized and rewarded.

In accordance with the findings of the comprehensive study, on Jan. 11, 1955, by special message to the Congress, I recommended an increase in the salaries of postal employees which would be composed of two elements—a general increase in postal pay and a reclassification of postal positions that would eliminate inequities. To accomplish these purposes I recommended a 50 per cent pay raise and adjustments in classification to bring about proper wage relationships among the various jobs in postal service. The cost of the reclassification proposals would have brought the total increase to 6 1/2 per cent, with an aggregate annual cost of $129,000,000.

Those recommendations, if adopted, would have placed the salaries of postal employees in proper relationship to the salaries paid for similar work in nearly all the larger cities. The pay raises recommended were substantially greater than the increase in the cost of living since the last adjustment in postal wages.

More Costly Plan.

Subsequently, the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, by a substantial bipartisan majority, reported a bill, H.R. 4644—which, although approximately $30,000,000 a year more costly than my recommendations, embodied the essential elements of a reclassification system. In the matter of reclassification, that bill, as reported by the committee, could have been, and still can be, with certain corrections, the basis for legislation which would establish fair relationships between the salaries of various positions in the postal service on the sound principle of equal pay for equal work and more pay for more difficult and responsible work.

It has always been recognized that in the consideration of pay legislation, there can be a reasonable difference of opinion as to what constitutes an appropriate increase. But there can be no compromise with the principle of fairness, and any pay legislation must be fair to all to whom it applies. It must be workable administratively and not be excessive in cost.

The bill before me fails to meet these criteria. Specifically:

(1) It discriminates against large groups of postal employees such as rural letter carriers, special delivery messengers, and many supervisors and postmasters. These total tens of thousands.

(2) Aside from creating new and serious administrative problems, the total cost of the bill, approximately $180,000,000 a year, is substantially greater than is necessary to adjust postal salaries to a fair level either from the standpoint of pay for comparable work or from the standpoint of increase in the cost of living.

I regret the necessity of the action which I am taking. It is my earnest hope and recommendation that the Congress will quickly consider and enact postal pay legislation that will be in the public interest and fair to all of the 500,000 employees who man the postal service. To meet this test, such legislation should provide a reasonable increase in pay for all postal field service employees. It should provide for reclassification of postal positions to bring about proper wage relationships so as to eliminate inequities. It should not discriminate against some groups in favor of others, and it should be administratively workable.

Because the enactment of such legislation will substantially increase the postal deficit, I wish again to emphasize the imperative need for postal rates that will make the postal service self-supporting and be based on service rendered to the user. We can no longer afford to continue a costly deficit operation paid for by millions of taxpayers in amounts out of all proportion to the postal services that they as individuals receive.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER.

The White House, May 19, 1955.

SENATE HEARING JUNE 1 ON WARD PROXY CONTEST

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP).—A Senate Banking subcommittee will begin public hearings June 1 on the Montgomery Ward proxy contest.

Sewell Avery, former board chairman of the mail order house, will be unable to appear because of his health, the subcommittee said yesterday. It listed principal witnesses as John Barr, the new board chairman and also president of the company, and Louis Wolfson, who unsuccessfully sought to win control in the proxy fight.

Senator Lehman (Dem.-Lib.), New York, heads the subcommittee.

2 FIREMEN HURT AS ENGINE CATCHES FIRE IN STATION

INGLEWOOD, Calif., May 19 (AP).—Two firemen were injured last night when a 31-year-old fire engine burst into flames in the fire station.

Damage to the station and equipment was estimated at $7000 to $10,000. Fireman Charles Phillips suffered severe burns of the hands and arms and Engineer Harold Kingery received slight burns.

Fire Chief Basil Roberts said that Phillips and Kingery were cleaning a gasoline sediment bowl on an old engine used for standby service when the fuel ignited.

WOMAN KEPT IN JAIL FOR $3.50 A WEEK IS FREED

CHICAGO, May 19 (AP).—Mrs. Alma Ferguson, who was kept in jail 44 days by her husband's former wife for failure to pay a $25,000 alienation of affections judgment, was freed yesterday.

Circuit Judge John E. Pavlik ordered Mrs. Ferguson released from Cook county jail after her former attorney testified that she did not know that the alienation trial was in progress last year. The suit was brought by Mrs. Theresa M. Pritchard, who charged that Mrs. Ferguson maliciously stole the affections of her former husband, Roy Ferguson, a distributor for a bread company.

The circuit court jury returned a default verdict. It contained a malice count, permitting the jailing of Mrs. Ferguson up to six months provided Mrs. Pritchard paid her board bill. Mrs. Pritchard has paid the county $3.50 a week for Mrs. Ferguson's keep since April 6.

Mrs. Ferguson's former attorney testified he was too ill to represent her at the trial. Her present counsel, Sol R. Friedman, described Mrs. Pritchard as a "shylock" and said "all she wanted was her pound of flesh."

He asked the court to set aside the verdict and Judge Pavlik set June 16 for further arguments. Neither woman testified at yesterday's court session.

RELAXING DOG LAW OPPOSED

Strict enforcement of Clayton's dog ordinance was urged last night at a hearing conducted by the city's aldermanic health committee at City Hall.

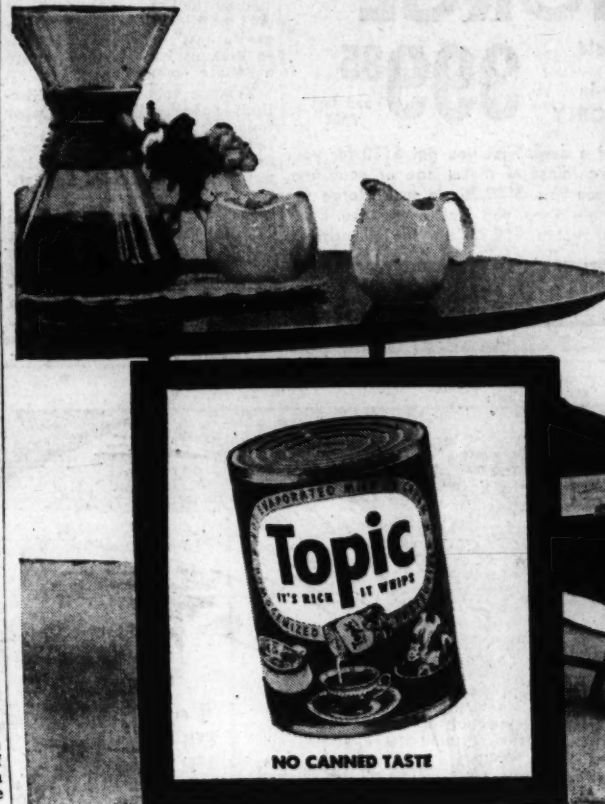

The hearing was scheduled after some dog owners urged relaxing the ordinance to permit licensed dogs to run at large. Aldermen said most of the persons present spoke against this and suggested the city employ more dogcatchers to aid in the control of rabies. The Clayton dog ordinance prohibits dogs off their owners' property unless on a leash and it requires dogs be inoculated against rabies.

POWER REPORT RELEASE AT ONCE HELD 'UNLIKELY'

Executive Secretary Doesn't Think Commission Will Heed Demands in Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—Francis P. Brassor, executive secretary of the Hoover Commission, said today it is "very unlikely" the commission will heed congressional demands for immediate publication of a staff report on water resources and power.

The staff report, written by a task force, is rapidly becoming controversial even though it has not been made public. The commission is using the task force report in drawing up its own recommendations to Congress on what the Federal Government should and should not do in the fields of power and water.

Proponents of public power and water projects accuse the task force of being biased in favor of private power. They say this alleged bias is borne out in the task force report.

Representative Chet Holifield (Dem., California), a commission member himself, and others have demanded the task force study be published immediately without waiting for the commission's own report. Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee), echoed that demand yesterday in a letter to former President Herbert Hoover, commission chairman.

Brassor said the commission might consider the demands at its next meeting Saturday. He said no law or regulation prohibits release of task force reports before the commission's own findings on a Government organization subject but added, "I think it's very unlikely that a majority of the commission would vote to set a precedent in this case by breaking the procedure it has used in all its other reports."

He said task force findings usually are made public some time after Congress receives the commission's respective report, although they have been submitted simultaneously in a few cases.

While the task force report remained officially secret, unconfirmed reports on its main content came from various sources. This is the picture drawn so far:

On Power—The task force proposes, according to Representative Bass (Dem., Tennessee), "a complete disposal" of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Bass gave his version yesterday as he introduced a bill to abolish the commission. His statement followed a copyrighted story in the Nashville Tennessean Tuesday that the task force recommends (1) TVA power facilities be leased or sold and (2) Army Engineer dams on the Cumberland River be included in any such disposal.

On Water—Senator Warren Magnuson (Dem., Washington), said yesterday the task force proposes to take basic decision-making on dam building and related works away from the Army Engineers and the Reclamation Bureau and place it in the hands of a five-member board responsible only to the President. Magnuson, who said he had "a preview" of the task force report, declared this would strip Congress of its voice in water projects. The proposed new agency, he said, would handle navigation, flood control, power, irrigation and river and harbor improvements.

"Such an action," he said, "torpedoes 30 years of orderly progress in every river basin and coastal area in the nation. It is the way dictatorships handle their public works programs."

The Hoover Commission, now set to go out of business the end of June, is a legislative agency set up to advise Congress on organization of the executive branch. Its recommendations, and those of its task forces, carry no weight unless Congress adopts them.

Flashes of Life

Rugged Individualism.
CHADRON, Neb. (AP)—City Manager Kenneth Kyle has called off a week-long campaign against jaywalking. He said business men complained that customers complained when asked to stick to the intersection. So, said Kyle, "not a thing will be done in Chadron about jaywalking. If people want to jaywalk they can go right ahead. Not a thing will be said to them."

New Polio Cases Increase 30 Per Cent in a Week

to get sufficient data "to enter clear or reject" its supplies. He said the company had been asked to furnish additional testing information and that several days will be required to receive and study it.

This spokesman said the Government scientists have been seeking improved methods for studying and analyzing protocols—the scientific reports from manufacturers on which the Government bases its decisions whether to clear batches of vaccine for use.

"They have now developed those and they are going to review them," this official said. "They are going at refined methods."

Supplies Held Up.
There was no explanation as to why there has been no clearance on more than 4,250,000 cc's whose makers' protocols are known to have been in the hands of the health service since May. No batches have been cleared since then. One cc is enough for one shot.

Although the health service said there was no change today in its figure of 77 for the number of polio cases among inoculated children it said it has seven suspect cases under study.

A health service spokesman estimated that inoculations with the Salk vaccine "are now pushing the 6,000,000 mark."

The 77 confirmed cases since use of the vaccine started about April 14 compare with a provisional total of 682 cases of all kinds of polio, including confirmed and unconfirmed cases, reported by state health authorities since April 10. The total covers all age groups.

The upward jump for the week of May 14, with 206 new cases reported, for the first time pushed the total for this "disease year"—which started about April 1—ahead of the number in the comparable span of last year. However, the calendar year total for this year is still behind the 1954 figure.

There had been 736 cases this "disease year" reported through last Saturday, compared with 718 a year ago for the similar period. For the calendar year the 1955 total is 1803, compared with 2271 in the similar period a year ago.

Cases Among Inoculated.
The Health Service's general weekly report devoted some space, without naming the Cutter vaccine, to the 59 cases of polio which have developed among children who received it. The report said that in 40 of 59 cases there was a high degree of correlation between the site of first paralysis and the site of inoculation.

"This was not apparent in cases following use of the vaccine from other manufacturers," the report continued. "The interval between inoculation and first paralysis ranged from five to 20 days in the 59 cases."

The expected number of cases based on a five-year median among those inoculated with this vaccine was three during the three-week period ended May 7. However, 28 cases were reported.

"Expected and reported cases were essentially the same in children receiving other types of vaccine."

The vaccine's developer, Dr. Jonas E. Salk of the University of Pittsburgh, said there yesterday the post-injection cases are "purely coincidental." He told the Allegheny County Medical Society that "expectations about the vaccine should be adjusted to its limitations." A report on last year's field trials April 12 said the vaccine is up to 80 to 90 per cent effective in preventing paralytic polio.

Of the 77 confirmed post-inoculation cases, 59 developed in children who had received shots of vaccine produced by Cutter Laboratories, Berkeley, Calif. The product of that laboratory has been withdrawn indefinitely.

Idaho Cases.
Cutter's medical director, Dr. Walter Ward, said he could "neither agree nor disagree" with Idaho health department conclusions that vaccine probably was the cause of 17 post-injection cases of polio in that state.

Ward said at Boise that unused vaccine from the now-suspended Idaho vaccination program was injected into monkeys and that no polio virus developed in the normal incubation period.

"Obviously some things have occurred which one anticipated," he said. "The true explanation still remains to be discovered."

In Washington state, the Yakima county inoculation program has been postponed until members of the county medical association are convinced the vaccine is both safe and effective.

Milkshake Inoculation.
At Sonoma, Calif., a group of researchers announced a new type of antipolio material—which is administered through milkshakes rather than by injection. They said it brings immunity more quickly than the Salk product, but only against two of the three types of polio. Salk vaccine is effective against all three.

The researchers include Dr. Karl E. Meyer, of the University of California's Hooper Foundation; Dr. Hilary Koprowski, who first developed the product; and Dr. Thomas L. Nelson.

The product is made from live viruses, rather than the killed ones used in the Salk vaccine. The researchers said no illness or unfavorable reactions had developed among 52 children given the Koprowski material April 4. The researchers said it would be a long time before the material can be made effective against Type III polio.

$540,000 Vaccine Fund Proposed in Legislature.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 19 (UP)—A state program of free distribution of anti-polio vaccine to some 120,000 children financially unable to buy shots was proposed in the Missouri Legislature today.

A $540,000 fund to finance the program was attached in the house to a pending appropriation bill.

At the same time, a resolution was introduced providing for a legislative investigation of the manufacture and distribution of the Salk vaccine "to see if any safeguards are necessary."

Dr. James R. Amos, state director of the Division of Health, said the $540,000 state funds would be used to provide vaccine for medically indigent children between the ages of one and 19. The term medically indigent means children of families who are unable to provide medical or dental care.

Amos said there were 1,200,000 children in the 1-to-19 age group in Missouri. He estimated that 10 per cent of that group would need free vaccine.

Four Cases of Polio Reported in This Area This Year.

Four cases of polio have been reported in the St. Louis area this year, as compared with three that had been reported up to this time last year, but only one of the four children had been vaccinated.

He is Edward A. Scholl Jr., who became ill last month after receiving a shot of Cutter vaccine. Two of the other three cases this year were non-paralytic. The most recent patient became ill April 30.

Local officials have received no information as to when another supply of vaccine may be expected, or when a report on the Pitman-Moore Company's vaccine, which was used here, will be made by the United States Public Health Service.

At Jefferson City, the State Division of Health reported that in the week ended May 14 Missouri had 20 polio cases, an increase of two over the preceding week. At the corresponding time last year the number was 30, an increase of three.

Dr. E. A. Belden, director of communicable disease control, said that in all of the 30 current cases, the Scholl child was the only one who had been vaccinated.

DOENITZ ASKS W. GERMANY TO HELP HIM GET RELEASE

BONN, May 19 (AP)—Counsel for former Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz asked the West German Government yesterday to help get his release from prison.

Attorney Hans Holm filed with the Foreign Office a request that he ask the three Western Allies to agree to free Doenitz, 64 years old, the last leader of Nazi Germany. The Foreign Office declined to comment. Doenitz was arrested May 22, 1945, as a war criminal and was sentenced Oct. 1, 1946, to serve 10 years in Spandau prison, where other Nazi leaders were confined.

GIRL AWARDED $22,500, INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Damages of $22,500 were awarded Miss Wilda Moss, 5010 Gerrit avenue, by a jury in the court of Circuit Judge O. P. Owen yesterday for injuries she suffered in an automobile accident in October 1953.

The judgment was against the estate of Miss Jacqueline L. Peterson, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome G. Peterson, 7845 Parkwood drive. Miss Peterson, then 18 years old, was killed when the automobile she was driving collided head-on with another machine on United States Highway 61 near State Highway 110 in Jefferson county. Miss Moss, 14 at the time of the accident, was a passenger in Miss Peterson's machine.

In her petition, which sought $100,000, Miss Moss alleged she suffered permanent disfigurement of her right leg and hip, permanent scars of the face and body and said she was in a cast for three months. It was charged that Miss Peterson's machine, which was northbound, crossed to the opposite traffic lane, striking a southbound car.

HOUSE UNIT CUTS SHARPLY AIRLINE, SHIP SUBSIDIES

Commerce Dept. Funds Trimmed 18 Per Cent — Airport Aid Is Boosted.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee slashed deeply into Administration requests for airline and ship subsidies today in cutting the Department of Commerce's new budget 18 per cent. It trimmed sharply funds for ship construction, federal-aid highways and the inter-American highway while boosting the amount for federal airport aid. It recommended $1,121,435,000 in new funds for the Commerce Department and related agencies for the bookkeeping year starting July 1.

This is $244,958,000 less than President Eisenhower requested. The reduction is the largest, percentage-wise, to be recommended by the committee this year.

Funds Reduced.
All but $17,875,000 of the total was allotted to the Commerce Department, whose request for $1,347,800,000 was shaved to $1,103,560,000. The committee's recommendations are subject to approval by the House and subsequent action by the Senate.

The request of Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks for a $10,000 fund to entertain important visitors—from abroad was turned down without comment.

In a report drafted by a subcommittee headed by Representative Prince H. Preston (Dem., Georgia), the committee called for "more careful verification" of claims for airline subsidies and "close scrutiny" of employment practices and costs of subsidized ship lines.

For subsidy payments to air carriers, the committee recommended $40,000,000. This is $8,900,000 less than was appropriated this year and $23,000,000 less than the Civil Aeronautics Board had asked for.

The Administration's request for $115,000,000 for subsidies to ship lines to enable them to compete with foreign shipping was trimmed to $90,000,000, a cut of $25,000,000 below this year's appropriation.

The Bureau of Public Roads was allotted $600,000,000 of the $680,000,000 it sought for the federal-aid highway program. The committee said the reduced sum would finance all commitments without slowing down the program. This action came at a time when the Eisenhower Administration is urging a big step-up in highway aid.

Road Money Decreased.
For the Inter-American Highway, a joint United States-Latin American project, the committee recommended $8,000,000, a cut of $66,980,000 from budget requests which contemplated completion of the highway in three years. The committee said it lacked basic authority to provide the larger amount.

For federal grants for local airport construction, the committee added $9,000,000 to the Administration's request for $11,000,000. It recommended that the formula for distribution of the money be revised to give consideration to smaller airports.

The Census Bureau was voted $5,500,000, a cut of $500,000, to complete a census of agriculture, and $4,000,000, a cut of $655,000, to finish a census of business, manufactures and mineral industries.

Other large allotments included: Civil Aeronautics Administration $103,000,000 for operation and regulation, a cut of $3,150,000.

YOUTH, 17, ARRESTED AFTER STRUGGLING WITH WOMAN

Cleveland Good, 17 years old, was arrested last night by an off-duty prison guard who said he saw the youth struggling with a woman at Elliott avenue and Gamble street.

Mark Gregory, prison guard at Lucas Avenue District, fired a shot in the air to halt Good after the youth hit him with a piece of brick, Gregory reported. Miss Ersie Dillard, 2347 O'Fallon street, said Good got out of an automobile and grabbed her, and Gregory came to her assistance. All are Negroes. Good gave an address in the 2600 block of Howard street.

LATIN-AMERICAN COFFEE PRICE WAR RUMORS PERSIST

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, May 19 (UP)—Rumors of an impending price war between Brazil and other coffee producing countries circulated here today despite official attempts to spike them.

The scare was touched off yesterday by the disclosure that Brazil is permitting coffee exports at prices below the minimums established last July.

The disclosure coincided with unconfirmed reports that Colombia, El Salvador and Mexico had rescinded a gentlemen's agreement to hold their minimum prices in line with the Brazilian minimum.

ELECTED BY RAILROAD GROUP

Alfred N. Laret, vice president of purchases and stores of the St. Louis-San Francisco (Frisco) Railway here, was elected chairman of the purchases and stores division of the Association of American Railroads at its annual meeting yesterday in Chicago.

St. Louis was selected for the 1956 meeting.

BIG JAP STEEL CITY ELECTS EX-RED LEADER AS MAYOR

KAMAISHI, Japan, May 19 (AP)—A former Communist leader today was elected Mayor of this northern Japanese city famed for its big steel plant.

Tomin Suzuki 59 years old, who ran as an independent, drew 13,264 votes to 11,432 for incumbent Gonzaemon Sawada. Suzuki is the first Japanese with a Communist background to become mayor of a major city.

Suzuki was an admitted Communist cardholder when he led the bloody strike against the Yomiuri Shimbun, one of Japan's three biggest newspapers, in 1947.

Later Suzuki bolted the Communist party. In recent years he has been a school teacher. He is married to a German woman he met when he was a correspondent in Berlin before the war.

FREE MEDICAL CARE SOUGHT FOR CONFEDERATE VETERANS

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—Congress was asked yesterday to pay all future medical expenses of the three surviving members of the Confederate Army, just as the House has voted to do for the sole survivor of the Union Army, 108-year-old Albert Woolson of Duluth, Minn. He came down with a severe cold recently and was unable to go to a veterans hospital. His private hospital bill came to $1200 and the House voted Tuesday to pay that bill and all future medical expenses he incurs.

Representative W. Pat Jennings (Dem., Virginia), introduced a bill to pay future medical expenses of the Confederacy survivors.

Representative John A. Blatnik (Dem., Minnesota), who sponsored the bill to help Woolson, said he would support Jennings' measure. The three are John Salling, 109, of Slant, Va.; Walter W. Williams, 112, Franklin, Tex.; and Bill Lundy, 107, Laurel Hill, Fla.

DONNELLY SIGNS RECORD-SCHOOL AID MONEY BILL

$102,186,000 OK'd—He Calls for More Revenue—Tax Hikes Again Before House.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 19—The House was expected to resume debate today on two controversial tax increase proposals, following Gov. Phil M. Donnelly's blunt warning that the Legislature must find additional revenues to finance the budget-smashing appropriations it has voted this session.

The Governor issued his statement late yesterday after announcing he had signed a bill appropriating a record $102,186,000 in state public school aid for the next two years.

He pointed out the Legislature voted to give the schools 37½ per cent of all state general revenues, starting from the historic practice of allotting one-third of the revenues for this purpose. He said this will give the schools $11,354,000 more than they received in the present two-year fiscal period.

Supplement Vetoed. Donnelly, who vetoed a $9,250,000 supplemental school allotment two years ago, indicated he would have reduced the new school appropriation this time, had not the state constitution prohibited any change in the basic school allotment.

"If the people of Missouri desire to accord our public schools ever-increasing aid from the state Treasury, then they must reconcile themselves to the burden of ever-increasing taxes for public school purposes," he declared.

The Governor asserted the $11,354,000 boost in school funds was part of the Legislature's $25,000,000 over-appropriation of estimated state revenues for the 1955-57 biennium, beginning July 1.

He told the Legislature it should measure up to its responsibilities and provide the additional sources of revenue necessary to meet the record state allotments, which "jeopardize the state's financial stability."

The Governor's statement was expected to have considerable effect when the House resumes consideration of Senate-approved proposals to increase the state income tax and to levy a state cigarette tax, which would bring in an estimated $32,000,000 in an estimated $32,000,000 to $33,000,000 a year in additional state revenue.

Additional Funds. The additional funds are said by sponsors of the tax increase measures to finance additional school aid, higher state old-age pensions and to meet other increased costs of state government.

Both of the revenue-increasing proposals, if approved by the Legislature, would be submitted to Missouri voters for their approval at a special election Oct. 4. Donnelly did not refer directly to either of these tax increase bills. But he declared the Legislature should not boost appropriations for schools or any other purpose without providing the necessary revenue to pay the bill.

The Legislature's $25,000,000 over-appropriation can be absorbed this time by the state's $30,000,000 surplus. But the Governor warned that the state would face a financial crisis two years from now if the necessary additional income is not forthcoming.

Unless new revenue is provided, Donnelly asserted, "we will be faced with a dilemma" of curtailing an enlarged and accelerated public school aid program or drastically cutting other essential state services and functions.

"The treasury of Missouri is not an everlasting fountain," he added. "There can be expended from it only what is exacted from the people of our state."

He pointed out that the state school aid has increased from $3,397,000 in 1933 to $102,186,000 at the present, and he said "the demand for additional aid will continue."

Never Will Be Cut. Donnelly said the 37½ per cent allotment to the schools will never be reduced, and that "only increased taxes and then more taxes can supply the funds for this ever-increasing demand."

He vetoed yesterday a bill which would have exempted sales tax payments on the trade-in value of used automobiles in connection with the sale of a new car or another used automobile.

The Governor said the measure would have created a "gross inequality" in Missouri's state sales tax law. He pointed out that the bill would have allowed the exemption on automobile trade-in transactions, while denying the same exemption on the sales of other merchandise in which trade-ins are commonly accepted.

In his veto message, the Governor declared the lack of equality and uniformity raises a serious question as to the validity of the bill. He cited court decisions holding that subjects of taxation cannot be classified "without reason or necessity." Donnelly said he could not see where the proposed special exemption on automobile transactions would be reasonable or necessary.

It had been estimated, when the bill was being considered by the Legislature, that the tax exemption would cost the state about $5,000,000 a year in sales tax revenue.

This was the fifth bill passed this session that has been disapproved by the Governor.

Elimination of Error. A bill, corrected to eliminate an error discovered in a similar measure passed earlier by the Legislature and vetoed yesterday by Donnelly, which would increase salaries of referees and other employees in the division of workmen's compensation was introduced in the House last night.

Representative Frank E. Kost-ron (Dem.), St. Louis, sponsor of the original and revised measures, said he hoped to obtain speedy action on the bill so that it might be repassed by both houses before final adjournment May 31.

In disapproving the measure, which would hike salaries of referees from $475 to $700 a month, except in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield where the increases would be from $500 to $750 a month, Donnelly said the salary increases had nothing to do with his veto.

His reason for disapproving the bill, he said, was because of an apparent error which would permit appeals on awards direct to circuit court, by-passing review by the industrial commission. This, he said, would disrupt long-established procedure.

NEW FLYING SQUAD IN POLICE DISTRICTS

20 Detectives Begin Work in Penrose and Ruskin Avenue Areas.

A new flying squad of more than 20 detectives began working today in the Penrose and Ruskin avenue districts as part of the continuing efforts of Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell to give the city blanket detective coverage.

Members of the new detective squad are the plainclothes officers formerly attached to those districts. However, Lt. Thomas Moran has been borrowed from the bomb and arson squad temporarily to head the new outfit and will operate out of the Page boulevard station until facilities for the new squad are set up in the Penrose district. The Page district has a flying squad to serve both it and the Newstead avenue district.

Next flying squad to be set up will be in Central district where the officers will be under the command of the two detective captains at the Detective Bureau. An additional 26 officers were assigned yesterday to the Lucas avenue district under the command of Detective Lt. Edward Bolden, a Negro. They will serve both the Lucas and Deer street districts.

The reassignment of the district plainclothes officers to the Detective Bureau was done at the request of Chief of Detectives James E. Chapman as a step to co-ordinate crime solution activity.

ALSO Possibility Russia May Really Want a European Settlement Causing Some Second Thoughts

Official U.S. View Is That Any Basic Change in Policy on Germany Is Unlikely, but Intriguing Hints Come From Reds.

By STEWART ALSOP

IS IT POSSIBLE that the Russians really do want a general European settlement, on terms which the West could accept? For the first time in many years, American diplomats and policy-makers are seriously debating this question.

The heart and soul of any general settlement must be, of course, a German settlement. Agreement on Germany, on terms acceptable to the West, would require a drastic change of policy in the Kremlin. The majority official view is that any such basic change is highly unlikely.

Yet some officials have been having second thoughts. There have been intriguing hints that the Russians might arrive at the forthcoming meeting at the summit prepared to negotiate seriously about Germany. Some of these hints have been public, like Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's cryptic remarks at the signing of the Austrian treaty. But there have also been private hints, and these have been a lot more convincing.

Unofficial Red Chats. Soviet diplomats and officials, whether in Russia or western Europe or the United States, have been talking to westerners with far more freedom than in at least a decade. These unofficial chats have resulted in some surprises. Here, for example, is the formula for a German settlement outlined by a Soviet diplomat in such an informal conversation:

First, staged withdrawal from Germany of all foreign troops. Soviet troops would be withdrawn behind the borders of the Soviet Union. But, the Soviet official remarked, if the United States insisted, American troops could be stationed elsewhere on the Continent, rather than withdrawn across the Atlantic.

Second, supervised free elections throughout Germany, though just how the elections would be supervised, or how free they would really be, was left very much up in the air.

Third, an advance agreement by Germany and the Western powers to regard the Oder-Neisse line as "settled." Much emphasis was laid on this point. Fourth, in every other respect, full sovereignty for the new all-German government resulting from the elections. Specifically, the Germans would have the right to join NATO, although the confident belief was expressed that the Germans would be "more sensible" and that they would form a "third force." This, of course, was the most surprising item on the list.

Security Arrangement. Finally, there would be some rather vaguely defined all-European security arrangement, of the sort already proposed by Molotov, to guarantee this arrangement. Both the United States and the Soviet Union would be included.

If this sort of Soviet proposal were formally made at the meeting at the summit, it would certainly require some serious re-

FLEESON Democrats Boon to G.O.P. '56 Strategy

They Won't Attack Eisenhower, Make Nomination Almost Sure.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

THE politicians and the pundits can discuss President Eisenhower's plans for 1956 if they like but the official Republican strategy remains fixed. It is to box the President in to the point that he feels compelled to run again.

Like the three little monkeys on the subject of civil, G.O.P. party managers see no alternative, hear no alternative, speak no alternative. The party itself and the issues with which it is traditionally identified are viewed as secondary if not actually irrelevant.

Efforts are already under way to suppress differences of opinion among Republicans. They are being urged to hold off and come to the aid of victory next year.

The effect of all this is to transform the next presidential election into a grand popularity contest.

A Popular President. Republicans should not perhaps be too greatly blamed. They have a popular President and not much else. They are in a minority in Congress and that minority is split between an effective right wing hampered by the party's need for Mr. Eisenhower and a pro-Eisenhower wing hampered by its own lack of political moxie.

Within the states the Democrats have been winning nearly every race since the name of Eisenhower dropped from the top of the ticket. The striking proof of this resurgence consists of the nine governorships Democrats have wrested from Republicans.

Nothing therefore should surprise anyone about Republican strategy. What does seem extraordinary is the extent to which these same resurgent Democrats are helping it along.

It is in fact, the Democratic leadership in Congress which makes it possible for Republicans to run a popularity campaign next year instead of campaign.

The efforts of that leadership have been devoted almost exclusively to soft-pedaling controversy and by-passing investigations.

Democrats Help G.O.P. Practically every piece of major legislation—there has not been much—for two years or less because Democrats voted with Eisenhower Republicans.

On foreign policy, Democrats have taken the lead and praised the President for following them. Such investigations and hearings like these are proposed—anti-trust, natural gas, Dixons, school shortage, civil depression, the fast growing Soviet war potential—but like those old soldiers, they just fade away. No real encouragement is given to uncovering the weaknesses of the Eisenhower Administration or boring into its big business aspects.

With more than 50 years of political campaigning behind him, SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL fires blast at Labor party leader Clement Attlee in opening his drive for re-election to Parliament at Woodford, England. Taking note of Attlee's difficulties with Labor extremists, Churchill called him "pie-bald," to which Attlee retorted that the former Prime Minister was a political chameleon.

ITALY WILL NEVER QUIT WEST TO BE NEUTRAL: SCELBA

ROME, May 19 (AP)—Premier Mario Scelba said last night Italy would never renounce her alliance with the West for the middle course of neutrality.

The strongly anti-Communist Premier said those who feared that internal political developments might lead to a change in foreign policy were misjudging Italy.

"Alarm expressed in some of the international press comes from a lack of knowledge of the men involved," Scelba said, "and from superficial and hasty valuation of episodes which have nothing to do with foreign policy."

"For a country like ours," Scelba told a meeting of Italian small farmers, "there is no third position. Italy has chosen and has chosen freely and according to her traditions."

Eisenhower's View Arouses British Dissent

Discussion of Red Satellites Futile, Many in West Believe.

By William H. Stoneman

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1955.

PARIS, May 19.

MURMURS of disapproval were being heard both in Britain and Western Europe today following President Eisenhower's statement that the United States would expect to discuss Communist satellites and international Communism at this summer's four-power conference.

Secretary of State Dulles served notice on France and Britain during his recent visit to Paris that the United States thought these matters would have to be discussed as part of any effort to "relieve the tension." But he did so in secret meetings and it was not until the President's press conference yesterday that the European press and public learned of the American position.

While some steadier heads regard it as the only logical thing to do, the general reaction seems to be, "You really can't expect to get anywhere with the Russians if you insist on talking about Czechoslovakia and Poland."

These same people appear to regard it as natural for the Russians to want to talk about western Germany, which is now part of the western military group.

It has been clear since the British and French first insisted on asking Russia for a four-power top-level meeting this summer that such a meeting could only bring one-way concessions to the Russians "to demonstrate the good will of the western powers" unless the United States took a clear and firm stand with both its allies and the Russians.

The more diplomats study the prospects of the meeting the more convinced they are that the United States was probably too quick in agreeing to it.

One hope seems to be that, once they have clinched the elections, Prime Minister Eden and his fellow members of the British Cabinet will take just as tough a line as the United States itself.

Shortages Plaguing Industry Again, U.S. May Push Expansion

Aluminum, Copper and Nickel Still Scarce — Some Steel Products, Cement on Deficit List.

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP). SHORTAGES again are plaguing prospering industry. Today—so soon after the big Korean build-up—government officials are pondering whether to push for a new expansion of basic industries.

Scarities of aluminum, copper and nickel haven't vanished despite substantial diversions of the metals to industry instead of the national defense stockpile. Some steel products and even cement have joined the deficit list.

Earlier this year officials ascribed the heavy demand to such temporary factors as the spring spurt of auto production, fear of mid-year strikes and price boosts, inventory rebuilding, and perhaps a little scare-buying caused by international stresses.

By now the order books at the mills are filling up with orders for the July-September quarter. Some officials are wondering whether industrial capacity is as well bulwarmed, for war or peace, as they had supposed.

Mobilization director Arthur S. Flemming told an interviewer today it now seems doubtful whether autumn will bring a substantial easing of demand.

"We cannot go on diverting materials from the stockpile indefinitely," he said. "Unless there is improvement in the fall, we will have to consider further expansion of capacity."

Other Steps Taken. Flemming, who recently reopened the Government's offer of federal tax benefits to electric power companies which undertake expansion, disclosed he has taken these further steps:

1. Ordered a "basic, comprehensive" study to determine whether to approve the abandoned "third round" of aluminum industry expansion.

2. Asked the Defense and Commerce Departments to investigate whether any companies obtaining nickel under military priorities are diverting some of it to civilian uses, thus tightening the shortage for other firms.

Meantime Bethlehem and some other steel producers have announced informal "allocation" plans intended to assure each customer his historic share of their output. Mills began rationing nickel stainless steel early this year.

The cement shortage, reflecting record building activity, got worried attention from the National Association of Home Builders in Washington this week. Some builders forecast tighter supplies if the big highway program now being considered by Congress is approved.

The cement problem developed even though Flemming's Office of Defense Mobilization boosted the official goal for cement-plant expansion last year despite protests of much of the industry. That action means that a company which undertakes expansion may write off part of the cost in five years, in depreciation under the federal tax laws. The normal write-off period is 20 to 25 years.

Proposed Under Truman. The aluminum "third round" was proposed by the Truman Administration, but abandoned two years ago. The earlier expansions, during the Korean emergency, approximately doubled aluminum production capacity nationally.

The industry contends that today's shortage is no temporary affair but a reflection of the growing economy, increased use of the light metal, and development of new aluminum products.

Flemming said he has instructed Edwin Harris, ODM light metals director, to survey prospective demand and supply to see whether we should take another look at a third round of expansion.

Flemming said he doubts that the Government would offer any greater inducement to industry than the rapid tax write-off, but said there are indications several producers are interested in possible expansion projects without requiring government loans, loan guarantees, or long-term purchase contracts.

Meantime 50,000,000 pounds of aluminum, on order for the stockpile, have been diverted to industrial users in this quarter. At a meeting Friday, aluminum producers are expected to ask a further diversion in the July-September quarter.

PEARSON Welker Puts Friends Through College, Taxpayers Foot Bill

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON. ROLY-POLY Herman Welker, the rootin'-tootin' junior Senator from Idaho, when it comes to putting relatives and non-working friends on Uncle Sam's payroll, has the top score among the 96 Senators. No other Senator at the moment comes anywhere near him.

The Republican Senator from Idaho has just devised a new system of putting a friend or relative through college. He gives him a job on his payroll, which is allotted for the express purpose of helping the people of Idaho in Washington. Instead of which the beneficiary continues at the University of Idaho, using the taxpayers' money to defray collegiate expenses.

One of these college students is William Cook, son of Welker's friend, George Cook of Boise, connected with a western airline. Young Cook went on Uncle Sam's payroll as Welker's assistant around November, 1954, at a rate of $3200 a year. Cook does nothing for the Senator or the constituents or anyone but himself.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

'No' to the Reserve Bill

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The Reserve bill has had such a liberal dose of the silent treatment in our papers that I was glad to see your April 30 editorial on the subject, although I do not share your enthusiasm.

Eight years of active and reserve training for all of our youth is a complete militarization of the country, which is the one great objection to the bill. It is interesting that it is the Army mainly which is working for its passage—as it has for previous bills. The Navy and Air Force prefer long-term enlistment because of the many technical skills required in modern warfare.

Among those who testified against the bill at the congressional hearings were the executive director of the Air Force Association, the president of the Active Duty Reservists Association, the national secretary of the Naval Reserves Association, and the president of the National Guard Association. They agree that compulsory training gets nowhere.

Other testimony showed that the Department of Defense has not implemented the present reserve program. It would seem wise to improve the administration of the present reserve rather than increase the number of reservists by 50 per cent.

President Eisenhower himself admitted that the six months training has to be done over again in case of war and that its value consists in the military indoctrination. Moreover, technical skills are today of first importance. Even in World War II only 20 per cent of those trained in military tactics were ever in combat.

As to the cost, a billion dollars a year and an initial outlay of up to seven billions is required for the necessary installations for training 3,000,000 reservists. Why spend these huge sums and disrupt millions of lives, militarize our nation in the day of the A- and H-bombs? A second claim made is that mass armies are a deterrent to attack. If huge stockpiles of A- and H-bombs should fail to deter, would even several millions of reservists do so?

A Spark Is Struck

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Isn't this the moment for Missouri to recognize the basic weakness in its state representative government?

Enthusiasts for a one-house Legislature have long been deterred by the fact that there is no Missouri counterpart of the late United States Senator Norris to lead a similar campaign in this state. And also many citizens seem to have dismissed complacently as "inevitable or political" the failure, waste and inefficiency of the biennial sessions of the bicameral General Assembly. There is no dedicated George Norris on the Missouri scene.

But perhaps Tuesday's incident between the House and Senate will generate some public indignation and quicken citizen interest in a unicameral amendment by the initiative petition. A sound proposal has been drafted and needs only able popular leadership and disinterested support. Ladue. MRS. VIRGIL LOEB.

The State Shrubs

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
How silly can Missourians get? Hawthorne is not a flower (the state "flower"). Dogwood is not a tree (recently adopted state "tree"). Both are shrubs. L. L. RICHARDSON.

As to the Crime Wave

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It would seem that explanation is in order from someone as to how the reported effort of organized crime to take over certain county communities as of July 1, is to be accomplished.

Certainly those communities which have heretofore maintained honest police administrations and excellent control over crime are not suddenly on July 1 going to open their gates to criminal elements simply because a new county authority is being instituted on that date.

To imply that any community, incorporated or not, staffed by its own police department or not, is to become an "island of laxity" simply because of a change in the policing authority of the county is to question the integrity, not only of such a police department, but of the governing administration and of the people who live in that community.

Some communities which already have competent police departments will not be bulldozed by factless reports of sudden criminal invasion, into surrendering their policing rights by contractual agreement with the new department even though they are perfectly agreeable to providing the utmost in co-operation to the new Superintendent and his department.

WILLIAM DON VOGEL,

Chairman, City Plan Commission.

Jennings.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I commend the police officers of this city for their devotion to duty and the effort being put forth by every member of the force in combating this crime wave.

Also, if St. Louisans would support Circuit Attorney David in his efforts to obtain stronger legislation in combating these individuals who have no respect for the lives and property of others, I think that the citizens of this great city could again walk the streets in peace.

EUGENE F. MOORE.

A Hopeful President

In a busy and productive press conference, President Eisenhower happily returned to the encouraging note he sounded on the Tuesday evening telecast with Secretary Dulles. This was his statement, with respect to the coming Four-Power Conference: "We will stay strong and vigilant, but we are not going to extinguish the hope that a new dawn may be coming even if the sun rises very, very slowly."

Using the press conference to supplement the telecast, Mr. Eisenhower made it clear that he is not afraid of an "appeasement trap" at a conference with Soviet Russia, a participant. Nor does he, so he said, think that the American people expect him to fall in that kind of trap.

The President's own hopeful outlook was indicated by his answer to a question about Marshal Zhukov with whom he became quite friendly in World War II when they were comrades in arms. Mr. Eisenhower said he did not know whether Marshal Zhukov would be a member of the Soviet delegation to a meeting "at the summit," to use the Churchillian phrase. But he believed, he went on to say, that if he and his wartime Russian friend could sit down and talk things over "something good might come of it."

What about the Republican Senators who have been so critical of the Administration's new interest in international negotiation—the Knowland-Jenner-Malone-McCarthy-Welker-Bridges wing of the G.O.P.? The President said with equal resolution that not for one minute did he believe these Senators thought he would adopt a course of appeasement.

On the domestic front, Mr. Eisenhower spoke some reassuring words concerning TVA. Heretofore on TVA he has been reassuring upon occasion and disturbing at others, as, for example, when he described this great achievement in regional power, water and resource development as "creeping Socialism." Answering a question inspired by the existence of a Hoover Commission task force report that proposes the literal dismemberment of TVA, the President said flatly that the TVA will not be wrecked.

Actually Mr. Eisenhower's answer followed a well-established pattern. He praised ex-President Hoover and those associated with him in the several task forces as "outstanding Americans." Then he said that the TVA was "a going, historical concern" and that he did not think that "many people would quarrel with the general purpose which it was set up to serve."

The test will come when the Hoover Commission makes public its views on the TVA, since, according to reports, its task force recommends that TVA be stripped of its steam and hydro-electric power plants. This important aspect of the TVA, after a world-celebrated success, would be sold or transferred or leased.

Apparently the President is learning about the Hoover Commission on TVA at an earlier stage than he learned about the Dixon-Yates contract. It may be that he is getting off the hook of that much criticized proposal.

When he answered a question as to his attitude toward the 8.8 per cent pay increase bill for mail carriers and other postal workers the President said he had not made up his mind. This left the impression that he was still studying the question. Apparently he made up his mind rather quickly for he has now sent a veto message to Congress. It remains for Congress either to sustain the veto and again defeat the hopes of an underpaid category of civil service workers or to override the President and thus give the country a piece of legislation that is not perfect but does provide an overdue cost-of-living increase.

Twice at least in the conference Mr. Eisenhower placed himself against positions taken by some business men. Once was when he said, in support of greater world trade, that some Americans may have to adjust their thinking to bring this about. Then he strongly defended the military's post exchanges and commissaries as needed to enable defense "personnel to buy things they need at a decent price." Here was Dwight D. Eisenhower speaking out of his experience as a career soldier and diplomat.

On atomic power for peace and on an improved military reserve the President also was earnest and emphatic. This press conference was one of his best.

A Bill to Be Vetoed

The Missouri House has passed and sent to Gov. Donnelly a most objectionable pay rise proposal for the personal benefit of an elected St. Louis officeholder. The official is James P. Lavin, Clerk of the Court of Criminal Correction and Democratic Committeeman in the Twentieth Ward. His pay would be increased from $7000 to $10,000 a year, which would put him in the same class with the Mayor and the Governor.

Apart from the question of whether his job is worth that much money, the telling objection to the bill is that it violates the spirit of the constitutional prohibition against increasing the salary of an elected official during his term of office. Mr. Lavin would get his boost now. The measure gets around the Constitution by giving the St. Louis politician "additional" duties such as making annual reports to the Governor and others.

That is a subterfuge, pure and simple. If the Governor follows the commendable precedent he set by vetoing a similar proposal, he will make short work of the Lavin bill.

Misguided Economy Act

At a time when the United States is spending 40 billion dollars for defense and foreign aid, mostly military, how much sense does it make to cut $10,000,000 off the appropriations for international educational exchanges?

This is the real issue of the debate between Congressman Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves and Senator Fulbright of Arkansas. Representative Curtis, as a member of the House Appropriations Committee, helped push through the House a reduction of the exchange funds from $22,000,000 as requested by President Eisenhower to $12,000,000.

Senator Fulbright, the principal author of the program, has criticized the cuts. He says some House members are trying to destroy the program because they feel "you are contaminated by association with foreign people."

We are sure that Mr. Curtis, who is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Washington University, and who now serves as a Dartmouth trustee, does not share any such fear of foreigners. In fact, he told the House that he was very much in favor of the Fulbright exchange program, which brings foreign students, teachers, specialists and leaders to this country and sends Americans abroad at the ratio of about 5 to 1.

Yes, Mr. Curtis hopes very much that the program will continue—but he wants it accomplished, he said, on a "people-to-people basis," with more private funds and less Government funds. And so he joined in the slash of appropriations that will reduce the present program one third or more, falling with particular weight on teacher exchanges and bringing of foreign editors, business men, labor and civic leaders to America to see for themselves.

It would be interesting to know how much effort Mr. Curtis has spent on organizing "people to people" cultural exchanges since he voted to cripple the State Department's program. We hope the Senate will restore that program to the level requested by the President.

The Russian Bear Moves Fast

Soviet Russia, a nation too long presumed to be far inferior to the United States in technology and in production, is now revealed as having taken some long strides in military aviation. News of the appearance of formations of Red intercontinental bombers over Moscow comes as a rude shock after the reports that Russia had only a few prototypes in this class.

Senator Symington of Missouri, former Air Force Secretary, comments that this "incredibly rapid development" of jet bombers indicates that the Russians have more air strength "than anyone knew about" and shows the Administration has been underestimating Soviet air capability. That is putting it mildly, judging from press association reports that the Russian four-engine type 39 and type 37 planes can do the same jobs as our own eight-engine B-47s and B-52s. And the Russians also are said to have an all-weather jet interceptor which represents as much of a feat as does that of the big bombers.

This progress in Soviet military aviation follows some urgent warnings. The National Research Council said more than a year ago that Russia has nearly as many engineers as we do and was graduating nearly three times as many annually. Donald A. Quarles, just before he resigned last June as Assistant Secretary of Defense for Research and Development, stated that "our margin of advantage has been narrowed" and that it would be impossible to rely on any very long time-spread between our own technological advances and appearances of counterparts in Russia.

Absolute security in the air is something that we can never attain. But the question may well be asked: Are we pushing ahead in research as rapidly as the Soviets and capitalizing upon it as well as they do? If we are lagging when we enter a parley we will be under serious handicap.

Tragedies That Can Be Stopped

East St. Louis has an ordinance requiring the removal of the doors of unused iceboxes that are accessible to children. Under this ordinance Julian Gilliam, a landlord, is now charged with violation following the tragic death of two 3-year-old children who crawled into one of two iceboxes in a shed and then suffocated when the door closed. There is only one way to stop these tragedies. That is to enforce the law vigorously by making violators pay the full penalty.

Where Mr. Hoover Is Right

Much as we disagree with former President Hoover in his views on public power, we believe he has the right of it in refusing to make public the task force report on power until it has been passed upon by the commission.

Representative Karsten of St. Louis, Senator Kefauver of Tennessee, and Representative Hoff of California, the last-named a member of the Hoover Commission, are pressing the chairman to release the task force report, general aspects of which have now leaked out.

Mr. Hoover takes the stand that the report is part of the internal workings of his commission until the 12-man commission has decided what to accept and what to reject. Any other course would make all the discussions between the commission and its task forces a public debate.

While the commission is making up its mind what its recommendations shall be, it deserves an opportunity to deliberate in privacy. In fact, it is hard to see how it could function otherwise.

Labor Victory or Tie?

The Missouri Legislature has sent Gov. Donnelly a bill weakening the state law against utility strikes. This is a surprising development in a session which began with organized labor on the defensive.

For weeks the Legislature was under pressure from industry groups to pass a so-called "right-to-work" bill banning the union shop. And Gov. Donnelly asked the legislators to extend the King-Thompson Act's prohibition against utility strikes to other industries.

As the session progressed, however, the legislators showed no enthusiasm for the misleading "right-to-work" bill and let it die. They ignored the Governor's rather vague request on King-Thompson. Instead of broadening the law, the House voted 107 to 0 to dilute it. Sponsored by Representative J. B. Moore, Republican of Hamilton, the bill sent to the Governor represents much of what labor sought:

It would eliminate the provision for a $10,000 daily fine for unions or utilities provoking a strike.

It would erase the $1000 fine against leaders of utility strikes and make such activity a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $10 to $1000 and imprisonment for a year.

It would permit a utility employee to quit work in case of a strike or lockout and to retain rights to his job and seniority if the state agreed.

It would establish a fact-finding board to study a dispute before the state could seize and operate a utility.

Labor's sudden victory with this measure is, however, highly tentative. Gov. Donnelly sponsored the King-Thompson law in 1947. Rebuffed in his request to broaden it, the Governor may have no desire to sign an amendment which has the opposite effect.

A veto would leave Missouri's labor code about where it was as the session began—no right-to-work bill crippling basic union security, no extension of severe anti-strike legislation, but no weakening of the public's protection against utility strikes either.

Until labor legislation can be separated more distinctly from the influences of contending pressure groups, the best way to leave it is alone.

'The Boys' Ran Phenix City, Too

George Roy Clough, who has just taken office as Mayor of the Texas coastal resort city of Galveston, was elected on a promise of a "clean but liberal town." He says that he is a tolerant man who believes "these boys in the so-called rackets (prostitution and gambling) would get along better under self-government." So he plans to call a meeting of "the boys" to see how Galveston should be run.

We wonder if Mr. Clough ever heard of Phenix City, Ala., commonly known as the Sodom of the South, where some more of "the boys" ran the town until last June 18 when assassination of the newly elected Attorney General, who was pledged to clean up the town, led to martial law, wholesale indictments and long prison terms for some of "the boys"?

WARNING TO THE PEASANTRY

Is Russia Interested in Peace?

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Reports on Russian troop withdrawals, plus new Austrian peace treaty, Big Four talks and other signs suggest Soviet Union is now interested in relaxing "cold war"; Russia's economic crisis, doubt as to who is boss in Kremlin, may cause shift.

Joseph C. Harach, Washington Correspondent, in The Christian Science Monitor

The most tangible single reason why Western diplomats think Moscow is ready to begin serious diplomatic talks is that intelligence reports of late have indicated a change in the nature of Soviet military deployments in Europe.

Over the past 10 years the type and location of Soviet troop dispositions, supply depots, airfields and air units have given the West ample reason to stand to its arms and to regard with skepticism all Kremlin talk of an interest in peace.

Of late there has been a perceptible change in the nature of these Soviet military dispositions.

They begin to look as though they were designed primarily for defense and less for offense. Reports that filter in from refugees, from intelligence agents, and from other sources suggest that the Kremlin is now planning to conclude an Austrian treaty is part and parcel of a general recasting of the whole Soviet military position in Europe.

Conclusion of the Austrian treaty will require the relinquishment by the Soviets of their advanced military position south of the Bohemian mountains. It also requires the withdrawal of their "normalization" troops from Hungary and Romania.

This, coupled with the intelligence reports of their revised dispositions in the whole satellite area, would appear to indicate that the Kremlin has decided to renounce, at least for the time being, the equivalent of what we of the West call our "forward strategy."

This constitutes a movement which London, Paris, and Bonn assess as one piece of evidence of apparently sincere interest in a general revision of the European situation.

There is other evidence which has encouraged Western diplomats to think that the time is ripe for a season of diplomatic explorations, even including a meeting "at the summit."

There have been many approaches to the German Government at Bonn, although in the second or third degree, which indicate a prospective readiness to "normalize" Soviet-German relations. There has been a relaxation of Communist activity in Italy and in France.

There was the strange Gromyko visit to Sweden, including the formal call on the King. Add, of course, all the formal protestations of interest in peace which would be discounted 90 per cent were it not for the accompanying and more tangible actions.

What reason lies behind all this? We know that the Kremlin has a major agricultural crisis on its hands. We also know that it assumed heavy delivery commitments to China under the treaty of last October and that there has been a lag in the deliveries.

Is the internal strain due to food shortage and heavy commitments to China forcing a "breathing spell" on the Kremlin leaders? There is no certain answer.

Perhaps more significant than the above-mentioned factors are these: Stalin has been gone for over two years. As yet there is no single successor, no single authority giving consistent direction and purpose to the whole Soviet apparatus. And the changing members of the committee which substitutes for a Stalin undoubtedly recognize that a major war very probably would result in the political and economic fragmentation of the Soviet state.

They may talk boldly about their own atomic weapons, but they undoubtedly know that in the present stage of atomic weapons development they would suffer more in a major war than would the United States. The Soviet Union is, in fact, ringed with Western air bases. The United States can be approached only by Soviet long-range bombers.

No responsible Western diplomat thinks for a moment that the men of the Kremlin are in a state of panic or even are leading from a sense of weakness. Their overall position is weak in some respects, but stronger in others. Molotov's Feb. 8 speech presented an impressive list of improvements in Soviet relations with the outside world. Some of it was boasting, but much of it was true. Moscow is no longer the capital of an isolated and pariah state.

However, it is now the consensus of professional Western diplomats that this present Soviet state is ready and willing, even desirous, of achieving a more stable context for its national life.

It is highly doubtful that the Kremlin is willing or intends to pay a high price for a more stable environment, but it is willing to explore the possibility of gradual changes in Europe which would improve its own security and would also, as a necessary price, give Western Europe some improvement in security.

This is why Washington has agreed to join London, Paris, and Bonn in a season of diplomatic negotiation, which certainly will be long and tedious, which will involve some risky concessions and some grave revisions of Western policies, but which might end in more stability in Europe for all concerned.

The Life of a Fabulous Man

VICTOR HERBERT: A LIFE IN MUSIC, by Edward N. Waters. (Macmillan, 431 pp., $10.)

In the preface to his biography of Victor Herbert, Mr. Waters speaks of him as a fabulous man. Certainly the details of his life confirm this. Few people, myself included, were aware of the great extent of Herbert's musical activities: from his earliest days before he came to the United States, as a court musician with the Russian multi-millionaire Baron Paul van Derwilt, then at the Stuttgart Opera, to the height of his fame on Broadway.

He was a virtuoso cellist, a member of the New York String Quartet, bandmaster of the Gilmore Band in its final and most successful years, and for six years conductor of the Pittsburgh Art Society Symphony Orchestra. He toured with his own players in summer concerts from Brighton Beach to the Grand Union Hotel at Saratoga, and throughout his whole life devoted himself to the cause of music in America, not only in bringing music to all sections of the community but also to maintaining the highest standards of artistic integrity.

He made continual efforts to obtain the legislative recognition of the composer, and did no less a person than Justice Wendell Holmes paid tribute to his part in the original framing of the copyright laws. He was untiring in his efforts on behalf of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, of which he was the original driving force and founder.

Despite all of these interesting details, this is not a successful biography. For no picture emerges from it either of Herbert himself or of the age in which he lived. And what a fascinating era this must have been! The author's research has been prodigious and untiring, as his acknowledgments show, but less scholarship and more imagination would have made a more readable book.

He gives full details of Herbert's music, and in particular, of the incredibly naive plots that he used for his operettas. With the exception of an adaptation of Edmond Rostand's Cyrano de Bergerac, Herbert suffered from poor librettos all his life, a fact for which he himself cannot be held entirely blameless. A composer should be remembered for more than "An, Sweet Mystery of Life," and "Kiss Me Again," to merit the careful and detailed musicalological treatment that he here receives.

Time alone will tell of the value of his music, but this in no way excuses the dullness of this book. Mr. Waters has forgotten that a fabulous man does not necessarily make a fabulous biography. FRANK T. MENENDEZ.

The Latest Word From Jupiter

From The Hartford Courant

As might be expected when a bunch of astronomers get together they don't talk about Marilyn Monroe. A group of them who attended the meeting of the American Astronomical Society heard reports which were entirely out of this world. One observer at the Carnegie Institute in Washington reports that he has been tuning in on Jupiter, and getting a lot of static. Another raised a ruckus by observing that Mars was probably barren of life.

But for the most part astronomers, hovering far above the cares of the everyday world, are kicking around three big questions. First of all they would like to settle on a description of what the universe is like. How big is it? How much matter is in it? Is it finite or infinite? Is it curved or flat?

The second part of the mystery they would like to solve concerns the precise method by which the universe came into being. Is it the result of a giant explosion about five thousand billion years ago, or has it always been pretty much as it is now? The second theory supposes the continuous creation of matter from nobody-knows-where. The first theory would lead to the belief that the universe is running down, the second that it is building up.

Like the small fry, the astronomers are also toying with the idea of space ships. If they could get a telescope away from the gravitational pull, and the distortion of atmosphere, they could see things much more clearly than they do now. It has been pointed out that a 23-inch telescope above the atmosphere could do the work of a 200-inch telescope at the earth's surface. And if you think these are mauling in a dream world, consider the progress that has been made thus far in unscrambling the inscrutable universe.

You Too Can Make a Million!

THE WEALTH WITHIN YOU, by Elmer Wheeler. (Princeton Hall, 270 pp., $19.50.)

Whether it is wealth, or any other form of success, Elmer Wheeler, business consultant, thinks it can be won by thinking so. In his book he advises everybody to cast out negative ideas and learn to use native ability and personality, and develop a formula for success.

Just to prove it can be done he tells about a lot of men and some women who have done it, finding the secret of success within themselves. There is no denying that the men and women in Mr. Wheeler's galaxy have made their millions and the business consultant makes a pretty good case for them as having drawn their wealth from within themselves.

It is not so clear that everybody else, depending upon what's inside, can by sheer self-reliance achieve the same results but the directions are plain and there's nothing to keep anybody from trying it.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Dulles Diplomacy by Plane, Radio

WASHINGTON. — OUR DIZZILY-PACED FOREIGN POLICY of today is dramatized and symbolized in little scenes you see so often. Such as this: Secretary of State Dulles alights from an airplane. He is shepherded off to a microphone. There he reads, casually and as it were automatically, a statement about his latest diplomatic adventure.

One or the other of his two men Friday—Assistant Secretary Carl McCordle and Henry Suydam—are standing by, following the Secretary on their own copy as he reads, with a handful of other copies ready for the press when he is finished. You recognize that McCordle scene which recurs so often, and perhaps also this one:

Mrs. Dulles stands among the regular news cameramen sighting her own miniature camera on her husband. She snaps a picture of her wandering diplomatic Ulysses, as if he were a VIP not even distantly related to her, so routine has this homecoming scene become in recent months. He may have left home only yesterday.

The Ultimate Effect.

All of which merely illustrates that the airplane and television and the news camera, and the instantaneous news report, have done something to the conduct of foreign policy that was once a mystery of which we heard very little and knew even less.

Just what will be the ultimate long-range effect of our foreign policy and its conduct we won't venture to forecast here. But some changes are perfectly obvious. Developments in foreign policy are stepped up—things can happen very fast.

Foreign policy is much more of an open book so far as concerns seeing the leading figures, who become as familiar as our neighbors, and hearing them give us their version of what happened. All of us have been let in at least to some extent on things that used to be state secrets.

Almost a Day for TV.

The Eisenhower Administration, with its emphasis on latest promotion and selling techniques, has added its own dramatic touches.

For example, the televised report by Secretary Dulles in the President's office, with the President there to introduce him, and his Cabinet colleagues gathered about in studied informality, took nearly all day to arrange.

This is, you recall, the second of such dramas based on Mr. Dulles's dashing foreign missions.

A friend of this reporter of a philosophical turn of mind used to expound a theory that trouble in the world—differences between nations and the wars that often come from them—was compounded and magnified by fast modern communications.

International anger and name-calling can be transmitted so quickly, and tempers flare up and trouble breaks out before there is time for calm thinking and before any explanations can be made or can be listened to—and it all may have started with a misunderstanding.

Accumulated Good News.

That might be true—where nations are on edge against each other, and we were all tense and nervous not so long ago over the Formosa dilemma and the fear somebody might go trigger-happy and plunge us all into another world war before there was a chance to consider things carefully.

But, with things generally looking up, as they surely seem to be today, it is suggested that such rapid ways of communications as the airplane, television, the camera and quick news reports—all these intensify good will by crowding news of favorable developments upon us.

It is certainly the accumulation of what appears to be good news that is responsible for the generally optimistic feeling today about the prospect of peace. Secretary Dulles seemed to be imbued with this idea by the way he enthusiastically tripped off what has happened in so few days just after he had landed here from Vienna.

Waving on the Balcony.

"We have seen great events, the entry of (West) Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the actual beginning of European unity, good talks about China and about Indochina, the signing of the Austrian state treaty, and agreement of the Western powers upon an invitation to the Soviet Union for a meeting of the four heads of government under conditions which, I believe, hold some promise of constructive accomplishment."

It should have meant a lot, for all of us to see on our television screens that mad, happy scene in Vienna where the milling crowds wildly welcomed Austria's independence finally after 10 long years, and to hear their excited voices, as we could.

We were made a part of all that; for there was our own Secretary of State waving with the rest of the officials from the balcony.

15,000 AT BAPTIST SESSIONS IN MIAMI

Dr. Casper C. Warren of North Carolina Is Elected President.

By JOHN T. STEWART Church Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., May—More than 15,000 persons attended the Southern Baptist convention opening sessions here yesterday. Few more than 8,000 were registered messengers, or voting delegates. The others were visitors.

The ninety-eighth annual meeting of the convention is being held in Dinner Key auditorium five miles south of Miami's business district on the Atlantic coast. The convention will adjourn Saturday.

The convention elected as its new president the Rev. Dr. Casper C. Warren, pastor of First Baptist Church, Charlotte, N.C. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. James W. Storer of Tulsa, Okla.

Reports to the convention reflect the church's share in the postwar prosperity of the members, especially in such states of Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and Oklahoma. A large percentage of the 8,000,000 Southern Baptists give a tenth of their income to their churches.

Assets of Agencies. Assets of Southern Baptist agencies and institutions have reached a record high of $111,014,053, the convention was told today by Porter Routh of Nashville, Tenn., executive secretary and treasurer of the body's executive committee. This is an increase of $10,500,000 over last year.

The biggest increase was in assets of the board which provides pension funds for Baptist pastors and other church workers. The Relief and Annuity Board had assets of $34,000,000 last Dec. 31, up $4,700,000 in 12 months, Routh stated.

Worth of the property of the 30,000 Southern Baptist Churches is $1,167,000,000, according to Routh's report.

Theological seminaries, mission boards and other agencies of the S.B.C. will receive a total of $10,000,000 next year as a result of the budget adopted today.

The $10,000,000 does not represent the total amount of money contributed to the churches. It stands for only that part which local churches allocate for use at the convention level, through what is known as the co-operative program.

Share for Foreign Missions. More than a third of the total will go to the foreign mission board of the convention which supports 950 missionaries throughout the world. Next largest amount, $1,224,800—will go to the home mission board which has some 900 workers in North America.

"The great Baptist conviction of freedom of conscience" was emphasized in a fraternal address to Southern Baptists delivered by the vice president of the American (Northern) Baptist convention, the Rev. Dr. Herbert Gezork of Newton Centre, Mass.—His denomination also is meeting this week at Atlantic City, N.J.

Catholic Hospital Group Officers

of freedom of conscience" was emphasized in a fraternal address to Southern Baptists delivered by the vice president of the American (Northern) Baptist convention, the Rev. Dr. Herbert Gezork of Newton Centre, Mass.—His denomination also is meeting this week at Atlantic City, N.J.

"In a time in which conformity to established patterns, whether religious, political or otherwise seems to be a trend, we as Baptists must emphasize more than ever before that the soul of the individual, under God, must be free," the Rev. Dr. Gezork said.

"We are not satisfied with tolerance, tolerance is a concession, liberty is a right, tolerance is a matter of principle; liberty is a gift from man; liberty is a gift from God."

Southern Baptists have contributed $266,000,000 to missions, education and charities in the last 30 years, the convention was told.

"Southern Baptists constitute the second largest evangelical denomination in the United States," the Rev. Wayne Dehoney of Birmingham, Ala., told the convention. "We have doubled our membership in one generation from 4,000,000 to 8,000,000."

Churches Urged 'Not to Build Fences Between Them.' ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 19 (AP)—A national Baptist leader said today church members "must not build fences" between themselves and "other Christians."

"Instead we must build paths of understanding," said the Rev. Reuben E. Nelson of New York, "and on them carry loads together that we could not possibly carry alone."

The Rev. Mr. Nelson, general secretary of the 1,600,000-member American Baptist convention, discussed "co-operative Protestantism" in a speech to

SIMPLIFYING WORK OF HOSPITALS URGED DR. MARY BETHUNE

Convention Speaker Predicts Use of Consultants for Complex Programs.

Dr. David Littauer, executive director of Jewish Hospital, yesterday predicted all hospitals within 10 years will employ part or full-time work simplification engineers or hire consulting firms in order to keep up with hospital administrative demands.

He cited particular aspects of administration that must be improved. They included accounting and purchasing procedures, use of personnel and industrial engineering techniques.

Addressing a session at the fortieth annual Catholic Hospital Association convention at Kiel Auditorium, Dr. Littauer said few hospitals today are employing engineering techniques that would lead to work simplification.

"Catholic hospitals are particularly weak in delegating authority and responsibility," Dr. Littauer told the group. He urged them to develop qualified lay and religious assistants in order to "handle the complex medical and health programs that are beginning to characterize our hospitals."

Speaking of all hospitals, Dr. Littauer said they must prepare themselves in the next generation to assume the role of a health center for the entire community. He asserted the public is beginning to demand what he termed "comprehensive medical care" including home care, home nursing programs, and diagnostic facilities for ambulatory private patients in addition to the normal in-patient care.

"Most hospitals have not recognized what the public wants," Dr. Littauer said. As increasing numbers of persons become insured against sickness or hospitalization, they become more interested in how the hospital dollar is spent, he said.

"Hospitals must do a better job of telling their stories and relating their programs to the public," Dr. Littauer said.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Robert A. Maher, of Toledo (O.), was elected president of the association at a meeting yesterday. He succeeds the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edmund J. Goebel, Milwaukee, Wis.

Other officers include the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. B. Brunini, V.G., P.A., of Jackson, Miss., president-elect, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph B. Toomey of Syracuse, N. Y., first vice president.

About 3500 delegates from the United States and Canada are attending the convention which ends today.

Founder of College Succumbs to Heart Attack at 79—Held Many Degrees.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., May 19 (AP)—Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, who rose from a plantation background to found Bethune-Cookman College here and become one of the best known Negro women of her time, died last night of a heart attack. She was 79 years old.

Although in semi-retirement and in poor health for years, she remained active until the end. She spent her last day at her desk, went home for the evening, and collapsed.

She headed Bethune-Cookman College from its foundation in 1904 to 1942 when she became president emerita.

Dr. Bethune gained national prominence in 1936 when President Franklin D. Roosevelt made her director of the division of Negro affairs in the National Youth Administration and his special adviser on minority affairs. In World War II she was a special assistant to the secretary of war. She held the three posts until 1944.

She was one of a family of 17 born in Mayesville, S. C. She worked at menial tasks to go to college and in 1895, was graduated from Moody Bible Institute in Chicago.

She planned to become a missionary in Africa but in 1897 began teaching in Florida. With $1.50 in cash she founded the Daytona Normal and Industrial School for Girls in 1899. The school's building went up on a dump heap. Later she purchased the land and in 1904 merged the girls' school with a boys' school, Cookman Institute, to create Bethune-Cookman College.

Under her leadership, the college became an institution of 800 students with a countrywide reputation.

She held degrees from 14 colleges and universities. She was the only woman to receive the Haitian Medal of Honor, Cuba, Liberia and other countries also gave her decorations. A son, Albert Bethune, an instructor at Hines Institute at Augusta, Ga., survives.

SHAW'S GARDEN CYCAD COLLECTION IS DESCRIBED

Shaw's Garden noted collection of cycads, plants that are sometimes called "living fossils" because they represent an ancient group that dominated the landscape when giant reptiles roamed the earth, receives major attention in the current issue of the garden's bulletin.

Cycads resemble palms at first glance but are not closely related to any other group of living plants. The garden has a large variety, housed in the north portion of the main conservatories. None of the types would stand the St. Louis climate unprotected, since they occur naturally in tropical or subtropical regions.

Many primitive peoples, the bulletin points out, have used cycads as a food source. A type called "Sago Palm" yields a flour-like food in the Malay Peninsula and elsewhere, but the material is poisonous in the fresh state and must be carefully treated with water. In Australia, it was said, cattle have been poisoned by eating cycad leaves and farmers there kill the plants by pouring arsenic in a gash cut in the trunks.

Jim Jackson to Team With Bruce Cudd in Walker Cup Foursomes

Cherry and Ward Face Britain's Toughest

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 19 (AP)—America's best Walker Cup twosome, Harvie Ward of San Francisco and Don Cherry of Wichita Falls, Tex., will meet Joe Carr of Ireland and Ronnie White of England in the opening two-ball match of the 1955 Walker Cup competition tomorrow.

Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., captain of the American team, and Alec Hill, British non-playing captain, announced their pairings today for Friday's opening round of the two-day international competition. The pairings for Saturday's singles matches will be made after the foursomes.

Campbell, the most experienced member of the American team, left himself out of the foursomes. He suffered severe hand burns in a fire at his home last Christmas, but is recovering well. Nevertheless, he is not expected to play Saturday either.

FAN FARE—By Walt Ditten

The other matches tomorrow will be:

Billy Joe Patton, Morganton, N.C., and Richard Yost, Portland, Ore., vs. Gerald Micklem, England, and John Morgan, Wales.

Lieut. Joe Conrad, San Antonio, Tex., and Dale Morey, Indianapolis, Ind., vs. Ian Caldwell, England, and Ernest Millward, England.

Bruce Cudd, Portland, Ore., and James G. Jackson, St. Louis, vs. David Blair, Scotland, and Robin Cate, Scotland.

Tomorrow's matches will have each pair playing one ball, taking alternate strokes.

Everybody on the American side was hoping that tonight's draw would give him a crack at White, who never has lost a singles match in the biennial team competition which Britain has won only once. Each of the cocky young Americans would like to be the first to beat the 34-year old lawyer who works in Liverpool, plays out of famed Hoylake and lives in the golfing town of Birkdale.

The Englishman is a natural hitter who plays superb iron shots and a batter who doesn't mind being behind in a match.

He has beaten Willie Turnesa, Charlie Coe and Dick Chapman in other Walker Cup matches.

"The only time this guy ever lost to an American was in 1953 when he and Joe Carr lost to Sam Urzetta and Ken Venturi in a Walker Cup two-ball match at Marion, Mass.," said Campbell.

"He seems to have a hex over Americans and all the fellows here now can't wait to take a shot at beating him."

Patton, the 33-year-old Carolinian who almost won the 1953 Masters from Sam Snead and Ben Hogan, is the big attraction among the Americans. The Scots like the way he keeps up conversational patter between shots.

One Scot asked Billy Joe how he liked the course just after the American had pulled his drive.

Back came Patton: "I like the course very much. It's a real championship test and it requires some brain work to play — maybe a little more than I've got." Then Patton walked away, but turned and added: "I said maybe."

LIBERMAN URGES U.S. REGULATION OF NATURAL GAS

City Counselor Speaks for Mayor at Senate Hearing — Cites Consumer Investment.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 19—Federal regulation of independent natural gas producers is necessary to protect the legitimate interests of the consumer, City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman of St. Louis told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today.

In a statement submitted to the committee on behalf of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, Liberman said absence of federal control over the production of gas in the field might lead to "unfair" rate increases in the St. Louis area.

The committee is considering a bill introduced by Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), to amend the natural gas act of 1938 and exempt independent producers, those not affiliated with pipeline concerns, from regulation by the Federal Power Commission.

Represents Tucker. Liberman, who represented Mayor Tucker on a mayors' committee formed to oppose exemption bills pending in the House and Senate, said residents and industries in the St. Louis area have invested between $163,000,000 and $235,000,000 in gas-burning appliances.

"After all our efforts to obtain natural gas, we would not like to see any steps taken which would, in any way, deprive us of benefits through unfair increases in the cost to the ultimate consumer," he declared. Liberman said continued FPC regulation of prices granted producers in the field is needed to protect the interests of almost 130,000 natural gas customers in the St. Louis area.

He said Laclede Gas Co., the local distributor, has a waiting list of 25,000 persons and industrial concerns and a "potential market" of 100,000 more.

"Millions of dollars have been spent in the conversion from manufactured gas to natural gas" in the city and county, Liberman declared. "We could not go back to manufactured gas except at prohibitive expense."

"The consumers who have invested millions in gas-burning appliances would have to lose their investments if they went back to coal or to oil."

Urges Fair Formula. For this reason, he said, Congress should evolve a fair formula which would protect both consumers and producers. Liberman indicated he and Mayor Tucker had concluded that the exemption bills would not do this.

Experience, he said, has demonstrated that where power is concentrated in the hands of a few persons, "there is not merely the possibility but the probability of abuse of that power in the absence of effective check or restraint."

A principal arguing point of opponents of the exemption legislation has been that the nation's natural gas industry is concentrated in the hands of a few major companies.

The possibility of a floor fight in the House or Senate over the exemption bills moved a step closer today after the mayors' committee took a "no compromise" stand.

In a statement yesterday, representatives of 51 cities said they would oppose any compromise proposal which gave independent producers a measure of freedom from federal regulation. The statement said compromises advanced thus far favored producers at the expense of consumers.

The statement was directed primarily at an amendment adopted yesterday by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, under which the FPC would be given control over one factor in natural gas prices. The amendment has been viewed as a compromise between complete federal regulation and none at all.

The House committee is considering an exemption bill introduced by Representative Oren Harris (Dem., Ark.), Arkansas.

If both the amendment and the Harris bill are passed by the House, the FPC would have jurisdiction over certain types of escalation clauses which can increase the cost of natural gas in the field. At the same time, the FPC would lose its present authority to regulate prices at all points along the line from producer to local distributor.

Unless this authority is retained, there will be "a continual rise in field prices" which "will push the consumers' monthly gas bills ever higher and higher," the mayors' statement said.

The House committee amendment, proposed by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (Rep., Minnesota), would give the FPC jurisdiction over escalation clauses in contracts between producers and pipeline operators. The most common type of escalation clause provides that a pipeline must increase the price it pays to a producer whenever it pays a higher price to another producer in the same area.

RED CROSS SAYS RUSSIANS FREED 30 GERMAN P.O.W.'S

BERLIN, May 19 (AP)—The Berlin Red Cross announced today that the Russians have released 30 German prisoners of war, including 10 women. They had been serving terms at hard labor for war crimes.

The Red Cross said one of the prisoners arrived in West Berlin last night and that the others apparently had returned to homes in East Germany.

BELGRADE PAPERS SAY YUGOSLAVIA WON'T BE BUFFER

BELGRADE, May 19 (AP)—Two of Yugoslavia's major newspapers declared last night that their nation does not intend to become part of a neutral buffer chain of states "behind which some big power could shelter itself in order to conduct its policy without being disturbed."

The editorials in Borba and Politika apparently were prompted by Western speculation that the Soviet visit to Belgrade was part of a Russian plan to create a chain of neutral states, including Yugoslavia, across central Europe.

Asserting that buffer states can only be nations without independence, Borba and Politika said Yugoslav acceptance of such a role "would be contrary to the conception of active coexistence."

The press in Yugoslavia is government controlled.

INDUSTRY AGAIN BEING PLAGUED BY SHORTAGES

testified before a House subcommittee that many complaints have been received from small makers of aluminum products that the big producers are holding back aluminum for their own use and depriving their independent customers.

Representative Sidney Yates (Dem., Illinois), chairman of the Small Business subcommittee, said the inquiry may bring a request for immediate relief to the small fabricators as well as Government sponsorship of further aluminum expansion.

The nickel shortage has persisted since Korea, because of heavy use in jet planes and guided missiles. Civilian allocations were halted in 1953, while military deliveries were protected by a guarantee furnished by Canadian International Nickel Co., the major supplier of United States industry.

Consumption Tops Estimate.

Recent consumption of nickel carrying the military priority has far exceeded the official estimate of military needs. This has aroused suspicion that some priority metal may be going into civilian goods.

"There is no firm evidence of such diversion," Fleming said. "But I feel the Government is under an obligation to find out what's going on."

Meantime an expansion of the government-owned nickel plant at Nicaro, Cuba, has been ordered for completion in the fall of 1956. A pilot plant in Louisiana will start production in about 18 months, and additional new sources are being tapped in Oregon and Canada.

Copper supplies have not recovered from strikes in this country, Chile and Rhodesia last year and this. Diversions from the stockpile and other government supplies began last fall and have been ordered as far ahead as next Sept. 30, with the Department of Commerce apportioning the metal to "hardship cases" among commercial users.

However, Fleming pointed to recent price declines in world copper markets as evidence that the effects of the Rhodesian strike settlement are now beginning to be felt. Supplies, he said, may be "fairly easy" by fall.

ACCEPTING WOMEN AS MINISTERS URGED

Presbyterian Moderator Says Practice Would Enrich Church Life.

LOS ANGELES, May 19 (AP)—A proposal that women be admitted to the Presbyterian ministry was endorsed today by the moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, Dr. Ralph Waldo Lloyd, president of Maryville (Tenn.) College. He called also for church-wide practice of non-segregation.

His views were in a sermon delivered at today's opening session of the 167th General Assembly.

Admission of women as ministers and the non-segregation issue are expected to come before the General Assembly for action later in this session.

Dr. Lloyd said: "As one thinks of the tremendous part which women play in the spiritual life and in the ministry of our church around the world, he cannot but hope that the church will possess enough of understanding and of the spirit of the pioneer to open all of the possibilities of service to women."

"A quarter of a century ago the eldership was opened to them and more than 3000 women are serving in that distinctive Presbyterian office."

"The life of the church will be enriched further by opening of the office of minister also to women. The number of women who may wish to enter the ministry and the number of churches which may desire to call women as ministers are unknown. But that is not the point. The point is that in a church which seeks to eliminate all artificial discrimination it is not consistent to forbid women to serve wherever the spirit of God may seem to call them."

On non-segregation, Dr. Lloyd observed: "Our official pronouncements calling for a non-segregated society and a non-segregated church are strong and right. But our practice is weaker than our pronouncements. It is time for every congregation to become a true Christian pioneer. There should be no church whose doors and hearts are closed to any sincere seeker after Christ. This should come to be true in the South as well as in the North, and in the West as well as the East."

Dr. Lloyd reported that unification of the three Presbyterian church groups must be postponed. He said approval was not given by the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

The unification, was voted by the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America and the United Presbyterian Church.

"Political and social developments of the last year, especially connected with the Supreme Court's decision on segregation and the consequent agitation which arose in various southern states," he said, "created an emotional contest that was not favorable to a clear-cut vote on the issues of union."

The moderator reported that the church had a net gain of 77,225 members, the largest for any single year in history.

"It brings our communicant membership at the end of 1954 to 2,658,903," he said.

LONDON, May 19 (AP)—For the second day in a row prices surged upward on the London Stock Exchange today.

Good earnings reports and continued expectation of a conservative victory in the May 26 election fanned the bullish sentiment. Trading was heavy and widespread.

British Government bonds continued to go against the trend and closed lower. Foreign bonds were quiet but German issues met some support.

The big gains came in the industrial list with shipping, electrical equipment, textile and radio shares prominent.

Oil closed buoyant. Gold shares recorded irregular price movements in light trading. Copper eased after early support. Tin closed stronger. Tea gained around. Rubbers were unchanged.

TREASURY BONDS EASIER

NEW YORK, May 19 (AP)—Railroads and industrial convertible bonds common stock led the corporate bond market higher today.

United States Government bonds, however, were slightly easier. The 40-year 3 1/2 percent bond was off 1/8 cent at 106 1/8-1/2 bid. The 2 1/2 percent 1963 bond was off 1/8 cent at 98 1/8-1/2 bid.

Most corporate obligations were steady to higher, but changes were generally less than a point. Convertible debentures responded to strength in the stock market to register gains. Investment quality corporates were mixed.

LOADINGS CONTINUE CLIMB

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—Railroad freight loadings continued to climb during the week ended May 14 after strikes on southern lines were halted.

The Association of American Railroads reported last week's volume at 757,333 cars. This was 16,308 cars or 2.2 per cent above the previous week.

79,793 cars or 11.8 per cent above the corresponding week last year, and only 22,472 cars or 2.9 per cent below the same week in 1953 when the Korean fighting was still in progress.

Look Ahead When Planning Menus

Be Careful Not to Serve Those Items You Wish to Use Over Memorial Weekend.

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

ONCE again it's time to make out the shopping list for the weekend, so what shall it be? Take your choice of almost any meat—but don't forget that next Thursday you will have a long weekend coming up when you may need a big ham, a roast and some barbecue items so you may prefer something different now.

Veal is around in good quantities; however, it will become more plentiful and the quality may be even better in the next few weeks. Our thought in featuring it on this week's food page was that you might want to have the recipes on hand. This definitely does not mean that it isn't a possibility right now, but it does mean that you may find a wider selection of slightly better quality, and probably at slightly better prices, just a little later.

A timely reminder: Before long the hot weather will be here in earnest and you will be building menus around meats for broiling and barbecuing; so this might be a good time to have a last whirl at those cuts that take longer cooking.

In beef, stew meat and chuck roasts offer values. Fresh picnic, pork steaks and pork sausages are possibilities. And round out the list of candidates for the meat platter with cold cuts, wieners and hen turkeys. Prices have advanced slightly on broiler-fryers and although there will be enough to meet demands they probably won't be plentiful until next month.

THE homegrown items are playing increasingly prominent roles in the vegetable departments. Last week's rains really brought out such greens as spinach, turnip tops and mustard greens.

Homegrown leaf lettuce is one of the best buys in the markets this week, priced attractively and very fine. Iceberg lettuce also is reasonable, with some variance in quality but even the best not high. You may find other salad greens such as endive, escarole and romaine cost a little more, although they will be well represented in the markets.

Cucumbers remain about the same but celery, which has been such a bargain, is a bit more expensive. Homegrown chives, leeks, watercress and mint are all available to give that little extra touch to salads. (And if you don't add a bit of mint to fruit salads you are missing a bet.)

You will find plenty of yellow bantam corn, plus the first white Texas corn of the season. Homegrown asparagus is supplemented by shipments of some very fancy New Jersey "grass" as it is known in the trade, not out of range price-wise. String beans are favorably priced; beets are increasingly plentiful; broccoli stays about the same (which is reasonable) and there are good supplies of carrots from both Texas and the Imperial Valley. Add peppers to the list of vegetables which are in heavy supply, plus squash which presents no problem.

Cabbage costs more money than we usually expect to pay for it and cauliflower is far from cheap. Eggplant, too, is a bit upish in price and tomatoes may cost a little more. Some of the old red potatoes may present problems of quality but we are getting new supplies of California long whites and red triumphs which promise to be of excellent quality. And those delicious new potatoes are slightly less expensive.

Two items from out-of-state are of interest—good southern okra, and Florida lima beans in the pod.

STRAWBERRIES are still in the spotlight in the fruit stands. This is it, so don't let the season slip by without enjoying them to the fullest.

Cantaloupes are working down in price, and watermelons are becoming more commonplace as we stand right on the threshold of summer.

Pineapples are running quite good in quality—combine them with strawberries for a nice contrast of both flavor and color.

Prices are down a bit on Arizona and California Valencia oranges, particularly the medium-to-small sizes. Florida oranges are not too plentiful, but attractively priced nevertheless. Lemons vary in price with the weather and the amount of cool drinks consumed. And you can still enjoy the fine grapefruit with which we have been blessed this spring.

NEW in the Markets: Salad dressing mixes blended by a famous chef, and packaged so that you can't go wrong. The seasonings are packed in envelopes, along with a bottle clearly marked as to how much vinegar, water and oil shall be added. Take your choice of French, bleu cheese, herbs, garlic or California French dressings.

Veal Chops Piquante

Frenchmen have a way of blending herbs into a basic sauce, creating aromas and flavors that whet the gourmet's appetite. These Veal Chops Piquante gain distinction in just such a way. Delicately flavored veal combines happily with herbs, wine, fruits and sour cream.

VEAL, delicate and tender, is one of the favorite meats of gourmets because it combines so happily with herbs, sour cream, fruits, wines and subtle sauces. Because of this pleasant adaptability it has inspired some of the world's greatest chefs to create culinary masterpieces. But veal is not a snob; it is equally at home in a thrifty stew, and is not at all adverse to being "stretched" with bread dressings or rice.

There are two important points to remember regarding veal cookery. First, it should always be cooked to the well done stage. Second, because it is a lean meat it is best to cover a veal roast with fat before cooking. It may be brushed with melted butter or margarine, or topped with bacon slices before cooking. As for seasonings, try mace, sage, thyme, mushrooms, nutmeg, marjoram or paprika.

Those veal chops pictured above owe their delectable flavor to a combination of paprika, marjoram, canned mushroom sauce and pimiento olives.

Veal Chops Piquante
Four loin veal chops, three-fourths inch thick.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two tablespoons shortening.
Salt and pepper.
Paprika.
Marjoram.
Two six-ounce cans mushroom sauce.
Two tablespoons sliced pimiento olives.

Roll chops in flour and brown slowly on both sides in hot shortening in heavy frying pan. Season with salt, pepper, paprika and marjoram. Add mushroom sauce. Cover tightly and simmer very slowly until chops are tender, about 45 to 60 minutes.

About five minutes before reheating chops from frying pan add olives, cover and cook five minutes longer. Remove chops to hot platter.

Serve chops with sauce remaining in skillet or make gravy by stirring in two tablespoons flour with the drippings and sauce in the frying pan. Blend in one and one-half cups milk. Stir and cook until thickened and smooth, about five minutes. Serve with chops.

Here is an example of what wine can do for veal. Extra flavor comes from marinating the meat in wine for an hour or more. It is a good idea to serve veal chops with noodles or rice so that every drop of the delicious sauce may be enjoyed.

Veal Chops Sumptuous.
Four veal chops, one inch thick.
One-half cup muscatel or sherry wine.

One teaspoon bottled brown bouquet sauce.
Two tablespoons fat.
One three-ounce can sliced broiled mushrooms.
One teaspoon salt.

One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
One tablespoon cornstarch.
One tablespoon cold water.

Marinate chops in wine for at least one hour. Drain well, reserving marinade. Brush chops on all sides evenly with bouquet sauce. Melt fat in frying pan or Dutch oven over moderate heat.

Add chops and brown quickly on each side. Add contents of tomato mixture to meat. Cook at a simmering point for 20 minutes, or until meat is tender. Blend together and add cornstarch and water, stirring constantly until sauce is thick. Serve immediately.

Veal is braised and served with a well-seasoned tomato sauce, to which basil, rosemary and nutmeg add subtle flavor in this.

Braised Veal and Tomato Sauce.
One pound veal round steak, one-half inch thick.
Three-fourths cup flour.
One tablespoon fat.
One and one-half cups tomato juice.

One-eighth teaspoon rosemary.
Three dashes nutmeg.
One-eighth teaspoon basil.
Three-fourths teaspoon salt.
One tablespoon flour.
One-fourth cup cold water.

Cut meat into individual servings. Pound and dredge in flour. Melt fat in heavy skillet. Brown meat. Combine the tomato juice and seasonings. Add a third of tomato mixture to meat. Cook at a simmering point for 20 minutes, or until meat is tender. Remove meat from skillet. Add rest of tomato mixture. Combine flour and cold water.

PICKLE GARNISHES
ADD ZEST TO FOODS

PICKLE garnishes can make a simple food sparkle. Try a few of these suggestions and see how pickles pep up a meal.

Tiny mushroom caps broiled and filled with sweet pickle relish are a perfect garnish for broiled hamburgers.

For a wonderful treat with cold meats, blend one cup grated processed Swiss cheese, one-third teaspoon caraway seeds and three tablespoons chopped sweet pickles. Shape into one-half-inch balls, dust with paprika and spear with toothpicks.

Spread crunchy peanut butter between slices of sweet fresh cucumber pickles for an attractive garnish.

For an appetizing garnish with a fresh fruit salad, blend one three-ounce package soft-cream cheese, one-half teaspoon curry powder and three tablespoons chopped sweet mixed pickles. Shape into one-half-inch balls and roll in crushed toasted coconut.

Arrange small sweet gherkins and rye bread croutons alternately on toothpicks for a crunchy tidbit with soup.

Try this delightful garnish with citrus fruit salad. Blend one three-ounce package soft-cream cheese and two tablespoons chopped sweet gherkins. Shape into one-half-inch balls and roll in chopped toasted almonds.

For a fish platter, combine one tablespoon sweet pickle relish, six tablespoons mayonnaise and one teaspoon prepared horseradish. Cut one lemon in half crosswise and hollow out with a sharp knife. Fill with pickle relish mixture.

skillet and cook for 15 minutes or until meat is tender. Add more water if necessary. Remove meat and keep hot. Add sour cream and crumbled bacon to skillet. Cook five minutes. Four over meat.

The flavor of veal blends well with many fruits, and one exceptionally good combination is veal and apricot.

To prepare Veal Apricot Birds, purchase veal round steak cut about one-half inch thick; you can get three servings from each steak. First remove the bone, then cut the steak into the three equal parts.

In following the recipe below, remember that thorough browning of the meat helps to bring out its flavor. In cooking the veal rolls, brown them first on all sides before adding the water; then keep the liquid to a minimum. Start with about one-third cup; you can add more as it is needed.

The recipe can be varied easily by changing the stuffing. Apple, cooked prune, pineapple, celery, rice, cracker, whole kernel corn or a plain bread stuffing might be used.

Apricot Stuffed Veal Birds.
Two veal round steaks, cut one-half inch thick.
One-half cup drained unsweetened cooked dried apricots.
One-half cup melted butter or margarine.

One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg.
Two cups soft bread crumbs.
Three tablespoons lard or drippings.
Salt.
Pepper.
One-fourth cup water.

Remove bone from steaks and cut into individual servings. Coarsely chop cooked, drained apricots. Add the apricots, melted butter or margarine and nutmeg to the bread crumbs. Mix well.

Place a spoonful of the stuffing on each piece of veal, roll and fasten with wooden picks. Brown the rolls slowly in lard or drippings. Season with salt and pepper. Add water, cover and simmer for 45 minutes or until tender. Yield: Six servings.

Certainly no collection of veal recipes would be complete without one in which it is combined with sour cream.

Veal Cutlets in Sour Cream.
Four veal cutlets.
Two slices bacon.
Flour.
Salt and pepper.

Three-fourths cup thinly sliced cucumbers.
One-fourth cup water.
One-half cup sour cream or one-half cup undiluted evaporated milk plus one and one-half teaspoons vinegar.

Slice bacon crosswise into one-fourth inch strips. Fry slowly in skillet. When bacon is crisp, remove from skillet and drain on absorbent paper. Dip meat in flour that has been well seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown meat in drippings.

Place cucumbers on meat. Add water. Turn heat low. Cover

Thrifty Nifty

Save liquid from jar of sweet pickles. Pour over canned baby or sliced beets for pickled beets. Mmm good!

It's Iced Tea Time

AS the iced tea season gets under way, here are a few tips to help you enjoy the refreshing beverage at its very best. Remember that the freshness of tea must be carefully guarded.

Tea must be kept fresh, protected against heat and air, for best flavor. Store in a container with tight fitting lid—a caddy, canister or glass jar. Tea is packed in containers of several sizes, so choose the one best fitted to your needs.

Season the caddy before using it. Put two teaspoons of tea or break open two tea bags into container; shake it up and leave for a few days. Tea absorbs any moisture or foreign odors. Throw this tea out; the caddy is now seasoned.

Fill the seasoned caddy with the freshest tea you can buy. When preparing tea, be sure to use furiously boiling water. Steep tea for no less than three and no more than five minutes by the clock. Should it turn cloudy, add just a little boiling water to restore clarity.

Use Teapot.

The best way to make tea is to make it in the teapot, which holds the temperature of water at a very high level.

Color Varies.

Color doesn't indicate strength of tea; some color up immediately; others produce a light color but give a strong brew.

TRY BAKED EGGS IN CEREAL NESTS FOR BREAKFAST

It has been said many times, but it still bears repeating—breakfast is the most important meal of the day. Make it something special by serving Baked Eggs in Cereal Nests.

Sound too complicated for the morning rush? Not at all. Just measure bite-size shredded wheat biscuits into small greased baking dishes. Dot with butter or margarine, break an egg on top of cereal and dust with salt and pepper.

Baked Eggs in Cereal Nests
One-third cup bite-size shredded wheat biscuits.
One teaspoon butter or margarine.
One egg.
Salt.
Pepper.
Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees). Generously grease individual casserole or small baking dish. Line dish with bite-size biscuits. Dot with butter. Break egg on top of cereal. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake on center rack 15 to 20 minutes.

Carrot Garnish.

Grated raw carrot makes a colorful—and unusual—garnish for cream of pea soup. Try some for lunch with crisp rye wafers.

EASY TO FREEZE ASPARAGUS, SAYS THIS FOOD EXPERT

If your family is fond of asparagus, you might like to freeze some to use later, for asparagus is one of the best vegetables for freezing. Miss Josephine Flory, Missouri University nutritionist, suggests that asparagus be processed when the stalks are at their tenderest. Sort the stalks according to thickness. Wash them thoroughly. Cut or break off and discard the tough parts. The size of the package you use will determine the length you'll cut the stalks. Some homemakers like to cut the asparagus into two-inch lengths. Blanch asparagus in boiling water—the length of time will depend on the thickness of the stalks. Blanch the small stalks two minutes; the larger ones four minutes. Cool promptly in cold water, and drain. Pack into containers, leaving no head space. When packing spears, alternate tips and stem ends. In containers that are wider at the top than bottom, pack asparagus with tips down. Seal, and freeze promptly.

Serves 4
Kauffman's POTATO SALAD

SALAD IDEA

Swiss or Gruyere cheese added to Waldorf salad offers a deliciously different flavor you'll enjoy. To prepare four servings, wash and core four red Winesap apples and cut into bite-size pieces. Mix with two tablespoons lemon juice. Add one cup diced celery and diced Swiss or Gruyere cheese.

Spicy Strawberry Jam

Spicy Strawberry Jam is a delightful combination of favorite flavors, and is another way to lend variety to your supply of sweet spreads made from the strawberry crop.

Season lightly with salt and toss with one-third cup mayonnaise. Serve on crisp salad greens.

SOME VARIATIONS OF STRAWBERRY JAM

Ripe garden strawberries all by themselves made up into jam are a lovely thing, but for extra deliciousness try varying their flavor a bit by the addition of oranges and spices.

Try Strawberry Marmalade on hot buttered toast at breakfast, or Spicy Strawberry Jam as a sundae topping. And either of these spreads are a special treat when a small spoonful is added to the center of cookies before baking.

Strawberry Marmalade.
Four cups prepared fruit (one orange, one lemon, and about one quart ripe strawberries).
Seven cups (three pounds) sugar.
One-half bottle liquid fruit pectin.

First, prepare the fruit. Cut one medium-sized orange and one medium-sized lemon in quarters. Remove seeds. Grind, chop fine, or slice crosswise, wafer thin. Add one-half cup water and one-eighth teaspoon soda. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Crush thoroughly about one quart fully ripe strawberries. Combine fruits and juices and measure four cups into a very large saucepan.

Then make the marmalade. Add sugar to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and at once stir in liquid fruit pectin. Skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for five minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover marmalade at once with one-eighth inch hot paraffin.

Yield: about 10 medium glasses.

Spicy Strawberry Jam.
Four and one-half cups prepared fruit (about two quarts ripe strawberries).
Seven cups (three pounds) sugar.
One-half teaspoon nutmeg.
One-half teaspoon cinnamon.
One box (2½ ounces) powdered fruit pectin.

First, prepare the fruit. Crush completely, one layer at a time, about two quarts fully ripe strawberries. Measure four and one-half cups into a very large saucepan.

Then make the jam. Add one-half teaspoon each nutmeg and cinnamon to crushed strawberries. Measure sugar and set aside. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugar. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for five minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover jam at once with one-eighth inch hot paraffin.

BOTTLED ONION, GARLIC JUICES SAVE TIME, LABOR

When recipes call for chopped or minced onions, bottled pure onion juice may be substituted. Bottled garlic juice is another labor saver, which saves handling whole cloves, and mixes thoroughly or spreads evenly.

One teaspoon of onion juice is the equivalent of one-half a small onion in flavoring strength; one teaspoon of garlic juice equals about one-half clove of garlic chopped and added to food.

Casserole Idea.
Here's a casserole idea for busy days. Stir sautéed chopped onion into canned baked beans. Top with miniature meat balls that have been browned ahead of time. Heat in the oven until bubbling. Good with tossed salad, French bread.

FLUORIDATION PROVEN SAFE, DENTISTS HEAR

National Dental President Urges Kansas City to Add Process.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 19 (AP)—The president of the American Dental Association yesterday urged that Kansas City join the growing list of communities which are fluoridating their water supplies to reduce dental decay.

Dr. Daniel F. Lynch, Washington, D.C., speaking at the combined annual meeting of the Kansas and Missouri state dental associations, pointed out that three communities have now successfully completed 10-year tests of water fluoridation.

"The safety and effectiveness of this public health procedure have been proved, beyond any reasonable doubt," Dr. Lynch said. The three communities are Grand Rapids, Mich.; Newburgh, N.Y., and Brantford, Ontario, Canada.

He reported that nearly 1100 United States communities with a total population of nearly 21,000,000 now have the program in operation.

The dental leader also called for increased support for dental research projects as the most effective way to reduce the high percentage of dental disease.

He said the nation's dental bill exceeds $1,300,000,000 a year, in addition to the $100,000,000 spent annually by the Federal Government on dental care for veterans, members of the armed forces and other recipients.

"Yet the Government allocates only $2,000,000 to support dental research which might prevent these dental ills—a hardly realistic approach to its dental bills," said Dr. Lynch.

The new president of the Missouri State Dental Association is Dr. G. H. Bredall of Perryville. Named president-elect was Dr. Max Kornfeld of St. Louis.

Other officers named include Dr. D. L. Mowery, Jackson, first vice president; Dr. Carl Matthews, Kansas City, second vice president; Dr. Walter L. Eckhardt, St. Louis, third vice president. Re-elected secretary-treasurer was Dr. E. D. Suggett of Jefferson City.

The delegates chose Jefferson City as the site for their 1956 gathering.

VATICAN STEPPING UP RADIO POWER TO FIGHT JAMMING

VATICAN CITY (UP) — The battle between religious broadcasts and Communist interference is now in full swing between the Vatican and Moscow. Without making any open charges, the Vatican has decided to install six new powerful radio transmitters to give new strength to its already mighty radio station. The decision was reached after numerous complaints had been received by the Vatican regarding constant jamming and disturbances which always occurred when special topics were being beamed to Iron Curtain countries.

SAND, GRAVEL FREIGHT HIKE

An increase of 10 cents a ton in railroad charges on shipments of sand and gravel from Pacific and Yeatman, St. Louis county, to St. Louis was ordered yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington. The ICC also affirmed a previous finding that switching charges on these commodities be raised by about 6 per cent at Pacific, but reversed an earlier ruling that such charges at St. Louis be increased 12 per cent. Pacific is 35 miles west of St. Louis; Yeatman, 25 miles.

ARITHMETIC CHECK NETS $59,500,000 U.S. TAXES IN 1954

WASHINGTON, May 19 — Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews reported today that checking the arithmetic of nearly 49,000,000 taxpayers last year netted the Government about $59,500,000.

Andrews gave the figure in his annual report for fiscal year 1954, which ended last June 30. The report added to a summary of general collection figures previously made public.

The commissioner had said in January that total tax collections last year came to $69,919,991,000, a record. Receipts were $200,000,000 higher than a year earlier.

Andrews reported the revenue service received 88,887,000 returns last year, compared with 93,208,000 the previous year. Income tax returns remained almost steady, 67,127,000 compared with 67,176,000 in fiscal 1953. The drop in the total was due mainly to a change in excise tax collections allowing quarterly rather than monthly tax returns.

NEW POST FOR M. L. SMITH

Marvin L. Smith has been appointed general superintendent of transportation for the Missouri Pacific Lines here. It was announced today. He was formerly assistant general manager at Little Rock, Ark., for the railroad's southern district.

Smith will occupy a new position, the duties of which were formerly handled by L. A. Gregory, who will continue as assistant chief operating officer.

30 FARMERS ARE EXECUTED IN CHINA, OPPOSED CONTROLS

HONG KONG, May 19 (AP)—Reports in two non-Communist Chinese papers here today said the Reds have executed 30 Chinese farmers in central Kwangtung province.

The reports said the farmers opposed Government control of agricultural production. The central Kwangtung area is reported to be experiencing a food shortage.

SAYS U.S. INMATE OF SLAVE CAMP ACTED PRO-RED

Fellow Prisoner at Vorkuta in Russia Testifies at Trial of William Marchuk.

BERLIN, May 19 (AP)—A United States Army private testified today that Pvt. William T. Marchuk, 39 years old of Norristown, Pa., acted "pro-Communist" during their confinement in a Soviet slave labor camp at Vorkuta.

The testimony was given at Marchuk's general court-martial by Pvt. William A. Verdine, 28, of Starks, La. The Army's case was completed after Verdine's testimony. A verdict is expected tomorrow. If convicted on all counts, Marchuk faces a possible sentence of 30 years in jail.

Marchuk is being tried on charges of deserting to the Communists in February 1949, and of giving the Russians information about his West Berlin intelligence unit. The court was expected to give its decision later today.

Asked why he believed Marchuk to be pro-Communist Verdine replied: (1) "He said he didn't represent the United States." (2) "His general attitude." (3) "I saw him talking to a lot of other prisoners known to be informers."

Made Under Protest. Verdine's testimony was similar that given by another former inmate of Vorkuta, John H. Noble of Detroit. Verdine made his statement about Marchuk under protest. He said he preferred to withhold his opinions about Marchuk's political beliefs because he felt that his personal dislike of Marchuk made him biased.

He admitted under questioning that he had at one time considered killing Marchuk because Marchuk constantly got on his nerves. He said Marchuk would wake up early and disturb the barracks by shouting and swearing. "I think myself it was just from his nerves," Verdine testified.

tified. "I heard a lot of people ask whether he was crazy," Verdine also testified that Marchuk refused to have anything to do with efforts to plan strikes in the camp.

"Marchuk said if they wanted to strike, it was their funeral," Verdine said. He added that strikers faced the possibility of being shot.

Mental State Described. Marchuk's mental condition was described to the court in a statement signed by Capt. Robert Levy, a New York City psychiatrist.

Levy said Marchuk was sane but was suffering from "acute alcoholism" at the time he disappeared.

In letting himself "be captured" by the Russians, Levy said Marchuk appeared to have been satisfying "immediate, neurotic psychological needs."

Marchuk's parents were Russian-born and he speaks Russian fluently. Because of this, he was chosen for an intelligence job.

Marchuk was returned to West Berlin last Jan. 8. Verdine came back Jan. 20. Verdine has since been tried by an Army court-martial for being absent without leave and was fined $398, but the sentence was later set aside.

RICH BUTTER CREAM FROSTING

What you need:
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup cream of tartar
1/2 cup water
2 eggs whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup margarine
Chocolate decorations
Shaved Brazil nuts

How you do it:
1. Combine sugar, cream of tartar, salt and water in saucepan.
2. Cook to 240° F. on candy thermometer or until a small amount of syrup dropped into cold water forms a soft ball that holds its shape.
3. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry.
4. Add syrup very slowly to egg whites, beating constantly.
5. Add vanilla; continue beating until mixture stands up in very stiff peaks.
6. Cream margarine well; add cold egg white mixture slowly, a tablespoonful at a time, beating well after each addition.
7. Spread between layers of cake as well as on top and sides.
8. If desired, sprinkle sides of cake with chocolate decorations and shaved Brazil nuts.

SELF-LAYERING SALAD

What you need:
2 packages orange flavored gelatin
2 cups hot water
1/2 cup cold peach syrup
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups sliced canned cling peaches, drained (No. 2 1/2 can)
3 medium bananas, sliced

How you do it:
1. Empty gelatin into 2-quart bowl.
2. Add hot water; stir until gelatin has dissolved.
3. Add cold water and almond extract to gelatin mixture.
4. Cool; pour into lightly oiled 9x12x2 inch loaf pan.
5. Add peaches and banana slices to gelatin mixture.
6. Stir to distribute fruit evenly.
7. Chill in refrigerator until firm; peaches will sink to bottom of loaf pan and bananas will float, making a self-layering salad.

1/2 cup soy sauce
Pepper

2. Sauté mushrooms about 2 minutes and add meat; allow to cook until meat has lost its red color, which should take only a few minutes.
3. Push meat and mushrooms to one side of pan; add the green beans, onion, celery, spring onions and broth; cover skillet; cook 5 minutes.
4. Add spinach; cover skillet; cook about 3 minutes.
5. Add soy sauce and pepper to taste; mix in with meat and vegetables; serve immediately with rice.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON JR. FINED $20 ON DRUNK CHARGE

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 19 (AP)—His latest arrest on a drunk charge cost Edward G. Robinson Jr., son of the actor, a $20 fine yesterday.

Robinson, 22 years old, entered a plea of not guilty after he was picked up March 30. Police said he tried to get into the wrong automobile on a parking lot. His case was scheduled for jury trial yesterday but Robinson switched his plea to guilty and Municipal Judge Charles J. Griffin assessed the fine.

Robinson was also arrested on drunk charges last July 9 and Dec. 21. His wife, Frances, has filed suit for divorce.

SENATOR WARNS EASING TENSION MAY BE RED TRAP

Humphrey Fears Infiltration in Southeast Asia as Europe Situation Improves.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—Senator Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, said today the Russians may be setting a trap in Southeast Asia by spectacular moves to ease tensions in Europe.

Humphrey, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in an interview that he fears the Eisenhower Administration may have a "tendency to let down" in Asia because of its present concentration in European affairs.

"I think the Russians may be moving to ease tensions in Europe and at the same time restraining the Chinese Communists from violence in the Formosan area in order to infiltrate the governments in Southeast Asia and cut them off from the free world country by country," he said.

Re-examination Asked.

Humphrey called for a re-examination of American policies in Asia, and suggested a number of recent developments there may be significant.

He said a reported forthcoming visit of Prime Minister Nehru of India to Moscow could be "very important to the West in its implications."

He said Indonesia, "which didn't have a Communist problem not long ago, now has Communists in its government," and added:

"We face elections next year in Viet Nam which could give the whole of that country to the Communists."

Humphrey said he does not expect the Communists to make any openly aggressive move in the Far East, but to depend on infiltration tactics.

"I think the Russians are likely to restrain the Chinese Communists from any attack on Formosa or the coastal islands," he said. "The Communists don't want another Korea."

"In spite of the suffering involved, the Koreans are upset and alerted the free world to its dangers. The Communists would rather lull us to sleep now, I believe."

Humphrey said he agrees that Mr. Eisenhower is not likely to fall into any appeasement trap in a top level meeting with the Premiers of Russia, Britain and France. Mr. Eisenhower told his press conference yesterday there is "no appeasement in my heart."

McCarthy Letter.

However, Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, said in a letter to Mr. Eisenhower released last night there were "rumors" that the Administration plans at the forthcoming Big Four meeting to "purchase the release of American airmen imprisoned by Red China 'at the price of concessions.'"

McCarthy said the Administration should cut off aid to countries which trade with Communist China, blockade the China coast or send a task force "under appropriate air cover" to rescue 481 Americans he said were held by the Reds.

If the latter course were adopted, he said that as a Marine Reserve lieutenant colonel "I offer to participate in such an operation in whatever capacity my services might prove useful."

In his most bitter attack on the President yet, McCarthy wrote Mr. Eisenhower: "Either initiate such measures, Mr. President, or have the courage and candor to admit to the American people that your Administration does not intend to rescue the prisoners."

(Meanwhile, a New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch special dispatch reported State Department experts were studying reports suggesting that Red China may release 11 American airmen now imprisoned by Red China as spies.)

After a study of Premier Chou En-lai's 5000-word speech, broadcast by Peiping radio Tuesday, in which the Red Chinese leader repeated his offer to negotiate with the United States on the Formosa issue, these officials reported an agreeable lessening of tension in that area.)

DEFENSE DEPT. APPROVES MUSTERING OUT PAY BILL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, May 19.—The defense department has endorsed a bill sponsored by representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, to extend the time in which veterans of the Korean fighting can apply for mustering out pay from the armed services, it was announced today.

In a letter to Chairman Olin E. Teague (Dem.), Texas, of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs, David S. Smith, an assistant Secretary of the Air Force, said defense authorities agreed that veterans should not be deprived of mustering out pay because of "an arbitrary cutoff date."

Smith said the Air Force was endorsing the measure on behalf of the Defense Department. Under the bill, the deadline for filing claims for mustering out pay would be extended to July 1956. The veterans' readjustment assistance act of 1952 set the deadline at July 16, 1954.

New York Heat Record.

NEW YORK, May 6 (UP)—The temperature reached 86.9 degrees yesterday, the hottest May 5 ever recorded in New York. The previous high for the date was 86.4, in 1934.

Nothing To Laugh About.
CHICAGO, May 19 (INS)—Lincoln Park Zoo's new hyena broke out of its cage in a baggage car while awaiting transshipment to the Zoo, ripped open a box of frozen fish and downed several pounds Tuesday. It looks agents of the Anti-Cruelty Society two hours to capture the animal.

MARSHALL TO SERVE WITH ATLANTIC UNION

Agrees to Be One of Leaders of Group Seeking to Unite Anti-Red Nations.

WASHINGTON, May 19 (AP)—The Atlantic Union, which seeks to draw the anti-Communist world closer together, announced yesterday Gen. George C. Marshall has agreed to serve as one of its leaders. "I am honored to be counted among those who support the unity of free nations," Marshall was quoted as saying. Clarence Streit, member of the board of governors, gave out copies of a letter from Marshall. It recalled that Marshall had written former Supreme Justice Owen J. Roberts on May 12 accepting membership on the Atlantic Union council.

Roberts, who died Tuesday at the age of 80, had headed the Atlantic Union since its formation in 1948. The group's board of governors will meet in Washington Saturday to choose a successor.

Praise for Roberts.
Marshall praised Justice Roberts' services to his country as "manifold," adding: "But perhaps the finest thing he did was the sacrifice he made in resigning from the Supreme Court to devote himself to the cause of Atlantic Union. The subject today is vitally important and the period fateful. All probably agree to the importance of Atlantic unity but few act."

The Atlantic Union Committee has introduced in Congress a resolution which would call on the President to send delegates to a convention to which other democracies would also send representatives. The purpose of the meeting, from which Russia and the other Communist countries would be barred, would be to "explore and to report to what extent their peoples might further unite."

The convention, according to the resolution, would also "agree to form, federally or otherwise, a defensive economic and political union."

Backing in Congress.

Officials of the group said 52 Representatives and 16 Senators have joined as sponsors of the proposed resolution. They said they are hopeful that hearings on it can get under way soon. Senator Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, one of the sponsors, has called for hearings in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Marshall praised the resolution as a "prudent proposal, which commits us only to exploration," and declared that Americans, in view of their own history of building a federal union which still preserved state sovereignty, "should have a sympathetic understanding of this effort."

The Atlantic Union Committee claims a membership of 8000. The resolution now before Congress is the second by the committee. The first was introduced in 1950 and each year thereafter but was never acted on.

ARRESTED AFTER CHASE AT 85 MILES AN HOUR

Charles M. Mitchell, a mechanic of Hematite, Mo., was booked for police court appearance tomorrow for speeding 85 miles an hour and ignoring four intersection stops, following a chase early today in South Broadway by two Carondelet District officers.

Patrolman John Long and William Daues, in a police cruiser, reported they heard a speeding machine approaching from the north. Passing the police car in the 5800 block of South Broadway, the machine continued to pick up speed as Long and Daues started in pursuit, they said.

The chase ended abruptly in the 9500 block of Broadway, in St. Louis county, when the speeder failed to negotiate a jog in the road, and hit a parked machine. Long and Daues took Mitchell to City Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises, then placed him in a police hold-over. He denied speeding, declaring "It's all a mistake."

COUNTY HEALTH DEPT., AREA SEWER DISTRICT PROCEDURES

Operating procedures to be followed by the St. Louis County Health Department and the Metropolitan Sewer District in matters relating to the public health aspects of sewer planning and design have been agreed on by both organizations, it was announced today.

Now in Reusable Plastic Containers

In a report to the County Council, Dr. Herbert R. Domke, county health commissioner, said it had been agreed, among other things, that all sanitary sewer plans for proposed subdivisions be approved by the Health Department which acts as agent for the district in these matters.

While the Health Department will review public health, structural and hydraulic features of proposed sanitary sewers within subdivisions, it will not approve plans for sub-trunk or larger sewers until the staff of the district has approved structural and hydraulic features. Any proposals for new sanitary sewer subdivisions will be reviewed by the Health Department on their public health aspects.

RIDGWAY CALLS WEST STRONGER THAN THE REDS

Army Chief Says Free World Could Meet Kremlin Power Successfully if Assailed.

NEW ORLEANS, May 19 (UP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said today that it is a mistake to think the Communist powers have the free world outnumbered in military strength.

"Great as the power of the Kremlin dictatorship may be," Ridgway said in a prepared Armed Forces day speech, "it is not so great that we could not meet it successfully if we should be assailed."

The Army chief of staff, who retires June 30, called for "almost infinite patience" in building alliances.

Ridgway said the free world has one and one-half times as many physically fit males of military age as the Red bloc. It is "neither likely nor necessary," however, that the Allies would mobilize as large a percentage of their manpower as the Reds, he said.

He pointed out that "military capacity is not measurable solely in numerical terms but only in terms of effectiveness." The Allies have the edge in industry and technology and, to a degree, "high quality man make up for deficient quantity," Ridgway said.

He said that Russia has 145 army divisions in Eastern Europe and European Russia with 80 satellite divisions in addition. The Russians have 30 divisions in the Far East, and the Chinese Communist army has 200,000,000 men, Ridgway said. He said the Russian army has 40,000 tanks, its air force has 20,000 combat planes and the Red navy has "significant" submarine strength.

Against that, Ridgway called attention to the "significant strategic factor" of North Atlantic treaty forces, with the addition of West German units yet to come, the "importance" of Southeast Asia treaty alliance and the Western Hemisphere defense pacts.

GRUENTHER SAYS WEST WOULD WIN

NEW YORK, May 19 (UP)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme commander of the Allied Powers in Europe, said today that even if Soviet forces were able to over-run Europe at this moment they would lose the war provided Western military powers could use the atomic bomb.

Gruenther, addressing the annual United States Conference of Mayors, said that the West's air superiority and ability to retaliate with the atomic bomb gave it the upper hand over Russia and its satellites today.

"But how long we will have that air superiority is something else," he said.

Comparing the air power of the West with that of the East, he said that Russia had "20,000 operational planes, some very good and some not so good."

"However, we probably have a slight advantage, especially in pilots and maintenance," he said.

"In the field of long-range planes, the Soviets are lagging behind the West and specifically behind the United States."

Gruenther said that the NATO forces in Europe are not strong enough to resist an all-out act of aggression but "they would put up a valiant fight and if the enemy made a mistake they might be able to deal him a knock-out blow."

He said that the Russians had 175 well-trained divisions made up of "disciplined men well able to fight."

Gruenther said a Soviet propaganda campaign of "sweetness and light" is intended to prevent Germany from contributing to Western military strength and to bar atomic weapons. He asked the mayors not to fall victim to Communist propaganda.

"There is very great danger," Gruenther said, "that public opinion will force political leaders into dangerous compromises that might eventually turn to our very great disadvantage."

Declaring he had faith in the political leaders, the general called on the public to have "the stoutness of heart to see this thing through."

U.S. ARMY IS KEEPING BAR ON GERMAN POLIO VACCINE

FRANKFURT, Germany, May 19 (UP)—The United States Army said today it was sticking to its policy of not recommending foreign types of anti-polio vaccine despite German claims to an "equally effective and less dangerous" one than the Salk vaccine.

The Army expects to offer Salk vaccinations to 45,000 American children in Europe this summer. The Air Force is to vaccinate about 35,000 children.

The German vaccine was developed by Marburg University Prof. Dr. Richard Hass and has been tested on 800 children. Mass inoculations were postponed until after the polio season.

Swift's Director of Home Economics, Martha Logan, demonstrates how new Swift'ning deep-fries potatoes so they're crisp and digestible.

Martha Logan shows you how to deep-fry in NEW Swift'ning for greater digestibility, fewer calories

1. Right size pan "Use a heavy, straight-sided saucepan or frying kettle. Its size should be such that the melted Swift'ning will be at least 2 to 3 inches deep and not fill the pan over 3/4 full. We're going to fry potatoes—enough for 4 servings—which calls for 1 pound (2 1/2 c.) of Swift'ning. So we'll need a 1 1/2 qt. saucepan."

2. Heat Swift'ning slowly "While you prepare the potatoes, heat the Swift'ning over low heat. After it melts, you can increase the heat until the Swift'ning reaches 365° F. Pure white Swift'ning—the most digestible shortening you can buy—is so carefully refined that it doesn't smoke or scorch at frying temperatures. That's important!"

3. Be sure potatoes are dry "Wash and pare 2 to 3 medium-sized potatoes. Cut them lengthwise into strips about 3/4 inch thick and soak in cold water for at least 1/2 hour. Drain; wipe very dry between towels or paper towels. As new Swift'ning heats, notice there's no unpleasant odor. Some shortenings develop odors and flavors in frying."

4. Check the temperature "The most important single point in deep frying is proper temperature. A deep fat frying thermometer is a big help; if you haven't one, use the bread cube test: a 1/2" cube of slightly dry white bread will turn golden brown in 50 seconds if the fat is at 365 degrees. 365° is right for potatoes, onions, doughnuts."

5. Don't fry too many at once "Use a wire basket or slotted spoon to lift potatoes out. Cook till golden brown, 6 to 10 min., keeping potatoes in motion. Before you put in more, always check the temperature of the Swift'ning. It must be kept close to 365°. At lower temperatures, food soaks up fat, which means extra calories. Very little is absorbed at 365°."

6. More digestible than baked potatoes "Drain fried potatoes well over kettle, then on paper towel. Actually, your Swift'ning-fried potatoes will be more digestible than baked! New Swift'ning is not only the most digestible shortening, it's the most dependable, too. It's never too soft or hard, always handles just right for perfect cakes and pies. Just try it!"

SOME TEXAS DROUTH AREAS SURVIVING FLOOD THREATS

AUSTIN, Tex., May 19 (AP)—Flood threats around three Texas cities waned today almost as quickly as the cloudbursts that caused them hit the drouth areas. At Brady, Ballinger and Eastland, Tex., police minimized danger and said they believed conditions were improving.

The waters of flooded creeks and rivers subsided or held near flood levels after cries of "too much rain" went up in a wide Southwest region where dust storms recently have devastated the land.

Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas received downpours yesterday and last night in some of their driest areas. More than 11 inches of rain fell at Eastland, Tex., in 12 hours.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., May 19 (AP)—The World Veterans Federation was voted the highest ranking consultative status in the United Nations Economic and Social Council yesterday, over Soviet opposition.

Sparked by a glowing tribute from Joza Brilej, Yugoslav delegation head, the organization representing 18,000,000 veterans in 29 countries was given the right to make speeches in the council by a 15-2 vote. The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia were opposed.

TALKS UNSUCCESSFUL IN DRIVERS' STRIKE

Meeting of Union, Firms, Conciliator Fails to Find Basis—Conference Monday.

Representatives of striking AFL Building Material and Construction Chauffeurs and 46 material dealers and ready-mix concrete plants met with United States conciliators for five hours yesterday without finding a basis for settlement of the drivers' strike.

The conference recessed until 10 a.m. next Monday, at the Old Federal Building. Meanwhile, approximately $500,000,000 in construction is tied up in the St. Louis area, the greater portion of it commercial construction.

The employers committee yesterday presented a counter-proposal dealing with seniority, welfare and other "fringe" issues. Union representatives were reported to have declared the proposal offered slight change from the old agreement, and was not acceptable. When it became apparent that no progress was immediately possible the conference was recessed until next week.

Union demands include two 10-cent an hour wage increases with employers offering two 7½-cent increases. Wages were not discussed yesterday.

A spokesman for the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis, who recently called on the material dealers and drivers to settle their differences in the interest of the construction industry, said today the walkout has not affected residential building as much as had been expected.

Contractors are obtaining material from dealers on the East Side and in St. Charles, and from eight St. Louis firms which reached an agreement with the union the first week of the strike, the spokesman reported.

"Our business has been affected, but not as much as was anticipated," the builders' spokesman told the Post-Dispatch. "Work which normally would be done later in the construction schedule is being performed now, and contractors requiring material to carry on a job are getting it. There is an additional cost, due to long-haul deliveries, but that has to be paid."

More than 3000 building workmen are idle, due to the walkout. The 600 striking drivers are receiving strike benefits of $35 weekly from local and International Teamsters Union sources.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE STUDY METHOD STRESSED IN REPORT

Importance of continuity in teaching foreign languages was emphasized last night by a committee of the R-2 (Ferguson-Florisant) School District Alliance which spent six months studying the entire course of study in the schools.

Foreign language study started in elementary grades should proceed without interruption into high school, the committee said in a report at the alliance's annual meeting in Ferguson High School. Motivation, as well as continuity, is lost when there is a gap of several years between courses in the elementary and high school grades, the committee found.

The 25-page report, available to the public, will be studied by the alliance, which then may make recommendations to the district's school board. Richard For was elected president of the alliance.

Now! Buy the juicy ham that has everything!

NO SKIN!

No inedible skin to pay for. No tough skin to saw through when carving.

NO SHANK!

The wasteful shank is gone for good, but the rest of the bone remains—for flavor.

Look!
No Bony
Shank!

JUST THE HEART OF THE HAM!

New Swift's Premium Ham

Here's the modern way to get more and juicier meat for your money when you buy ham. There's no skin, no excess fat, no shank bone in this new Swift's Premium Ham. Just wonderful, wonderful eating for all the family.

And—with no skin and no shank bone—this is without a doubt the easiest carving ham your husband ever put a knife to.

This is also the ham that's processed a new patented way that seals in more natural flavor juices (U.S. Patent No. 2,596,067). This exclusive new Swift process makes this ham tenderer. Much tenderer. And juicier—and rosier. Keeps in even more of the precious protein.

Nor can mere words ever describe what Swift's s-l-o-o-w smoking does for the flavor. Try a slice and you'll buy a half or a whole ham! It's that good!

When dining out, look for Swift's Premium Ham on the menu. Remember: "Meat makes the meal!"

RUSSIA ACCEPTS PLEA ON VIET NAM REFUGEES IN PART

Britain Indicates More Time Will Be Given for Flight From Communist Zone.

LONDON, May 19 (AP)—The Foreign Office said today Russia has accepted in part a British request to give refugees more time to quit Communist-controlled North Viet Nam.

A foreign Office spokesman said a Soviet note delivered to Britain yesterday "has come some way" toward meeting a series of British proposals for extending the May 18 deadline set by the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina. After that date, by the terms of the Geneva settlement, refugees were to be barred from crossing the border separating North from South Viet Nam. He indicated the movement had not yet been halted.

Britain's ambassador in Moscow, Sir William Hayter, was called in yesterday by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov to discuss the whole situation further.

Served as Co-Chairman.

Britain had submitted its proposals to Russia—which served with Britain as co-chairmen of the Geneva conference—to give non-Communist residents of North Viet Nam more time and more freedom to leave.

The Soviet note received yesterday answered a British communication of May 7 in which this country suggested to Russia that it should join Britain in recommending to all those nations participating in the Geneva settlement that the May 18 deadline be extended for refugee movements and proposed that these refugee movements should be allowed to continue until the Indian-Polish Canadian control commission for Viet Nam agreed unanimously the exodus had been completed.

The Foreign Office spokesman said pending receipt of the full text of the Russian note he could not say precisely how the Russians have tried to meet the British request.

He did indicate, however, the refugees will continue to move southward across the border from North Viet Nam even though the official deadline became effective at midnight last night.

British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan discussed the issue informally in his meeting with Molotov in Vienna over the weekend.

Diem's invitation to West.

Meantime, the Government of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem has invited the United States, Britain and France to join in a conference in Saigon soon to discuss the general problems of South Viet Nam's future.

Among the problems which the Diem Government presumably wants to discuss is the attitude it should take toward the question of preparing for elections throughout Viet Nam.

The Geneva agreement specified that the Governments of North and South Viet Nam should begin discussions no later than July of this year on conditions and arrangements for country-wide elections within one year—that is by July 1956. The Diem Government presumably will want the backing of the big Western powers for a program of economic recovery.

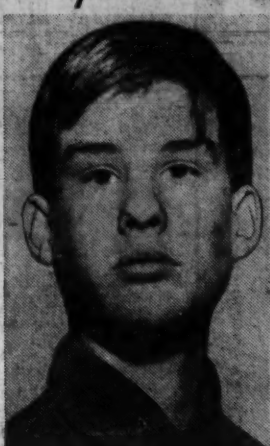

Official sources said later Britain is ready to accept the invitation of the Diem government for the Saigon conference although the Foreign Office declined to comment.

About 700,000 refugees, mainly Roman Catholics, have fled to the south from Communist rule since Viet Nam was split along

LONELINESS CALLED BIG PROBLEM OF AGE

British Physician, Speaking Here, Urges Research on Keeping Oldsters Happy.

Loneliness and a feeling of not being needed by family or society are major enemies to happiness for persons reaching old age, Dr. Joseph H. Sheldon of Wolverhampton, England, told the Gerontological Research Foundation last night.

Dr. Sheldon, addressing a dinner meeting at Missouri Athletic Club, called for intensified research into problems of old age. He pointed out that the percentage of elderly persons in populations in showing marked increase.

"We must keep them healthy, happy, and independent," Dr. Sheldon said. He is president of the International Association of Gerontology and senior physician at the Royal Hospital, Wolverhampton.

Dr. Sheldon said some factors leading to ill health in persons over 70 were simple and easily remedied. He mentioned the need for properly fitted spectacles, hearing aids and treatment of foot ailments.

In England, the speaker declared, investigation showed that one of the most important lacks among old people was good eyeglasses. Many were found to be wearing spectacles that were not suitable to their needs, he said.

Dr. Sheldon said further studies should be made of ways and means to make old people happy in the community. The ideal, he suggested, is the situation in which the old person has independence but maintains close ties with the family group.

A progress report on the foundation, which was organized last year, was made by its director of scientific research, Dr. William B. Kountz of Washington University School of Medicine, Erwin P. Stupp, president, presided.

the seventeenth parallel under the Geneva accords.

The western powers still have posts in the northern as well as the southern parts of the country. Their estimates place the number of North Viet Namese who still want to quit their homes at around 400,000.

BOY, 14, ADMITS HE KILLED PLAYMATE, 7

Police Quote Him as Saying
'I Get Urge Like That.'

OAKLAND, Calif., May 19 (AP)—Fourteen-year-old David Drew has admitted killing his 7-year-old playmate, Stanley R. Frank Jr., Tuesday night with a hatchet and knife.

Police Inspector Bruce Cunningham said the boys squabbled as they built a fort in a ravine, two blocks from Stanley's home. David told Stanley to go home. Stanley refused. David tied his hands with a rope.

Cunningham quoted David: "Stanley ran away. He bent beneath a branch looking for something. I hit the branch with a hatchet to scare him. Just then he raised his head and was hit. He started screaming. 'I had my knife in my other hand. I stabbed him three or four times.'"

"I don't know what happened. I just got scared."

Officers also quoted him as saying: "I get an urge just like that once in a while."

When Stanley did not come home for dinner, his parents began searching. They met David who first took them to another location—then to Stanley's body.

Doctors said death was apparently caused by a hatchet wound on the head. They said the knife wounds were superficial.

Stanley's father is a partner in a lithographing firm. The Franks have one other son, 1 year old.

David was held at the juvenile hall for investigation.

His father, Franklin Drew, is an appliance firm employee.

Morbidity Ingenuity
On 'This Is Your Life'

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, May 19. THERE don't seem to be any limits to the morbidity ingenuity of Mr. Ralph Edwards who presides over "This Is Your Life." As I suppose everyone knows, characters of various nature are tricked unwittingly on to Mr. Edwards' stage and then told that their lives would be unfolded for the edification of several million viewers.

JOHN CROSBY

Subject just the other day was the Rev. Kiyoshi Tanimoto, Japanese Christian minister, who was in Hiroshima the day the atom bomb fell and is in this country with the group of disgraced girls from Hiroshima who have come over for plastic surgery. The minister had never heard of Mr. Edwards or his program and was understandably quite bewildered.

Before he even knew what was happening, Mr. Edwards was talking about that day 10 years ago in Hiroshima: "At 6 in the morning you are lending a helping hand to a member of your parish when suddenly..."

Just then an air raid siren went off and in a moment or two films of the atom bomb explosion were shown as the orchestra registered musical pandemonium. The camera then came back to a tight head shot of Tanimoto. Rarely have you ever seen such pain in a man's eyes.

THEN EDWARDS DRAGGED OUT of him a minute description of his reactions. "Did you know that Hiroshima had been the first city to feel the force of atomic power?" he asked. Tanimoto, looking dazed, said: "I didn't know what happened."

Then Edwards wrested from him the information that his wife, with their child in her arms, had dug herself out of the debris and found him unhurt, that in the hours that followed he ran from wounded person to wounded person, that he ran for medical aid that was largely unavailable, that he tried to comfort badly burned victims with rice cakes. He recalled people running past him with flesh hanging from them and—well, it was a real cheery account.

BUT THAT wasn't all. Edwards brought on the pilot of the plane that dropped the bomb to have his say. Also present were two of the disgraced girls from Hiroshima, shown in silhouette "to save them embarrassment." And the Rev. Mr. Tanimoto's wife was there and was given a charm bracelet. I don't know how this sort of thing strikes the rest of you folks but I call it plain ordinary commercialized sadism.

ALREADY THERE HAVE BEEN clamors of complaint from abroad. In the last 18 months British censors have rejected six American pictures in their entirety because of their violence and brutality. Two other pictures were so badly cut up by British censors that it's doubtful there is enough left to show.

Meanwhile from Oslo comes word that the Norwegians are heavily censoring sadism and violence out of American pictures while leaving "to save bathing scenes from Swedish films. Nudity, say the Norwegians, is not nearly so harmful as brutality."

And just putting a moral tagline on it—Edwards ended the show with a pious hope that the world would stay at peace—does not justify this descent into morbidity. This show was in shocking taste.

Husband Spoils Baby

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

"I HAVE a problem which I think is quite serious, and would appreciate any help you can offer," a mother writes.

"I am 32 years old and my husband is 40. We have been married several years and now have a lovely 2-year-old baby boy who is healthy and normal in every way. I have two other children by a previous marriage. They are also healthy and normal. They love their baby brother and he loves them. We all live together and have the real makings of a real happy family, excepting for this one problem—Daddy. The baby's father is just insane over him. He can't even play alone. Daddy has to play with him. As little as the baby is it often aggravates him. When Daddy takes the baby out walking, he carries him and now he won't walk by himself any more. Daddy insists on feeding him too or wants one of us to. But the baby wants to feed himself.

"Why, he can't even play alone. Daddy has to play with him. As little as the baby is it often aggravates him. When Daddy takes the baby out walking, he carries him and now he won't walk by himself any more. Daddy insists on feeding him too or wants one of us to. But the baby wants to feed himself.

"WHEN BABY RUNS, Daddy is right behind for fear he'll fall. My husband is so afraid he'll get hurt. Friends and relatives hate to see us coming because of my husband's behavior. He doesn't let that child move and it's got so now that he won't play with other children when Daddy is around.

"My in-laws and relatives have tried a number of times to point out to my husband how wrong he is and how he should listen to me. I brought up the other two children and loads of people remark on how well mannered both are. Why even the children notice it when their Daddy says, 'He's only a baby; let's keep him that way.'

"In every other way my husband is a real dear. He's kind to me and my children, but I am always worn out by his unreasonable ways with the baby. I can't do anything with the baby when he's around. Please help me out."

YOURS IS a very interesting letter and a very interesting problem. We judge from your letter that this is your husband's first baby. You have to realize what this experience must mean to him at the age of 40, and so you have to go easy on any criticism or any efforts to change him.

However, what he is doing is not good for the baby, as you realize. Perhaps you could get the best results by suggesting to him that it is not good for his relationship with his son for him to behave in this way. That children often turn against fathers who have spoiled them too much. It is almost like being allowed to have too much candy. Later on you must get sick of it. So that if he wants to protect his own later relationship with his child, he has got to be a little more firm and not spoil him now. Perhaps if he realizes this, it will be easier for him to be a little more firm.

Relieving Your Tensions With Food

This Isn't Such a Bad Reason for Eating—Recipes That Will Do the Job

By Hoyt Alden

JUDGING from the books on food which fill the shelves the days and keep coming off the presses in increasing numbers, the American people no longer know just where they stand on the subject of eating. They seem to be alternately attracted and repelled by food. Fascinated and frightened.

Because on one hand we have more, bigger and better cook books than the country ever saw before. And on the other hand we're up to here in books on food fads, dieting and the dangers of overeating. And both types of books seem to be selling like the proverbial hotcakes, which would indicate that while half the country is on a cooking spree, the other half is trying to get rid of the results of too many cooking sprees. Or else we've all become gastronomic schizophrenics who don't know what we want.

What got me started on the subject was a line in a new book, on dieting to the effect that one of the facets of the meaning of food is people often eat to relieve their tensions. Well, that isn't such a bad reason for eating, when you come right down to it, and I don't know of anything that will relieve my tensions quite as fast and as well as fine roast loin of pork cooked up with some nice medium-sized onions and carrots around it, seasoned with a few things like celery and bay leaves and coming out of the pan with a medium thin brown gravy with an aroma that would penetrate the lead and attract men from the far corners of the earth.

WELL, here's how, and let's all relieve our tensions: Trim the fat off a five to six pound loin of pork and wipe it with a damp cloth and dry it. Mix up some salt and pepper, along with some thyme and a little nutmeg. For three teaspoons of salt use one of pepper and thyme and a half one of nutmeg. Work these things into a kind of powder, and then rub it all over the meat.

Now put the roast in the roasting pan, and I prefer a shallow one. Slice about three medium carrots in round slices. Peel a couple of pretty big onions and slice them thin. Put the carrots and the onion slices around the roast, along with four cloves of garlic. Then tie together a bunch of celery leaves, a bunch of parsley and a couple of bay leaves, and lay them in the roaster. Then mix a half cup of dry white wine with a half cup of consommé and pour it over the meat.

Have your oven hot and cook the roast for about 20 minutes until it begins to brown. Then turn the heat down to medium, say 350, and let it roast slowly and gently, basting it now and then, until it's good and done, which is going to take about four hours. If your roast runs six pounds.

A few minutes before quitting time move the roast to another pan and squeeze a half lemon over it and put it back in the oven. Take the roasting pan and pour off the fat. Then add a cup of consommé, a half cup of white wine and a half cup of water. Boil this down rapidly, and you should know how to scrape the essence of the meat off the bottom and sides of the pan and stir it until it dissolves in the liquid. Let it boil down until it thickens and pour it in a separate gravy dish. Garnish the roast with a little parsley, and when carved, pour a little of the gravy over each slice. You won't be tense for days.

If you want to get so relaxed you can't get up off the floor, just have some baked sweet potatoes along with the roast.

Some Ideas
For Games
With a Child

By Angelo Patri

GAMES are fine educational tools when wisely used. Children love play and they often enjoy a game with their fathers or mothers. Mothers, of course, have the best opportunity for this experience with their children though they are often pressed for time.

With the stay-at-home children these games can be very helpful in getting the children in shape for school life. They learn words and they learn deft movements and the meaning of successful action and all of which goes into the fund that serves as a background for language and for reading. They also gather experiences that will enable them to live more comfortably and happily with other people. They can learn good manners easily.

A MOTHER who sits down to sew or knit for a while can keep a runabout child busy and happy playing a game with him. Try errands. Tell the child to look on the table in the dining room for a book that is there and bring it with him. Say thank you to him. Tell him he is at the wrong address. Mrs. Geranium lives down street under the kitchen table and would love the book she sent for. That's fun.

With older children try a manners game. Myrtle Leaf is coming to call. Arrangements for her entertainment, greeting, goodbye, are planned. Then the game begins, each child and his mother an actor. The children love a play and the experience is a pleasant way of learning good manners.

Sometimes the children act as invited guests at a luncheon party while their mother plays the hostess. A carefully laid table made as pretty as for company helps set the atmosphere. The children assume names as dignified or as funny as they please. They behave as polite

More for Your Money

By Lawrence Galton

THEY'RE helps: These recently published books may have problem-solving, money-saving ideas for you: "Your Insurance and How to Profit by It," which makes obscure insurance terms clear, has suggestions to help decide kind and amount of life, property, other insurance your family needs. ... Easy Home Repairs," which shows how to remodeling and repairing, includes homeowner's seasonal check-list. ... "The Pruning Manual," good tree and bush care reference volume. ... "Complete Boating Handbook," with data on building, navigation, tips on cruising throughout the country. ... "1001 Things You Can Get Free," from product samples, pots and paintings to scholarships, health and legal aids.

Around the house: If your freezer goes off because of power failure, don't be hasty in throwing away all partly thawed foods. Advise a Cornell expert: Thawed fruits are safe. Vegetables may spoil more readily but those still having enough ice to hold them together are o.k. Fish spoils quickly, meats are o.k. if no "off" odors are present. Penn State research reports that meat thawed and refrozen three times proved equal in flavor to meat used after first thawing. Some thawed beef, kept seven days in unopened package at room temperature, then refrozen at zero, tasted fine.

For your porch or breezeway: If you'd like to screen one or both, new panoramic roll-down tension screens will let you do the job for as little as one-third usual cost and without cutting down visibility. Made in widths up to six feet, they operate like window shades. Suspended from hooks at top, they roll down to floor level, secure there, and tension alone maintains a snug fit along vertical edges, so there's no need for costly view-blocking framings. Screens store in little space. Non-standard sizes to fit particular porches or breezeways can be obtained.

For your garden: A burstproof plastic hose with tire cord reinforcement will let you turn off hose at nozzle, without worry about bursting even if hose is left under full water pressure in the hot sun for days. ... A do-it-yourself garden block mold that turns out 2x6x8-inch blocks for garden walks, terrace or fireplace construction for as little as two cents a block and at one-a-minute rate. Costing about $7.95, the steel mold comes with forming blocks, trowel, coloring pigment samples, instructions, idea folder.

Another time one of the children is host or hostess and mother is the guest.

MANY USEFUL BITS of learning and accomplishment are best taught this way. It is not as troublesome as it may sound. The circumstances and the stage of growth of the children decide the game and the way it is played. There need not be too much of to-do about the idea. A touch of imagination and the play spirit lend it might be if undertaken seriously. It must be fun.

Nothing knits a family closer and in more friendly spirit than family games in which father and mother and children all join. Family unity, sympathy and understanding are promoted and useful learning goes on into the bargain.

You'll find that when attaching plastic screening to a wood frame, heavy staples will do a better and faster job than will tacks.

Excessive Moisture

If you heat your house with gas and if you've been bothered by excessive moisture inside the house during the winter in the form of sweating windows and damp walls or if you've had trouble with peeling paint on the outside walls, we've got something in the nature of good news for you.

The good news is that this moisture condition can usually be corrected and the cure does not necessarily involve too much in time or money.

It seems that the primary cause of all this trouble is improper venting of the gas burning equipment or insufficient chimney draft. Sometimes all you have to do is get more air to the furnace by opening a basement window or opening the utility room door.

If the gas furnace does not have a good supply of fresh air, much of the chimney draft will be used up pulling air into the house and there won't be enough draft left over to remove all products of combustion from the house. The result is excessive moisture in the home.

Another cure that often does the trick is to install a double metal or single aluminum liner in the chimney. These special chimney liners act as insulation and thus the temperature of the flue is raised which means a stronger draft.

Another trick that is often employed is to install a special motor driven venting aid into the flue to force the products of combustion out through the chimney.

If you have had a moisture problem in connection with gas burning heating equipment, the people to get in touch with is the local gas utility company. They have the experts on hand who can come over and advise you on which, of all the various cures possible, is best for your particular condition.

Postcard Birds and Dogs

By Stan Delaplaine

NO DAY is without its minor tragedies. The 11-year-old messenger of fate is carrying the budgie up the hill from a neighbor who has been budgie-sitting while I was out of town.

STAN DELAPLAINE

a critic leaving after the first act.

Even so I shall miss him. Alas, poor Hamlet.

I BOUGHT a bird feeder. "For Yards of Happiness," said the advertisement. It said that this bird feeder would attract high-class birds who would sing me heart-warming tunes.

Apparently I live on the wrong side of the bird tracks. Only a bunch of scruffy sparrows came around to scold this balanced fodder.

Once in a while, a pair of jays come down and drive off the sparrows. The sparrows make a frightful racket about it. "Stop thief!" The jays holler back. It is plenty noisy.

***

I HAVE TWO boxer dogs. The female should have pups this summer. It is a long way off. But like most females, she is already brooding about it. The other day while trotting about some important business with her mind on other things, she was hit by a car. She is now recuperating in a hospital, surrounded by flowers and late novels. We expect her home today and I imagine she will bore us to death talking about her delicate condition.

The male boxer, Mike, takes impending fatherhood calmly.

There is also a neighbor boxer, Butch, who has decided to make a long, friendly visit. Last week he spent the entire week here.

I don't know what he ate. He just stayed around and seemed quite happy to visit. Like a country cousin. He is only 7 months old. Once I tried to send him home by yelling at him. He jumped in the car which happened to be open and wagged his tail.

***

A BLACK SPANIEL female comes over to visit, too. In the morning when the sun is on the redwood trees and the jays and sparrows exchange libels, I like to work in the kitchen with the doors open. There is a pleasant hum of bees who are settling down up in the madrone trees and buzzing the spring lupin. The smell of coffee is an inspiration to be at work.

At this time, all the dogs come in and lie under the table at my feet.

It is not a bad life. When the typewriter is chattering on all cylinders. This is the measure of our peace.

But if the typewriter works in jerks. With much back-spacing and xcking out. Then the dogs keep a wary eye on me. For then they seem to grow larger and underfoot. And they know at any moment I may rise in rage and run the whole outfit up the creek. It takes the edge off. And anyway, they need the exercise.

Problem in Illness

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

WHEN cancer strikes a family there has to be a rallying of forces, a readjustment (often radical) of family routine and a marshaling of resources for a long siege. Where do the children fit into this picture, and how much explanation should be made to them? Certainly they are vitally affected, yet the question arises frequently whether they should be told the whole truth, part of the truth, or nothing. I can't answer this for everybody, but I have some thoughts on the subject that may be helpful, and I direct them to Mrs. A.

DR. PAUL POPENOE

"I HAVE JUST HAD the diagnosis," she relates. "I am to have an operation as soon as I can get ready for it. The physicians tell me my prospects are excellent, but it will be a long struggle at best. My husband and I don't know what to do about our children. We have three, ranging from 7 years old down to 2. Should we tell them the whole story? If not, how much? Will the truth reassure them or fill them with needless fears and terrors? We talk this over and over and are at our wits end to know what to do."

If you were able to conceal your entire problem so that nobody but yourself knew about it, there would be an argument in favor of doing so, Mrs. A. All of us are too much inclined to pass our own troubles on to others, but I doubt if you can cover up this episode completely in that way. You will betray yourself by your whole attitude.

MUCH OF THE DANGER which cancer creates (and don't forget that two families out of every three are affected by it in one way or another) grows out of just this doubt, fear, and dread that you describe. We aren't willing to face it honestly, to talk about it as something which we deal with scientifically and to adjust ourselves to it as just another problem to be met and solved.

My general idea is that you should face up to this situation without any sidestepping. Tell the children whatever they can understand. Let them feel that they are going to help you get through an event that will change the life of the family in many ways probably for some months. They will have the feeling of security which they need, not from ignorance of the facts but from feeling that they are informed and trusted.

I wish that none of my readers might have to face this problem but I know that thousands have done so. Tell me how you dealt with it. You should have some very helpful suggestions for others.

Pulitzer Prize-Winner in Land of Parr

Mrs. Caro Brown Won Award for Reporting Story of Political Boss and How He Ruled 4 Texas Counties

By Dickson Terry

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ALICE, Tex., May 19.

DOWN in Southern Texas, just west of Corpus Christi and just north of the Rio Grande, are four sun-baked counties called Jim Wells, Duval, Brooks and Starr, but better known through most of Texas as the Land of Parr. The area gets its name from one George Parr, a 53-year-old lawyer and political boss whose hold on the counties is such that he is known as the Duke of Duval.

The land is one of sun, dust, rattlesnakes and mesquite, and to the outsider life around here would seem to be more of a punishment than a privilege. From 75 to 80 per cent of the population is Latin-American from Mexico and Spanish is the common tongue. Americans are known as "Anglos." In the courthouse at San Diego, the county seat of Duval county, all the county officers are Latin-Americans, and Spanish is the official language.

The Land of Parr has long been an awesome curiosity in Texas politics. It started back in 1911 when Archie Parr, a cowboy turned lawyer, set himself up as the patron saint of the down-trodden Mexicans. It was election day and three Mexicans were shot. Parr, who spoke Spanish, took up the case for the Mexicans, tried to bring the gun-toting Anglos to justice. He quickly slipped into the role of patron to the Latin-Americans, fed them when they were hungry, got them jobs when they were out of work. It was only natural they should vote, en bloc, for his candidates for public office. They voted so unanimously that in time the elder Parr had almost absolute control over Duval county, where he lived, and pretty fair control over surrounding counties.

When Young George Parr came home from the University of Texas in 1926, he slipped right into his father's machine, and began to expand. He developed what has been called one of the most rigidly controlled political machines in the nation.

But it was hidden away in the hot and dusty plains of Texas. Few outsiders ever came here. Texas politicians knew, of course, and made their political calculations accordingly. Duval county produced automatic majorities of 100 to 1. Not many of the voters could read and write, yet their ballots were always marked at the right place. One method was to give each voter a piece of string. The string was just long enough to reach from the top of the ballot to the right name.

The Parr machine probably reached the heights of its arrogance in the 1948 senatorial race between ex-Gov. Coke Stevenson and present Senator Lyndon Johnson. It appeared that Stevenson was the victor by the thin margin of 112 votes out of nearly a million cast. Then six days later the Land of Parr sent in an amended return showing 333 additional votes, 201 of them for Johnson. This gave him a plurality of 87 votes, a seat in the United States Senate and the nickname around Texas of "Landslide Lyndon."

BUT this triumph was really the beginning of the end for George Parr, because it aroused the ire of the state's Attorney General, John Ben Shepherd, who just didn't believe it. Shepherd's credulity was stretched to the breaking point in a subsequent local election in Duval county when a Parr-supported candidate for judge won with 4000 write-in votes, in a county where few voters can write their own names, let alone someone else's. The press in the Land of Parr had long maintained what might be called a cautious silence. In 1949 a radio broadcaster named Bill Mason had tried to tell the people of Duval county and elsewhere what was going on. A Parr deputy shot him dead on the street. Two other citizens who had been outspoken against Parr had been found dead.

Such was the situation when Attorney General Shepherd and his whole staff of agents, armed with information gained from a few opponents of Parr, moved in. With him also came Mrs. Caro Brown, a 100-pound reporter who was possessed of a deep and abiding hatred of everything Parr stood for and who had just been dying to get her teeth into the Parr story.

Caro (rhymes with arrow) Brown had always wanted to be a newspaper woman, but she didn't get around to it until five years ago, when she was 42 years old. She had studied journalism for a time at the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, Tex., one of the colleges she attended as her father, a saw mill operator, moved here and there around the state. Ironically enough, she was kicked out of that school for breaking dormitory rules.

During the Depression she got a job as secretary to a lawyer in Houston. Across the hall in the same building was a young engineer named Jack Brown. They got married and started raising a family. They have two children, Sam, who is 20, and works for an oil company, and Carolou, 17, who attends high school.

A few years ago Jack, who is now an engineer for the Texas Oil Co., was moved to this little town of Alice, county seat of Jim Wells county which adjoins Duval county. Caro Brown had heard of Parr and his regime, as most Texans had, but it wasn't until she saw it at close range that she got fighting mad.

IN 1949 the Alice Echo advertised for a proof reader. She had time on her hands, so she applied for the job and got it. The paper had a daily column called "Street Scene." She started contributing paragraphs, and the first thing she knew, it was her column. The next thing she knew she was putting out the weekly food section, and then, by a natural process known to all city rooms, she began covering the courthouse. She was elected official in Jim Wells and Duval county had been put in his job by Parr. Not only that, but he had 200 deputies, all armed, known as his pistoleros, and their job was to see that everyone did what Parr wanted them to do. And in the cemetery here in Alice is a small gravestone for Bill Mason, erected by a little band of friends and the inscription: "He died because he had the nerve to tell the truth for a lot of little people."

Furthermore, the heavy Latin-American population of Alice and both counties saw nothing wrong in the Parr type of bossism. They considered it the ideal way to run a government. Still do, in fact.

Early in 1954, Mrs. Brown got a tip from a newspaper man in Houston that the state was launching an investigation of Parr. The Attorney General, with a staff of 10 men, six of them auditors, moved in on Parr and Duval county. Caro Brown was the first to break the story, and from then on she was all over the story like a cold sweat.

She carried an automatic pistol in her Ford sedan, and she worked hand in hand with the state men. The investigation got off to a slow start because of Parr's strength and the fear he inspired in those who opposed him. No one would talk. "The investigators got to be known as 'brush crawlers,'" Caro related, "because they seemed always to be crawling through the brush to interview witnesses. The two counties were so strongly divided that you could tell by their entrance a man used at the courthouse, or which coffee shop he went to for coffee, whether he was a Parr man or against him."

"The state investigators would get the word to somebody to get the word to somebody else, and they would meet people on affairs. The gist of the allegations: that the Parr machine or individuals involved in it siphoned large sums of money out of county coffers by various devices such as keeping people on the county payroll at fancy salaries for doing nothing; handing out contracts to favored groups for goods and services rendered the county and cashing checks made out to fictitious persons. Parr himself was among those indicted, charged with conspiracy to steal public funds.

Shortly thereafter the Federal men finished their investigation, and Parr found himself under Federal indictment also. He was accused of evading $85,654.37 in income taxes over a three-year period. The Government also slapped a lien on everything Parr owns.

Parr's wife has divorced him for the second time and moved to Corpus Christi. Parr lives alone in a huge Spanish-style stucco house with a white wall around it, a swimming pool and a private race track. Downtown he has an office of the same architectural style, across the street from the courthouse. It has doors of solid oak several inches thick, and the windows are all protected with heavy steel grills.

But visitors don't find him at either place these days. He spends most of his time down at Laredo, on the border, where he's still considered a big man. When Caro Brown received word early this year that she had been nominated for a Pulitzer prize, she found it hard to believe. "After all," she says, "I was only doing my job, and it was a job that badly needed doing and which I enjoyed from beginning to end."

"But I was thrilled beyond words, and I was also in something of a quandary. They wanted a scrapbook showing all my stories in chronological order, and never in my life had I saved a line I had written."

With the help of friends, Caro went to work on the back files of the newspaper. Some of the biggest and best stories weren't there. Those were the days sales had been so good they had even sold the file copies. So word went out around town, and friends looked through their old copies to find the missing articles. In time she put together a complete file. "And when I looked at it, I couldn't believe I had written that much on one subject."

Caro got the Pulitzer prize, but she wants to make it clear she didn't get it for uncovering anything, just covering it. The award was for local reporting to meet edition deadlines. A lot of people down in these parts aren't too sure just what the Pulitzer prize is, but they do know that it's a great honor, and they're all mighty proud of Caro.

As for Caro herself, "I still can't believe it. But I know one thing—I'm in this business now for the rest of my life."

GEORGE PARR . . . INDICTED POLITICAL BOSS.

country roads after changing cars two and three times to throw the pistoleros off the trail."

Gov. Allan Shivers sent Texas Rangers into the territory to protect the state's men. Meanwhile Federal investigators joined the state boys, and little by little Parr's opponents began to lose their fear. They organized a party called the Freedom party. They had to meet secretly, for Parr's deputies would break up the meetings. At one election Parr's deputies controlled the key to the cars of all Freedom party members.

One of Caro Brown's best sources of information was a lowly tortilla maker named Manuel Marroquin, a member of the Freedom party. Parr and his men tried to invade a meeting at Manuel's house. Manuel had the unprecedented nerve to swear out a warrant against Parr the next day for brandishing a gun. Parr was charged with illegal possession of firearms, something no one dreamed could ever happen.

SEVER Parr-elected county officials resigned in a row. The county auditor, after his books had mysteriously disappeared, invoked the fifth amendment. Parr's chief nemesis was an oil company employee named J. L. McDonald, whom Parr tried to hire at $500 a month for unspecified duties. McDonald was on a three-man commission to make up a grand jury list. Parr left with him a list of names he wanted on the jury. Instead McDonald saw that none of the names were on the list. That night he received a telephone call telling him it would not be healthy for him to remain in Duval county.

This enraged McDonald, who started digging up evidence on Parr. What he found was more than interesting to both the state and Federal investigators. It was interesting also to Caro Brown, who day after day spread out on the front pages of the Alice Echo each new development in the case. The paper revealed how Parr appointees had been milking the school board funds. The auditors found that in three years $338,000 had been illegally shuffled around among various county funds. One hundred and thirty-eight checks had been cashed without endorsement of the payee. There was a $20,000 discrepancy between the books of the auditor and the treasurer of the county. Huge sums had been paid out to a construction company owned by Parr, and handwriting experts said endorsements on dozens of checks had been forged.

Caro Brown printed stories also showing how a man had to be a Parr man not only to vote, but to make a living in the land of Parr. Members of the Freedom party had been beaten, threatened and squeezed out of business. One of them owned a drive-in restaurant. When his customers came out they were met by the pistoleros, and if they had as much as one glass of beer, were arrested for drunkenness. Merchants who joined the Freedom party suddenly discovered they no longer had any customers.

Late last summer the first county grand jury in more than a generation not under Parr influence returned 69 indictments based on Duval county

A READER asks for a blame-fixing decision about the bidding in the following hand.

South, dealer.

♠AJ10764	♥K85	♦1032	♣4
♠K83	♥J742	♦Q54	♣863
♠Q5	♥1063	♦J97	♣AJ1097
NORTH	EAST	SOUTH	WEST
♠92	♥AQ9	♦AK86	♣KQ52

This deal came up at match-point duplicate, and the bidding at my correspondent's table, where he and his partner sat South and North respectively, was:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♠	Pass
2N.T.	Pass	3♠	Pass
3N.T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, properly ignoring the fact that South had opened with one club, led the jack of that suit. South took the trick and led the spade nine ride. East won and returned the eight of clubs, and South was helpless. Four club tricks and the spade went to the defense.

Then came the argument. South said that North should have persisted to four spades with his distribution; North firmly replied that since South had bid the only suit that North had to fear, clubs, and since this was match-point play with its premium on no-trump, and since, further, North had had every right to feel that three no-trump would be a cinch with his substantial holding—all this justified his pass to three no-trump.

It is true, of course, that the match-point factor was something for North to consider, and his decision could have worked out well; there might have been as many tricks available at no-trump as at spades. However, my preference is a four-spade call by North over the three no-trump. The rationalization becomes very long and involved but, boiling it down, it comes to this: a hand with a six-card major suit and 6-3-3-1 distribution has an excellent chance to win at least one more trick to the major than at no-trump, to say nothing of the greater safety.

However, we must remember South, in the actual no-trump contract, couldn't hope to equal the score that North would have made at spades, but there was no need to go down. It would have been a very good and discreet idea for South to duck a couple of club leads.

Mary Institute May Fete

MISS ELLEN LOUISE BERNOUY IS CROWNED MAY QUEEN AT MARY INSTITUTE BY MISS ELIZABETH SWARTS, PRESIDENT OF THE SENIOR CLASS.

THE highlight of the spring season at Mary Institute was the traditional May day celebration yesterday in the Garden Theater on the school grounds. As in other years, the crowning of a May Queen climaxed the afternoon's festivities. This year the honor was awarded to Miss Ellen Louise Bernouy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome F. Bernouy, 36 Algonquin Wood, Webster Groves. Students in Mary Institute's primary department, middle school and upper school took part in the fete. First, second and third grade pupils, dressed in various pastel shades and unusual nosegay-bonnets, began the program with their dance of the nosegays. The spring promenade, presented by the middle school, consisted of three folk dances. The first, the dance of the yellow hoops by the fourth and fifth graders, featured pale pink dresses and swirling yellow hoops. The promenade of the pink walking sticks was enacted by the sixth grade students whose white costumes were accented by large pink roses attached to their full skirts. Blue, pink and yellow dresses were worn by the members of the seventh grade for their sun shade stroll. They made their entrance carrying parasol frames wrapped with harmonizing shades of crepe paper flowers. An English kerchief dance by the girls in the eighth and ninth grades was distinguished by an array of yellow frocks, whereas in the subsequent ribbon dance of the sophomores and juniors, the blue of the dresses was the predominant note. As part of their dance motif they held pink satin ribbons. Afterward the girls joined hands, forming a row on either side of the shaded bridge to herald the entrance of the Maypole dancers. The seniors, gowned in bouffant white organdy, did their traditional dance around the Maypole which this year had streamers of pink and white. They then seated themselves on the lawn to await the appearance of two eighth grade students, Ann Long and Mary Beth Hansen. The girls designated Miss Bernouy as queen by presenting her with a bouquet of spring flowers. The queen curtsied deeply to the audience before proceeding to the throne set against a background of green shrubs. There the president of the senior class, Miss Elizabeth Swarts, crowned her with a wreath of white spring blossoms centered by a tiny cluster of pink rose buds. When the formalities were completed the seniors gathered around their queen on the stage where they received their friends.

My Day

Short Visit To Montreal And Toronto

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. ON Monday morning I flew to Montreal to be the guest of the United Nations Association of Canada. The headquarters of the association, however, are at Ottawa. The Canadian setup is somewhat different from ours. Their provinces being larger than our states, they have councils in some of the big cities such as Montreal, Toronto and Quebec. They are gradually building their association to cover the country as a whole, however, and there are many of the same problems that we have here in the United States. Despite its vast expanse of territory, Canada does not have as great a population as we do, but its people are showing a great deal of activity.

THE MONTREAL BRANCH was given a reception by the Mayor in the afternoon in my honor and then I attended a small dinner in the French Faculty Club which was very pleasant. After that we went to the biggest church in town, which seats 2400. People even sat on the steps and in the aisles and it was estimated the audience totaled 2700. The committee members were elated to have such a response to their invitation and to see such evident interest growing in the U.N.

After the meeting I took a train for Toronto and it was a most comfortable trip. I was met on arrival in the morning by Mrs. William Tucker, who as chairman of the evening meeting was supported by a number of other people including the American consul, which I thought was very kind.

After breakfast I did a recording for one of the regular stamp club broadcasts and then I had a press conference. There was a small lunch of business men at 1 o'clock, for they are making the effort, just as we do, to gain the support of business for the U.N.

IN THE AFTERNOON there was an official reception and the evening meeting was in Massey Hall—a large hall—and it was filled to the topmost gallery. The people in Toronto were

Mothers' Day Celebrated by O.R.T. Region

By Fay Profilet

ST. LOUIS Region of Women's American O.R.T. (Organization for Rehabilitation Through Training) gave its annual Mothers' day luncheon yesterday in the Empire room of Hotel Kingsway. Mrs. Louis Grodsky, region president presided.

Members from the four chapters, which compose the St. Louis region, modeled in a musical fashion show written and directed by Mrs. Don Quicksilver. The show titled, "In the Good Old Summertime," was produced by the Whistle Stop shop.

A highlight of the afternoon was the naming of Membership queens, bringing to a close the spring membership drive which resulted in the enrollment of more than 150 new members. The local region now numbers about 1500 members. The drive was so successful that a queen from each chapter was chosen instead of the naming of one winner as originally planned. They were Mrs. Isadore Poger, Mrs. Theodore Smith, Mrs. Louis Marcus and Mrs. Leonard Sova.

O.R.T. celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary in this country this spring. The organization provides means for the maintenance and staffing of vocational training schools for underprivileged and displaced persons in 19 countries. There are at present 400 of these schools.

The Child Conservation Conference, Inc., will meet next Tuesday at 1:15 p.m. in the assembly room of the Board of Education Building, 911 Locust street. Officers will be elected and annual reports of the affiliated organizations will be given.

most kind in their welcome, and it gave me a sense of warmth to be there. After the meeting we spent a half hour in the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Edmiston and then I returned to the hotel to stay overnight and catch the 7:30 a.m. Trans-Canada plane for Idlewild.

The flight was beautiful and we landed at 9 o'clock. I had a full morning to catch up on the mail, which always piles up even when I go away for two days.

OPINION

Dear Martha:

MY HUSBAND and I have a good friend, a widower, who has just attached himself to us and is really making a nuisance of himself. When his wife was living, we went around together a great deal and when she died a year ago we naturally tried to do what we could for him, inviting him to our home frequently for dinner and helping him overcome his grief. But now he drops into our home practically every evening, and even if we have company, he just sits down in a corner and mopes and refuses to enter into the conversation. That makes the company feel ill at ease and more than once, friends have simply left rather than sit and try to talk to him. We don't want to hurt him but we're losing our other friends because of him. What can we do?

Undoubtedly, he felt his wife's loss very keenly, and everyone is sympathetic and understanding at a time like that, but he owes it to those with whom he comes in contact every day—and especially his good friends—to rise above his grief rather than make everyone suffer with him. Perhaps you can forestall his bringing gloom into a party by inviting him to dinner an evening or so before you have planned to entertain guests, then tell him you wish you could invite him over the following night but that you are having company and you'll see him soon. If that fails, your husband as his good friend may have to talk to him seriously and try to point out that he should assume a cheerful and pleasant manner even though he is lonely.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE BEEN MARRIED six months and since then my husband hasn't seen his mother. When we were married all the gifts from my husband's side were sent to his mother's home and this was taken by my husband as an insult to me. Consequently, he never acknowledged them. I blame the gifts, not his mother. DAILY READER.

I'm afraid you have your marriage off to a pretty shaky start. Your husband's people should have addressed their gifts to you as the bride, but it may have been that they acted in ignorance, not in an attempt to insult you. After all, they didn't have to send gifts at all if they objected to the marriage. So I think you and your husband might have tried to overlook that breach of etiquette in the cause of family harmony. Why not do what you can to be friendly with his people? Ask him to let you invite his mother to your home. Ask some of the family over for dinner. You won't have a happy marriage if you and his side of the family aren't even on speaking terms.

June brides will find many of their questions on wedding etiquette answered in Martha Carr's leaflet, Guide for the Bride. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Sacroiliac Weakness

By Josephine Lowman

THERE is no affliction more painful than sacroiliac trouble. Many people suffer with it each year since it often recurs. The right exercises can be most helpful. I think I have already told you in this column that I have had pupils in classes who kept this difficulty under control so long as they exercised faithfully.

Not long ago I gave you some exercises for sacroiliac weakness. I have had many women asking for a repeat of some of the exercises because they missed them. Here are a few:

1. Stand tall. Walk in place, lifting the knees high up in front of you like a drum major.
2. Lie on your back with your knees bent and your feet flat on the floor. Move the right knee outward. Move it back toward the center of the body. Continue moving out and in. After a while do the same thing with the left knee. Keep toes on the floor.
3. This is an exercise which has given many women relief. Lie flat on the floor on your back, hands clasped behind head. Bend knees and place the feet flat on the floor.

Roll the hips forward and back very slowly, and as far in each direction as possible.

These exercises, if done regularly will be a big help. As a matter of fact if you have a suspicion that you have a weakness at the sacroiliac you would be wise to take them as preventive medicine.

Shared Companionship

By Ruth Millett

LET'S face it. When a husband and wife are especially companionable it is usually because the wife is willing to go along with all of her husband's interests. Occasionally there is a husband who gets interested in a sport or hobby or artistic endeavor because he wants to share his wife's interests. But he is a rare bird. Most of the time the man assumes that shared companionship in marriage means that his wife will share his interests.

That is just a word of explanation to a wife who thinks her husband is unfair because although she has learned to fish, play golf, and to enjoy going to baseball games with her husband, she can't drag him to a concert, dance recital or art exhibit. She asks, "Don't you think he is being unfair and selfish?"

Let's say instead that he is just being a perfectly normal man.

He enjoys his wife's company—but only if he is doing what he likes to do.

That probably isn't fair. But that is how things are and there is no use in a woman's becoming resentful because her husband behaves like most men. Men and women have to accept each other as they are. And one thing most wives have to accept is the fact that if they are to enjoy the companionship of their husbands they will have to learn to like what their husbands like—instead of trying to get their husbands to share their interests.

And they shouldn't ruin the companionship they are able to create by following where their husbands lead, by taking the attitude, "If I share his interests, he ought to share mine." That kind of attitude can only lead to quarrels and misunderstandings—the like of which real companionship can't survive.

She's a Beauty With Brains

Ex-'Miss Missouri' Heads Graduating Class, Eyes Movies

By Mary Kimbrough

HAPPILY refuting the old theory that beauty and brain power don't mix, "Miss Missouri of 1952" is winding up her collegiate career this month at the head of her class. After that may come Hollywood.

The beauty contest winner is Florence Mae Spack, known as "Flo Mae" to her classmates at Fontbonne College, where she completes a four-year course this spring after three and one-half years of study. The other semester was spent in Hollywood where she got a foot in the door. Someday she hopes the door will open all the way with a movie contract.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alois P. Spack Sr., of 1001 South Watson road, Flo Mae is one of six in her class of 65 to be graduated cum laude and in addition has been nominated for membership in Delta Epsilon Sigma, a Catholic honor society, on the basis of scholarship and leadership.

A triple threat in the singing-dancing-piano playing department, she has been looking forward to a career in some phase of show business since childhood. She started taking piano when she was 8; took her first dancing lesson two years later, and began voice when she entered high school. As a pupil of Mrs. Doane Neal, she will appear in her senior voice recital at 8:15 p.m. Sunday in Medaille Hall on the Fontbonne campus.

It was her singing ability that helped her win the "Miss Missouri" contest—coupled with her beauty and slim figure. (She's 5 feet 4½ inches tall, weighs 115 pounds, has brown eyes and dark hair, worn in a short, curly coiffure.) Entered in the contest by her dentist without her knowledge, she took first place and represented the state at the "Miss America" contest in Atlanta City.

"I guess it all started way back in kindergarten when I was in 'Snow White,'" she laughed. "I decided then I liked show business."

She appeared in a number of amateur shows throughout her school career and was dancing in a Red Cross show at Scott Field last year when Mrs. Grace Toedtman, formerly of Hollywood, spotted her as potential movie material and persuaded her to go to the west coast for an audition. With Mrs. Toedtman as companion and counselor, she won an audition with Producer Joe Pasternak, completed a successful screen test, but because of a change in studio personnel and policy, her career was sidetracked before it started, and now she's waiting to see if another contract will be forthcoming. She would like to appear in musical films.

In fact, music has been her principal interest almost all her life, and she hasn't minded giving up the time for lessons and practice. A graduate of St. Joseph's Academy, she won two scholarships to Fontbonne, one for voice, one for academic superiority.

She majored in music at Fontbonne, but life on the campus wasn't just one great big song and dance, without hard work or serious study. Far from it. Her second academic interest was mathematics.

The Dean Speaks Up

The Question of College Sororities

By Adele Starbird

THERE has been a spate of magazine articles in recent years attacking the sorority system. They were unintentionally helpful.

Criticism is good for us; it makes us evaluate ourselves. In this case it forces us to ask whether the sororities have earned the right to exist.

First it must be said that much that was written was untrue. It is easy to write a sensational article, and still easier to sell it. Hair-raising sob stories always find a market. The prosecution is more exciting than the defense. "I accuse!" is still a good title for a book.

By choosing the most outrageous examples of student behavior over a period of years, I myself could write a lurid article—probably pay my way to Europe. It would be factually correct, but it would not be true, for the picture of the total situation would be distorted and false.

If one admits that sensational cases are rare, that they constitute a fraction of 1 per cent, that most students are decent and reliable, where is the drama?

I HAVE sometimes been amused to see the reaction of an audience where I had been invited "to say a few words." Some good sister would ask me a salacious question. Immediately the audience would perk up, lean forward, almost lick their chops. At last, the real dirt! You could hear a feather fall. Not a cough in a hall full of respiratory convalescents—not even in March!

Then when I gave a moderate and honest answer, the disappointment was obvious. They decided that I was merely an aging Pollyanna, the Glad Girl gone to seed. The more charitable thought I was lying, that I knew more than I was telling.

That is why I distrust maudlin and hysterical attacks.

CATHERINE EAMES, the assistant dean of women at Washington University, went to Murray College in Kentucky last week to speak at their Panhellenic banquet. She told the sororities, among other things, that you couldn't slice anything so thin that there wouldn't always be two sides—your side, and the other fellow's—and that it was the duty of the sorority woman to look at both.

I propose, in my next few columns to give both sides of the sorority question as I see it. I shall endeavor to be objective. It may help a girl and her mother to arrive at a decision before the "rushing season" starts, a decision based upon information, not upon rumor and opinion.

Throughout I intend to use the term "sorority" rather than "women's fraternity." I consider the latter cumbersome and pretentious.

I SHALL NOT DISCUSS high school sororities. Mrs. A. Merwyn Davies wrote a letter last fall to the Post-Dispatch concerning the evil effects of high school sororities, and I agreed with her. I have never heard any good concerning them.

When I was a schoolgirl, our principal told us sternly that there would be no secret organizations of any kind in his school, and that any girl who attempted to organize one would be expelled at once. We knew that he meant it, and the matter was effectively disposed of.

But college sororities are a different matter, and that is what I should like to explain.

Teen-Agers' Date Time Questions

By Elinor Williams

EVERYBODY has a date dilemma, it seems... both boys and girls have date-time questions on their minds. Here are some that might puzzle you, too:

"When at a school dance, and asked to dance by a boy other than my escort, should I ask my escort to excuse me or should the boy ask my escort's permission to dance with me?"

Answer—If it's an invitation dance and every girl goes with an escort, the boys should arrange beforehand to exchange dances. If it's an informal dance where some girls have an escort and some girls and boys go "stag," the "stag" should ask your escort's permission to dance with you. Customs vary in some schools, however. Sometimes a "stag" may just cut in. If the "stag" doesn't ask your escort's permission as he should, it's polite for you to ask your escort if he minds... then he's free to dance with another girl while you dance with the other boy.

A BOY writes: "I have a girl friend and am quite fond of her. There are other boys who like her, but I don't think they take her anywhere. If a girl goes out with you often, does that mean she likes you better than anyone else?"

Answer—Yes. If she dates you more than anybody else, it's because she likes you best. If other boys don't ask her for dates because they think you are "going steady," you can tell if she likes you best by whether she invites you to girl's parties and dances.

My Neighbor Says:

Want to keep cabbage green when you are cooking it? Steam the shredded vegetable in only enough water to keep it from sticking; there should be practically no liquid left in the pan by the time it is tender-crisp. Cover the saucpan while you are cooking the cabbage, but lift the cover several times; this uncovering the pan will help retain the green color.

When you are soaking large dry lima beans before cooking, use 2½ cups soaking water for each cup of the beans.

Jellied Salads

By Edith M. Barber

JELLIED SALADS ARE A SATISFYING CHOICE FOR LUNCHEON OR SUPPER.

ONE of my friends announced, as she does annually, that she was about to embark upon a reducing program. The stimulus was the result of trying on last summer's clothes and finding that either they had shrunk or she had expanded.

She is one of those people who not only loves food, but gets hungry or empty, as she calls it, every few hours. While it is hard for her to reduce weight, it is even more difficult for her to stay reduced.

FORTUNATELY, she seems to lose extra weight quickly.
She takes care of that empty feeling between meals, either by drinking reconstituted vegetable or fruit juice or by mixing unflavored gelatin with fruit juice or with boiling water in which a bouillon cube has been dissolved.

As have many other persons,
she has found that jellied vegetable or fruit salads are a satisfying choice for luncheon or supper. She feels that they are more filling than are the same ingredients merely mixed, and that she can get along with less dressing, or even without any.

IF YOU are serious about a reducing program, you must follow the advice of the scales that are the best judge of the results of a low-calorie diet.
You should not lose more than three pounds a week and it will take some time to regain your ideal weight.

When you have reached your

QUICK SHRIMP CURRY

Ingredients: One-half pound medium-sized shrimp, one cup water, one can (10 ounces) frozen condensed cream of shrimp soup, one teaspoon curry powder, two tablespoons heavy cream, hot cooked rice.
Method: Wash shrimp in cold water; drain. Put shrimp and one cup water in one-quart saucepan; do not add salt. Bring rapidly to simmering; cover and simmer (do not boil) three minutes. Reserve one-fourth cup of

Hot Food

SERVING food hot makes all the difference in its attractiveness. Therefore nothing should be left undone to achieve this end.

To assure food being served hot it should be taken off the range and placed on the table just as the family is ready to sit down to it. Consequently, before the transfer is made, the family should be warned by the inquiry, "Is everybody ready for dinner?"

Even though the answer is in the affirmative, it should not be taken for granted. It should be followed up by detailed questions concerning such matters as whether hair has been brushed and hands and faces washed.

Precaution should be taken to see that no telephone calls are being projected or awaited and that there will be no rushing upstairs at the last minute to change into other clothes or to get a sweater.

Each member of the family should be asked to search his or her mind to see if there is any impediment to setting down to table on the instant. A reasonable time should be allowed for a complete and comprehensive self-investigation before calling for a report and getting the reply that nothing stands in the way.

With these assurances the family then may be summoned and ordered to take their places behind their chairs ready to be seated on the instant and to be gin eating as soon as the food appears and before it has had a chance to cool.

That done, the cook may dish up, bring in the food and give the order for all present to be seated. But what is the trouble now?

Nothing. Except that, as usual and in spite of all warning, father has to take time out to sharpen the carving knife.

CHRISTOPHER BILLOP.

Gourmet Chocolate Sauce

Ingredients: One package (six ounces) semi-sweet chocolate pieces, one-half cup sifted confectioners' sugar, one tablespoon butter or margarine, one-fourth cup undiluted evaporated milk, one-fourth cup sweet cooking sherry.
Method: Melt semi-sweet chocolate pieces over hot (not boiling) water. Remove from heat and stir in confectioners' sugar and butter; mixture will be stiff.
Add undiluted evaporated milk and cooking sherry. Stir over hot (not boiling) water until smooth; make sure there are no lumps. A whisk or fork will help make sauce smooth. Makes about one and one-fourth cups. Serve over Mary Ann cake cups filled with ice cream.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

DUSK was descending, and it would soon be dark. Jonie looked out the porthole and saw the yacht was passing an island. A little later she saw another. Apparently the Isabelle was transiting through a group of islands in the gulf.

There was no reduction in speed, however. The craft sped through the waters at a fast rate. Garcia had called it, some time, and he was not going to be late.

Jonie heard a key in the lock of Nina's door. The bolt was still in place and she hurried to release it.

The crew member, one she had not seen before, brought in dinner on a serving table. He was quite young, and very good-looking.

"What's your name?" Jonie asked pleasantly.

"No one," he replied.

"You don't speak English?"

He shook his head.

"That's too bad. I wondered where we are. Thought you might tell me."

The young Cuban arranged the table, pulled up a chair and took off the linen cover. Jonie saw a complete dinner ready for her. Evidently Garcia was feeding his crew well, in spite of his hurry to meet his cargo of arms.

"That's very nice," Jonie said, forgetting that the Cuban could not understand her.

Jonie sat at the table, and the young man began to leave the room. "Thank you," she said, then added mischievously, "You're cute."

The boy grinned. "That's what my girl tells me," he said in perfect English. "She's in Miami. We're going to be married next time I'm ashore."

Jonie was astonished. "You can understand English," she said. "You were kidding me."

"Goin' orders," he said, and a whisper, glancing toward the open door.

Jonie motioned for him to close it, which he did. "Look, pal, help me out," Jonie said in a friendly voice. "Can't you get me an extra key to this coop? I don't like being locked up in here. Something might happen to the yacht."

"Sorry," he said. "I can't cross the captain. I'm getting a nice chunk of coin out of this trip. It's for a honeymoon. Wish I didn't like being locked up in here."

"Well, thanks for the try, anyway," Jonie told him. "I hope you're getting a nice girl."

"She's a doll," the boy said enthusiastically.

He looked at Jonie critically. "You're not so bad, either," he said.

"Thanks, pal. You might forget to lock the door when you go."

"Sorry. No can do, Miss Hallam. Got to keep in with the boss. He's riding high right now."

He left and he locked the door.

JONIE ate her dinner. She wasn't especially hungry, but she forced herself to eat.

When she had finished she went back to the porthole. The ocean was dark, with only a few lights. In the semi-darkness, Jonie could still see islands as they passed them. She stood there for almost an hour, peering into the darkness, hoping to see a land light.

But none appeared.

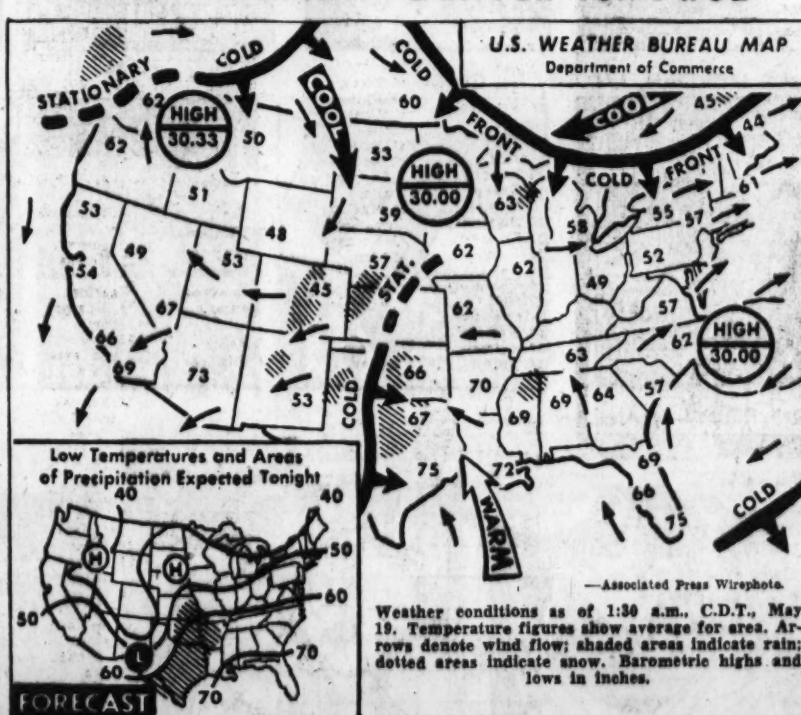

She lay down for a while, but was so restless she couldn't stay on the bed. She flipped through a movie magazine, scarcely seeing them. Then she peered the floor. Jonie wished midnight would come. Anything to get rid of the suspense, the worry and fear.

Wondering what was happening in Seaside Gardens. Surely Tom and Brad would go into action, the moment they discovered the yacht was gone, and she had disappeared.

Jonie heard a key in the door. She glanced at her watch. It

'Ideal' Weather Outlook for Area

Generally fair weather, with temperatures near 80 degrees tomorrow, was forecast by Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren. A low of about 55 degrees tomorrow morning was predicted.

Although he expected a few clouds tonight and tomorrow, Wahlgren termed the weather outlook ideal. He cautioned, however, that lake and river water still was too cold for swimming.

High temperature here yesterday was 79 degrees at 5 p.m. Low this morning was 60 degrees at 8:15 o'clock.

Rainfall since May 1, totals .90 inches. Normal for period is 2.54 inches.

Rain brought relief from drought conditions yesterday in the dustbowl area, including western Kansas, Texas, Oklahoma, and eastern portions of Colorado and New Mexico. Heavy rainfall was recorded at Grand Island, Tex., where 5 inches fell in about an hour.

Continued rainfall was predicted in the plains states, reaching the eastern Rocky Mountain region. Other sections of the nation are scheduled for fair and mild weather. High for the nation yesterday was 98 at Presidio, Tex.

It was a seaplane. I happens Tom was on the job. I stopped her efforts to free herself and listened. The seaplane had landed near the yacht.

Captain didn't return to the stateroom.

Already stiff from the cramped position she slowly moved her arms. Then she heard a faint, distant, return.

An amusing piece of barcarole music exists. Instead of having ordinary musical notes, this music is adorned with scores of little human figures.

The figures have arms, legs, bodies and heads, and are, for the most part, in boats. The smaller boats contain only a few figures, but certain of the boats have from six to nine. One boat, shown upside down, is above six little men who are tumbling into the water.

A person might use that sheet to play on the piano. The head of each figure is dark, and is

"piece of barcarole music." Sometimes we hear a person speak about "the barcarole" as though only one barcarole existed. Actually the word refers to boat songs which originated in Venice, Italy. The Italian word "barca" means "boat" or "barge," and the barcarole is a boat song, especially one sung by gondoliers of Venice.

In addition, the have barcaroles composed by several musicians who lived outside of Italy. These were designed to imitate old songs of the Venetian boatmen. Barcaroles which were composed by Chopin, Offenbach and Mendelssohn have won special praise, and they rank among the classics of music.
